BUSINESS BUILDING RULES FOR RETAILERS

By A. F. SHELDON
OF THE
Sheldon School of Salesmanship

BUSINESS building is the art of securing permanent and profitable patrons. If the retailer secures a sufficient number of permanent and profitable patrons he builds up his business.

Let me define the concept "patron." Everybody has a patron. At one time I had a couple of men digging a drain on my farm. A friend called to see me, and we were discussing the question of salesmanship. I said to him, "Every man has something to sell." To this he did not agree. "What, for instance," he asked, "have those men to sell who are digging the ditch for you?" I replied that they were selling their services to me. One of them did not have the goods I wanted, so that he did not continue to give me a service. He did not give me his right "Q plus Q"—quantity plus quality. He violated the law of thoroughness and paid the penalty in the loss of his position.

Service a Staple.

When every employee awakens to the fact that the sale of service is governed by the same law as that which influences the price of flowers—quantity plus quality of the goods delivered; when he realizes that, he will not be losing his eyesight looking for more pay, or fostering spite against an unappreciative boss.

Let us consider the concept "profitable." There is a big difference between a storekeeper and a merchant. Keep your eye on the profits. The man who cuts the throat of a transaction and spills the life blood of the profits is not a salesman. He is a storekeeper—an order taker.

It is lamentable that ninety-five per cent of the men who set sail on the sea of retail merchandising are destined to go down on the rock of failure. Many retailers are making less today than the travelers who call on them and load them up with goods.

Keeping Customers.

Now we come to the concept "permanent." A house is known by the customers it keeps—not by those it gets. There may be no profit on the first order of Mrs. Jones because the advertising necessary to get her into the store may have absorbed the entire profit.

In olden times the rule of business was "Let the buyer beware." With everything else it was different, but when it came to the sordid thing of business the buyer had to beware. The modern version of this is "Let the seller beware." If you want the permanent patron, don't do him up.

The science of business is the science of rendering service—he profits most who serves best. To have the permanent patron one must give three things—quality always; right quantity, and mode of conduct of his business. Q plus Q plus M equals service.

SHARP SHOTS FROM SHELDON.

Business building is the art of securing profitable and permanent patrons.

A house is known by the customers it keeps—not by those it gets.

Advertising is the fire under the boilers of business.

The wagging tongue of a satisfied patron is the best advertisement in the world.

Salesmanship is the power to persuade people to purchase products at a profit.

Some men talk a man into buying and then talk him out of it again. There are too many people in the world who lack terminal facilities.

Success in business means the making of profitable patrons.

The wagging tongue of a satisfied patron is the best advertisement in the world. The wagging tongue of a dissatisfied patron is the worst advertisement in the world. The florist who gives quality plus quantity and who conducts his business properly is the lucky one. People will go blocks out of their way to buy his product. It is obedience to God's eternal laws that brings him success. When in trouble and you want to find the cause, look in the looking glass.

Dividends and Service.

Ninety-nine men out of every hundred you ask why they are in business will tell you, "To make money." That in a sense is true. As society is organized today, we must have money. There are four ways to get it—steal it, beg it, inherit it, or earn it. The latter is the only certain way.

If all the retail florists and clerks in the country were to die tonight, what would become of the people in the morning? This emphasizes the great service the retailer renders. The money you get is to pay for service. If the service is little, there will be little pay. Big services generate the heat of larger pay.

There are millions of men losing their eyesight looking for dividends. If they looked toward rendering Q plus Q plus M they would be doing a much greater service to the community. So if anyone asks in the future why you are in business, tell him that you are in business to render a service to the community.

The next concept is "making." Emerson tells us that if a man makes a better mouse trap than his neighbor the world will make a beaten path to his door. That is hardly correct. Few will tear down the tall timber to get to your door unless you tell the people about the mouse trap—your business.

Firing Up.

I believe in quality; yes, but if we are going to make profits we must not hide our light under a bushel. Advertising is the fire under the boilers of business. Advertise a little and it does not pay. A little fire will not help build much of a business; but, on the other hand, too much may melt the business. There are many forms of advertising besides the written form. The boosting of the men and women who work for you among their friends is one of the greatest advertisements you can get. One of the worst is the knocking of these same people.

You cannot reap figs from thistles. Ninety-five per cent of the people of the world are employed by the other five. One of the best forms of advertising is—be a humanitarian with your people. That makes man-power.

To get, you must give. Loyalty and love are queer things. The more you give the more you have. You cannot give of hate and disloyalty and get something in return. "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you," as the Man of Galilee said, is a great motto to be remembered. The man who builds his business must do unto his customers as he would have them do unto him.

Salesmanship a Potent Element.

What is salesmanship? One of the most potent elements in making permanent and profitable patrons is the law of suggestion. It seems to be the universal habit of order-takers to use the negative suggestion instead of the positive suggestion. There are millions of people in stores telling you every day that you don't want this or that.

The negative question kicks the football of the mind toward the goal of No, the positive question to the goal of Yes.

Let me tell you of a purchase I was making some time ago of collars and cuffs. After I had made the purchase the clerk said, "You don't want any ties, do you?" And I said, "No." That was the natural answer. A few days later my wife pointed out that I ought to have a new tie. I really did want that tie, but the clerk told me I didn't. In another store, just three doors away, I bought one. The clerk said to me after making the sale, "You will want some more ties in a few days—it will save you shopping again if you take them with you now." I purchased three altogether because the clerk told me I needed them, and I almost bought a scarf besides. In fact, a few days later, when passing the window of the same store, I noticed some scarfs in the window, and went in and bought one.

One of those stores is no more. You can easily guess which one it is. The clerk should remember that the fault lies not in the boss but in himself.

Room for Progress.

Salesmanship is the power to persuade people to purchase products at a profit. I feel sorry for the man who is affected with the disease of knowitallitis. Remember, you can't stand still. You must either go forward or backward, and the power to persuade people to purchase products at a profit has never been perfected by any of us.

The old idea that the glib talker is always a salesman is entirely wrong. Some people talk a man into buying and then talk him out of it again. There are too many people in the world who lack terminal facilities.

Prejudice is a great hindrance to progress. We must constantly strive to overcome prejudice, in ourselves as well as in others, to bring the conduct of our business into harmony with the fixed laws of nature.

ADVERTISING IN TAMPA.

As Tampa, Fla., is the largest cigar city in the world, it is not to be wondered at that a florist of that city should use the products of the tobacco plant to make a novel advertisement for himself. This is what F. A. Knull, of the Knull Floral Co., did at the time of the opening of the new Bell cafe in Tampa recently, an occasion that took 300 Beauties of Mr. Knull for decorations. As an attraction at the opening Mr. Knull proposed the cigar bouquet that is shown in the illustration. The Cuesta Rey Co. was glad to furnish the tobacco and a tobacco journal was later anxious for a photograph. The cafe owners advertised the extraordinary bouquet in its quarter-page announcement in the Tampa papers. As was expected, the bouquet attracted widespread attention and caused much comment, all to the advantage of the Knull Floral Co.

PIERSON'S PALACE.

The illustration of "Pierson's Palace of Posies" that appeared in The Review last week has attracted more than usual interest, since it marks the completion of a store that is another long step in advance for the trade. As a result of this illustration many florists will visit Tarrytown to inspect the building itself and it will have its effect in modifying many a retailer's plans.

People who are familiar with the best designs in architecture pronounce this building as perfect architecturally, both in design and construction, as any of the buildings on Fifth avenue, in New York city, used for any line of business. If it were not for the conservatory on the north and the Italian garden on the south, the building might be mistaken for a modern public library, or a bank. Nothing like it has ever before been attempted in the florists' business, either in breadth of conception or execution, and it is a building that will probably not be duplicated for a long time to come. It represents an outlay of nearly $50,000.

A Bouquet Popular in Tampa, Fla.

The building is designed to meet the conditions of a high-class residential neighborhood, being a beautiful building in a beautiful setting. A building of this character would only be possible in such a town as Tarrytown, which is the wealthiest suburban section in the United States, being only twenty-five miles from the heart of New York city. The building is located on Broadway, which is a continuation of Riverside drive in New York city, and is the main thoroughfare along the Hudson river between New York and Albany and the north and west. It is estimated that on pleasant days between 300 and 400 automobiles an hour pass the building. It will readily be seen that the advertising value of such a building is incalculable in such a neighborhood. Indeed, Mr. Pierson says, it is quite a question whether the advertising value capitalized will not bring back the cost of the investment in ten years or less. All in all, it is a building that must be seen to be appreciated. Neither photographs nor description can convey the general effect of the beauty of the structure. As stated in last week's note, William R. Cobb, general manager of the Lord & Burnham Co., is the architect, and the design as worked out is the result of the collaboration of Mr. Pierson and Mr. Cobb, the latter, of course, having carried out the technical construction and the general design.

EASTERN STAR EMBLEM.

Florists are often called upon to make up emblems of various national and international orders, and those who are acquainted with the emblems and are adept at executing these designs find them a steady source of income that adds a quite respectable sum to the year's profits. The illustration on page 13 shows such an emblem, that of the Order of the Eastern Star. The execution of this particular piece, however, added nothing to anyone's profits, for it was made by the class in floral decoration at the University of Illinois for display in the exhibit of the class's work held at Urbana recently.

PUTS A BAN ON FLOWERS.

Flowers will be prohibited at funerals in Catholic churches in the Kansas City diocese. An edict has been issued by Bishop Thomas F. Lillis in which it is suggested that the practice of sending flowers to the home also be refrained from. It is suggested instead that a memorial card with a few words of sympathy would be more appropriate. The ruling is for the church services only. "Flowers are all right at weddings and in the home," Bishop Lillis is quoted as saying, "but an ostentatious display of flowers does not seem appropriate on an occasion of solemnity. The custom sometimes is a vanity and an extravagance. It works a hardship on many in innumerable cases."

Bishop Lillis' circular to the priests of the diocese is as follows:

"It is to be deplored that Catholic funerals are frequently made the occasion of useless and extravagant expenditures for floral tributes. These offerings of flowers may add to public display and for that reason be welcome to the family in grief, but the practice savors of vanity and not seldom works hardship on those who cannot afford it. It too often happens that those who are limited in means and already overwhelmed with debt are forced by prevailing custom to add to their obligations because a friend has passed away and flowers must be purchased to remind the bereaved relatives that their deceased is not forgotten.

"How much more acceptable to the living and profitable to the one that is gone would be a memorial card sent to the family, conveying a few sincere words of sympathy and a promise of some prayers for the repose of the soul of the departed! We know the meaningless waste of money on the occasion of funerals often results in depriving the deceased of the greatest blessing which gratitude and love can bestow—the holy sacrifice of the mass.

"The practice of bringing fading flowers to encase and surround the casket during the divine service for the dead is not at all commendable, and hence we direct that the use of flowers at the obsequies in church must not be permitted in future.

"This letter should be read and its purpose explained to the people on the Sunday following its receipt and also on occasions when arrangements for funerals are being made."

WINTERING DELPHINIUMS.

Noticing the reference to delphiniums in the article on "The Hardy Perennial Garden" in The Review of July 9, I wish to ask what treatment the delphiniums should receive from September on through the winter? Last season I grew some fine plants in the greenhouse and left them there for the winter. No fire was kept in the winter and the house was not used. It was simply a coldframe. I lost the plants. What should be the winter treatment of these plants and others of the same nature? Where can they best be wintered here, in the climate of southern Michigan? E. S. T.

Delphiniums, such as were described in a recent issue of The Review, are sufficiently hardy to withstand a winter minimum of 20 to 25 degrees below zero; at least, they have withstood such temperatures with me, and this is probably about as cold as you will get it. If there is a good snow protection, delphiniums are about as hardy as any perennials we have. After the first crop of flowers has passed, these should be cut back and a second crop will then come up for August and September flowering. Any transplanting should be done from the middle to the end of October. Just before the ground freezes up, give your plants a top-dressing of well rotted manure. If your climate is extremely severe, supplement this with a further light mulch of hay or strawy litter. A thick mulch is more likely to be harmful than helpful. Delphiniums should not have wet feet in winter, or they will rot. Give them land where water will not stand.

If, for any reason, you are unable to winter perennials successfully outdoors, lift them and plant them closely in a coldframe and, when the ground is frozen hard, cover with dry leaves; then place the sashes over them. The floor of a cold cellar, covered with coarse sand, can be used to pack away many perennials of doubtful hardiness, such as incarvilleas, rehmannias, kniphofias, Anemone Japonica, Helianthus multiflorus plenus, pompon chrysanthemums, montbretias, etc. In a sandy, porous soil even these stand a good deal of cold—much more than when planted in a retentive, clayey loam.

THE ILLINOIS EQUIPMENT.

The equipment for floriculture at the University of Illinois now consists of eight greenhouses, covering an area of 28,000 square feet, which is devoted to experimental and instructional work. In addition to this, there is a service building 35x95 feet, of two stories and a basement.

Because of the backing of the Illinois State Florists' Association, the state legislature not only has provided this equipment but has made the following appropriations for its maintenance and operation.

July, 1907, to July, 1909	$15,000.00
July, 1909, to July, 1911	16,000.00
July, 1911, to July, 1913	16,000.00

Salesmanship a Potent Element.

What is salesmanship? One of the most potent elements in making permanent and profitable patrons is the law of suggestion. It seems to be the universal habit of order takers to use the negative suggestion instead of the positive suggestion. There are millions of people in stores telling you every day that you don't want this or that.

Delphiniums should not have wet feet in winter, or they will rot. Give them land where water will not stand.

If, for any reason, you are unable to winter perennials successfully outdoors, lift them and plant them closely in a coldframe and, when the ground is frozen hard, cover with dry leaves; then place the sashes over them. The floor of a cold cellar, covered with coarse sand, can be used to pack away many perennials of doubtful hardiness, such as incarvilleas, rehmannias, kniphofias, Anemone Japonica, Helianthus multiflorus plenus, pompon chrysanthemums, montbretias, etc. [illegible] porous soil over these stands a good deal of cold much more than when planted in a retentive, clayey loam.

THE ILLINOIS EQUIPMENT.

The equipment for horticulture at the University of Illinois now consists of eight greenhouses, covering an area of 28,000 square feet, which is devoted to experimental and instructional work. In addition to this, there is a service building 35x65 feet, of two stories and a basement.

Because of the meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association, the state legislature not only has provided this equipment but has made the following appropriations for its maintenance and operation:

July, 1907, to July, 1909 [illegible]
July, 1909, to July, 1911 [illegible]
July, 1911, to July, 1913 [illegible]
July, 1913, to July, 1915 [illegible]

Newton, Ia. Mrs. James [illegible] sold the City Greenhouses to C. S. Sutherson, of Davenport. W. F. Bolen will have charge of the place.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

SNAPP'S RELATIONS WANTED.

I saw a news item from Salina, Kan., in The Review for July 30, relating to the death of a stranger there and I write you so that you can print this and perhaps locate his relations. The man's name was Alfred H. Snapp. He was about 65 years of age. Years ago he worked in Chicago, for a florist named Fuller. He was born in New York, near Poughkeepsie, and has a brother and sister living somewhere near there. He had worked for me, in Pine Bluff, Ark., several times in the last ten years. He had been in bad health for several years and had spells of the blues and would go away, but would come back and tell me he was going to stay till he died.

We are badly in need of rain. All outdoor stock is suffering. We have our carnations planted and the stock looks fine, despite the weather. Last week we opened a store in the new Hotel Pine. We will handle all cut flowers from there, and plants from the greenhouse. Business is dull, but we hope for an improvement as soon as the weather gets cooler. Last week the thermometer registered 104½ degrees in the shade.

NOTES ON OUTDOOR PLANTS.

An inquiry recently appeared in The Review as to why some plants of Ampelopsis quinquefolia, commonly known as Virginia creeper or American ivy, do not cling to walls, while others do. There are two varieties of this vine, one having no tendrils, while the other is abundantly supplied with them. I do not know that the plants can be distinguished by appearance of leaf. Ampelopsis Engelmanni is a seedling from A. quinquefolia, with larger foliage and vigorous habit; it is in every way better than the original form and clings tenaciously.

Amorphophallus Rivieri, a strange bulb, producing highly ornamental foliage and a flower of most disgusting odor, I supposed was from the tropics, but the root is perfectly hardy, sometimes remaining dormant in the ground a full year and then coming up.

I have found the spotted calla, Richardia albo-maculata, and also R. Mrs. Roosevelt, entirely hardy in my Indiana climate, plants coming up in the following spring from bulbs missed in digging.

I have not found Tritoma Pfitzerii satisfactorily hardy. When the plants have been left outside, even if mulched, their corms have usually been so injured by frost as to give an unsatisfactory growth.

Gladiolus Chicago White has this season again demonstrated its value. Bulbs planted April 18 began furnishing spikes for shipment July 7, and now, July 28, are practically through blooming. Augusta bulbs of the same size, planted alongside at the same date, gave their first spikes July 28. I have grown Chicago White for five years. Pink Augusta, sent out a few years ago with a strong recommendation, has not proved to have any merit outside with us. We have not tried it under glass.

FROM THE OTHER SIDE.

There are two sides to every question, as some keen philosopher remarked many centuries ago, and it is always of value as well as of interest to know what the other side has to say. In reply to the article headed "Where They Fall," in The Review for July 23, an insecticide manufacturer says:

"That the insecticide manufacturers are 'being pilloried by the government,' is truly stated, but that the manufacturers bring the troubles upon themselves is not a complete statement of the case. If you could stand in the manufacturers' shoes for a few hours, you would find that we also are quite up a tree; for if we apply to the insecticide board for advice, they will render us an opinion which is not binding and, if followed, may lead the manufacturers into court, as has been the case before.

"Your suggestion that manufacturers had better lower the claims made on labels, to get within the range of practical manufacturing variations, would not lead us out of the wilderness, for the reason that the insecticide law states specifically that we must name the exact percentage of the active and inert ingredients, giving us the privilege of naming the active ingredients contained and the total inert ingredients. Now, should we overestimate the active ingredients and then attempt to balance by naming a lesser amount of inert ingredients, we would soon be hauled up for misbranding.

"The great trouble is that, whereas most manufacturers are observing the spirit of the law, the insecticide board is endeavoring to enforce the law from a technical standpoint. Many products are sold which remain on the shelves for a year or two and there is possible evaporation, but the government will not take this into consideration, although, on the other hand, the product may be just as effective as it was when first put out.

"We have a case on hand at the present time with one of our products, which the government, on analyzing, claims to have found to contain .25 per cent less of an ingredient than the label calls for. This product, before it was shipped out, was analyzed by no less than four chemists, one of them being one of the leading analytical chemists in New York city. These chemists are prepared to testify that their analyses were correct. We have submitted our side to the government, but, of course, do not know what the outcome will be.

"What is necessary is that the insecticide manufacturers get together for their own protection, though there seems to be no disposition in that direction. There is no question that many of the cases which have gone by default, had they been tried out in the courts, would have resulted in defeat for the government. All will agree that manufacturers breaking the laws should be prosecuted, but persecuting them for the sake of making a showing in one or another department of the government is certainly not the intent of the law.

"The fact that non-vult is pleaded and small fines are paid is due to the enormous expenses attached to contesting government suits. Only the other day we were discussing the pure food and insecticide problems with a firm of leading manufacturing chemists in this state and they informed us that they were interested in fighting Dr. Wiley on one of the 'pure food' cases, which was finally decided in the higher courts in favor of the manufacturers, but that it cost them over $200,000 to contest the case, experts being brought from abroad to bear out the contentions of the manufacturers. Of course, the manufacturing concern referred to was an extremely wealthy one. Yet, although the manufacturing chemists we refer to are a big concern, they were compelled to withdraw an article of their own from the market simply because they were not prepared to spend the money that would be involved in a lawsuit with the government, and that is the position today of insecticide manufacturers also.

"You will probably agree with me from your own experience that practical experiments on the part of growers have disproved and are constantly disproving much of the expert advice coming from the Agricultural Department; but the department is content to rest on its expert theories and is seldom found to be disposed to place much faith in demonstrations by practical men."

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

TAKING BUDS FOR EXHIBITION.

Will you kindly advise me as to the time to take the best bud of the varieties of chrysanthemums on the enclosed list? I suppose there are a few on this list of which I can take the bud at the same time, but I want good exhibition blooms. Last year I had five varieties, but could not plant my benches before September, and the result was inferior and small blooms. R. W. B.

The following dates are what we consider the earliest that a bud should be taken in this section. Just what difference there is between the conditions here and at Cleveland I cannot say, but I should not imagine it was much.

Mrs. Wm. Duckham	August 20
Chieftain	September 10
Mary Donnellan	September 1
Pioneer	September 1
Mrs. Wm. Arnold	August 5
Susie	August 10
Miss Clara Banghart	August 15
Maud Dean	September 10
Wm. Turner	August 25
Lady Hopetoun	August 15
Dr. Enguehard	September 15 and later
Golden Jones	September 1 to 10
Amorita	August 25
Golden King	August 25
Golden Wedding	August 25
Naomah	August 20
Mrs. Kelly	August 25
Dolly Dimple	September 10 or later
Golden Eagle	September 1 to 10

R. W. B. will note a considerable difference in the dates of some varieties, but that is partly accounted for by the fact that they are pretty late varieties. It is impossible to fix an arbitrary date that will apply to all seasons alike and to all varieties and all conditions under which plants are being handled. A grower, for instance, who propagates his stock in January will, in many cases, the first week in August be running what is known as a third crown, whereas a grower who propagates his stock in April, or early in May, perhaps, does not have a single bud yet showing on his plants. In such a case, where I would recommend, for instance, August 5 as the best date for Mrs. W. Arnold, if the plants had the requisite age and had produced one or two buds, it may be practically safe; whereas, if the bud showing by August 5 was the first bud the plant had produced, it is problematical whether it would produce a perfect flower or not.

I am, of course, in the dark as to when R. W. B. propagated the plants and what condition they are in at this time. It is perfectly well understood among growers today that to get exhibition flowers one must have stock propagated from January to March to get the best results. Later propagated stock, while it will produce good flowers, will, as a rule, lack just the least fraction of size or depth to enable the grower to compete successfully with the flowers cut from plants that have been propagated early and kept growing steadily right along.

R. W. B. says last year he did not get his plants benched until September; plants so treated cannot be expected to give good results, as by that time the growth should have been made, the bud taken and the energy of the plant diverted to the development of the future flowers.

In the case of such varieties as Dr. Enguehard, which I have marked September 15 and later, it does not necessarily follow that a bud showing earlier than this would not produce a good flower, but the average experience with Enguehard shows that a bud taken much earlier than this date results in a flower quite pale in color.

FERTILIZERS FOR MUMS.

I would like to use liquid chicken manure on chrysanthemums after the bud has been taken. Kindly inform me if one part of manure to six parts of water would be sufficiently strong. Also, if sixteen ounces of nitrate of soda, ten ounces of sulphate of potash and thirty-three ounces of acid phosphate could be used in alternation at the rate of one pound of mixture to fifty gallons of water. P. C.

The only trouble with chicken manure is that when fresh it is caustic and apt to burn the root hairs, which are the feeding fibers of the plant. The suggestion of one part to six of water is all right if I understand it correctly—that is, one pail of the liquid in which the chicken fertilizer has been soaking to six pails of clear water. It is not necessary always to wait for the bud to show before feeding the plants. If they are strong and healthy they are greatly benefited by feeding earlier, if they have been planted seven or eight weeks, in order to make them throw up a stronger bud. The old maxim not to feed till the bud shows is all twaddle. The expert grower watches over his plants and tries to keep them in perfect health from the first, feeding them as soon as his experience tells him they have exhausted most of the nutriment in the soil. A light soil "runs out" much more quickly than a heavy soil, as it washes away so quickly. A large percentage of fertilizer washes through the benches anyway and is lost, but that we cannot help unless we all adopt the clever scheme of Poehlmann Bros. Co. and drain the walks into a reservoir to be used again.

The chemical mixture suggested is all right, as it furnishes a complete fertilizer, in the usual acceptance of the term. Personally, I would use sulphate of ammonia in preference to nitrate of soda. My experiments under glass are all in favor of the sulphate, particularly when one is using other chemicals in conjunction with it. If the use of nitrate of soda on chrysanthemums is at all excessive, it will be noticed that warty growths will appear on the stems of the plants and the leaves will run small, and the plant, in fact, will get a serious check. A scientific friend tells me this is due to the denitrification of the soil; in other words, the excess of nitrogen has killed the nitrifying bacteria present in the soil and the plant is unable to take up the feed. Whatever the explanation, the fact remains, as anyone may see for himself by experimentation.

Intensive cultivation, as practiced in a greenhouse in four or five inches of soil, is quite different from cultivation out in the open air, with natural conditions of heat and moisture and the broad bosom of mother earth to work on. Charles H. Totty.

THE RAINBOW SPRINKLER.

A sprinkler that combines other qualities with its utility as a means of spraying lawns and shrubbery is the Rainbow sprinkler. Owing to its construction, this sprinkler shows a full rainbow and rainbow circle when conditions are favorable. The requirements, says John Peterson, of Lake George, N. Y., whose photograph of the sprinkler in action is reproduced herewith, are sunshine, proper exposure and a good water supply—the stronger the pressure the better the rainbow. The sprinkler is attached to an ordinary garden hose, and needs only the extra attention to keep it in position to receive the sun's rays so as to produce the rainbow effect.

Fall River, Mass.—Chatterton Warburton says the more he sees of the Hadley rose the better he likes it. He has a rival to Killarney Brilliant and expects to see a new house planted with it for trial by a large grower near by. He will possibly have some blooms at the convention.

CARNATIONS

AFTER BENCHING IS FINISHED.

Reserving Plants for Vacancies.

As soon as you have finished benching your carnations, pot up some plants of each variety to replace those that may die here and there from one cause or another. Just how many you will lose cannot be foretold, but we seldom fail to lose a few, and no doubt you have the same experience. Five per cent should be a liberal allowance for this purpose; in most cases the loss is one per cent or less. Put these into as small pots as are practical. You want them to become established as quickly as possible, and the smaller the pot the more quickly will the plant become potbound. Your principal loss will occur within the first four weeks after the plants are benched, and by that time the potted plants will be ready to set in where plants are missing. In case the plants have died of stem-rot, we sprinkle some hydrated lime on the soil wherever a plant is pulled up. This is usually effective in destroying the fungus, but if a second plant dies of the same disease, we take out the soil and replace it with new, to set the next plant in.

Handled in this way, the plants that are set in will be only a little behind those benched at the start and will give better results than when planted in from the field.

Watering and Cultivating.

After the first good watering you will gradually withhold the water from the roots, depending on the overhead spraying and damping the walks to keep the plants fresh until the roots have taken hold again. Light waterings will have to be given now and then in spots, where the soil dries out unevenly, but no heavy soaking should be given for a while, as the roots will take hold better when the soil is just moderately moist than when it is kept sodden.

When the plants have taken hold and will stand up without extra spraying, you will likely find the soil in excellent condition to work. Break up the crust that has formed on the surface and level it off so that a good watering may be given over the whole bed. After that you will water only when the bed has dried out sufficiently to need it, allowing the soil to get well on the dry side before each watering. By working the soil as soon after planting as it is in condition you will probably be able to destroy most of the young weed crop that usually follows the planting. This will not only save you much labor in weed pulling, but will also conserve the plant food in the soil, as most weeds are heavy feeders.

A Dusting of Lime.

If your soil is inclined to be heavy, or if it is lacking in potash, there may be a heavy scum of green on the surface, caused by the continuous syringing. In that case, you should dust hydrated lime over the soil before breaking it up. No harm will be done if you dust it over the plants as well; in fact, it will do them good by destroying any leaf-spot spores that may have developed while the atmosphere was kept in a humid condition. Many carnation growers make a practice of this, regardless of whether the soil is green or not. Others use Bordeaux, applying it two or three times during the fall, with good results. Watch closely for any signs of leaf-spot or fairy ring.

A. F. J. Baur.

SHOULD PLANTS BE TOPPED?

We now have our carnations set in benches from 3-inch pots. They are nice plants, averaging three shoots. Should these be trimmed or should we let them flower? W. D. M.

If your plants are growing vigorously and you can make good use of the blooms, there will be no harm in allowing them to bloom from now on. I really believe that it will tend to make your cut more continuous through the winter than if you kept the plants topped closely until September and then allowed them to come with a heavy crop. One must be governed somewhat by these things in deciding on the manner of handling his plants. One grower will try for an even cut throughout the season, while another will prefer to cut heavily at certain times at the expense of the cut at other times. This must be governed almost entirely by the topping. A. F. J. B.

A START IN SNAPDRAGONS.

I have never grown snapdragons, but should like to try them. What temperature do they require and will they do well in partial shade? Would they grow in a house with sweet peas? Please give any information that would be helpful in growing snapdragons.

F. E. S.

Snapdragons succeed particularly well in a winter minimum temperature of 45 to 48 degrees, but could be grown with sweet peas, which should have 45 degrees until buds show and 50 degrees later. You must not attempt to grow them in even partial shade; the fullest sunlight is necessary. If you want plants for a shaded house, grow Asparagus Sprengeri and plumosus, ferns or some other foliage plants.

For successful winter flowering, shallow benches are the best, four inches of soil being sufficient. Plant out from 3-inch pots during August for flowers from October onward. These same plants will, if well cared for, bloom freely until the following July. Set the plants out 10x12 inches for winter flowering. Stake before they get too much grown. Rub off the side shoots from the flowering stems and, where too many shoots start from the base, reduce their number if fancy spikes are wanted. Either seedlings or rooted cuttings can be used. The former possess more vigor, and if you get a good strain there will be few rogues. At this time, however, I would advise buying plants of some of the winter-flowering varieties offered. Pink is far the best selling color; next to that, yellow and white. C. W.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Heliotropes.

Though some cuttings do not root easily in hot weather, there is no trouble in propagating heliotropes, and, if good plants are wanted, which will flower freely through the winter, cuttings should be put in now, potted off as soon as rooted, and later planted out in a shallow bench, or grown along in pots which can be stood on a bench where the roots can be allowed to run through. Like many other plants, heliotropes will grow freely but bloom sparsely in winter if given unlimited root run. Any left-over plants from spring sales, if potted on, plunged to their brim in coal ashes, occasionally pinched and well watered, will make fine plants for winter blooming.

Outdoor Crops.

At this season we have periods of drought, and not infrequently severe thunder storms. The latter usually are local, but every torrential rain bakes the surface soil and it is necessary to ply the cultivators as soon as possible after the surface has dried a little. It is not possible to cultivate too much; the more we stir the soil the better we conserve the moisture and the faster do the plants grow. Weeds grow apace now. Small ones are killed by persistent cultivation, but many will be found among the plants and must be pulled out by hand, and the work must be done carefully where beds or nursery rows of small seedlings are growing.

The aster beetle often is troublesome in August. Most of the aster growers will know this black and destructive pest, which soon destroys the flowers on a large bed. Hand-picking is one relief, but if a large area is infested a more radical remedy is necessary. Arsenate of lead or sprays which discolor the foliage cannot be used, but one ounce of Paris green added to twenty gallons of water will not noticeably discolor even white flowers and will clean out the beetles in short order. Even if a slight greenness shows on white flowers, it is easily removed by dipping the heads in clear, cold water.

To keep sweet peas in good condition, remove all seed pods, and on the first sign of aphis use a soap or nicotine spray. If mulched as suggested some time ago and watered where it is possible to do so, especially by some such system as the Skinner method, sweet peas can easily be flowered until the end of September.

Cut down delphiniums which have finished flowering, to insure a second crop. Remove the seed pods and faded flowers from hemerocallis, iris and other hardy perennials, and keep the borders or nursery rows constantly stirred. Take advantage of every moist spell to transplant seedlings of biennials and perennials. All of these, under good care, will make a really surprising growth before fall. Hardy perennials are an invaluable asset to every country florist, and it is well at this season to take note of such useful varieties as are not yet grown. A good plan is to look over some nursery where perennials are a specialty, but all cannot do this; therefore it is well to plant a few new varieties each season of such as are recommended as being valuable for florists.

Do not neglect the hardy roses. Remove all the seed pods from the hybrid perpetuals and hybrid teas; also be careful to pull out any Manetti and briar suckers clean. It is of no use to chop off the tops, as that merely aggravates the evil. The hybrid teas now are fine. A mulch of cow manure and some water is of wonderful benefit to them. After rambler roses have flowered, cut out just above the ground the canes which have flowered and give the young shoots coming from the base every chance to develop. This may seem like radical treatment, but it will be found far the best in the end.

THE WOMEN YOU MEET

MRS. CHARLES H. MAYNARD.

WHEN a great national honor is conferred on a member of the trade, the luster of the honor is reflected on the trade as a whole; hence the florists of the entire country will share in the evident pride with which a Detroit newspaper makes this announcement: "A Detroit woman, Mrs. Charles H. Maynard, bears the distinction of being the only woman in the United States to serve on the advisory committee of the board of horticulture of the Panama-Pacific Exposition. The honor comes to Mrs. Maynard by virtue of her being secretary of the Ladies' Society of American Florists. The secretaries of the national floral societies have been asked to serve on the committee. Although her duties have not yet been designated, Mrs. Maynard expects to serve as a judge of horticultural exhibits." Mrs. Maynard was one of the founders of the Ladies' S. A. F. and has been its secretary since its organization.

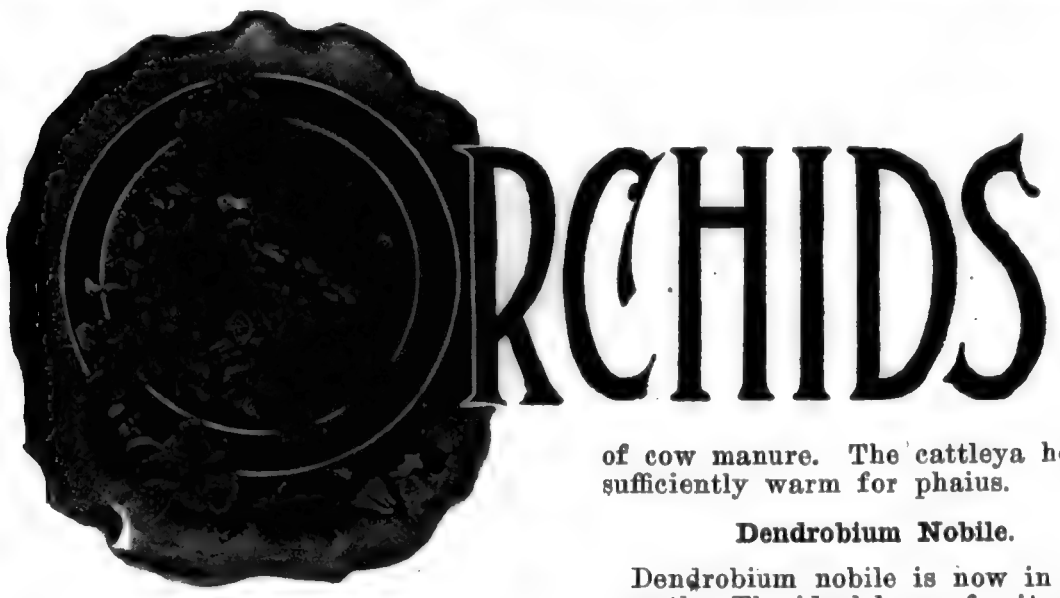
TWO TANK QUERIES.

Our water pressure is only about eight pounds, owing to the lowness of the tank. How can we increase it to forty pounds with the least cost and the least expense for up-keep? We have a gasoline engine.

Please describe the best way to make a liquid manure tank, the method of mixing, etc. G. H. H.

Unless it is possible to install an elevated tank, the most satisfactory method of securing a water pressure of forty pounds will be to put in a pneumatic system with a pressure tank and pump, the latter to be operated by the gasoline engine. This would last for many years with little expense for maintenance. Its operation would be simple, and even with a small tank a good pressure could be obtained for a limited amount of watering without starting the engine.

A cheaper method of securing a better water pressure would be to use the engine in connection with a force pump to which a good-sized air chamber is attached. This would, of course, require a relief valve and would not be available for watering except when the engine was running, but the present system would perhaps answer when only a small amount of watering is to be done.



The size of the tank for manure water will depend upon the amount of watering to be done. For a small establishment, one having a width of four to six feet and a length of from ten to sixteen feet would suffice. The usual depth is from three to five feet, and it will be most convenient to operate if it is so located that about one-half of it is above ground. In excavating, it is well to plan to use the earth wall as a part, at least, of the outer form. The inner form should be set so as to allow for a thickness of wall varying from four to six inches, according to the size of the tank. If it is to be erected outdoors, the inner surface of the wall should be battered at least one inch to the foot.

For making the concrete, use one part of cement, two parts of sharp sand and four parts of gravel; if bank-run gravel is to be used, one part of cement and four and one-half parts of gravel will be about right. After thoroughly mixing the cement and gravel, add water enough to make a "wet mix," and after making sure that every part is wet down, pour it into the molds. As soon as the concrete is sufficiently set, remove the form and lay the bottom, making it four to six inches thick.

To make the pit waterproof, make a thick wash of neat cement and apply a coat to the inside, using a brush.

About two feet from one end of the pit put in a partition of concrete running to the top, and in this set an inverted sewer-pipe trap close to the bottom; in fact, it is a good plan to have a small pit on each side of the partition where the tile is to be placed, so that the water will drain off through the trap, which is really an inverted U-shaped siphon. The bottom of the main pit should slope towards the partition, and the level of the floor in the small pit should be at least six inches lower than that of the main part.

Hen manure, sheep manure, cow and horse manure are valuable for liquid manure in the order named. When the two first mentioned are used it is a good plan to mix them with either cow or horse manure at the rate of one part to four. Fill the tank half full and then fill up with water, admitting the water at the end farthest from the partition.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS.

Cœlogyne Cristata.

The growths on Cœlogyne cristata are now well advanced and the new bulbs are showing at the base. Plants that are well established will be greatly benefited by weak applications of cow manure water once a week. Spray the plants each afternoon and be sure not to make the shade over them too heavy. As fine plants as I ever saw were grown in coldframes with movable lath shades, the sashes being removed on dull days and at night.

Cattleya Labiata.

The bulbs on some plants of C. labiata now have the sheaths well developed and probably occasional flowers can be had in late August or early September. Do not shade the plants heavily. Give the plants a good light; never mind if the foliage is not a dark green, for you will always find the paler ones flower the best.

Cattleya Dowiana.

The yellow cattleyas are not so much grown commercially as other varieties. They are beautiful, but not so easy of culture as many others. They like more heat, and unless they are grown in close proximity to the glass will not flower satisfactorily. The plants never have the healthy green look of other cattleyas, but plants of a real golden hue will flower finely if given sufficient heat and not shaded too heavily.

Cattleya Seedlings.

Cattleya seedlings are now making wonderful headway, and, in order that the pots containing them may not be allowed to become too root-bound, shifts are necessary all through the summer season. Never mind if the little plants are in active growth; they will not mind any potting done carefully. In this connection be it remembered that most of these hybrids make two leads a year and should never be really rested. Chop the fern fiber and fresh sphagnum quite fine for small seedlings, and until they are of a moderate size a considerable number can be grown together in each pot. These seedlings enjoy a warmer and closer house than plants of flowering size.

Phaius.

In common with calanthes, phaius are now in active growth. Like calanthes, they succeed better in fibrous loam and cow manure than in fern fiber. They also appreciate occasional weak doses of cow manure. The cattleya house is sufficiently warm for phaius.

Dendrobium Nobile.

Dendrobium nobile is now in active growth. The ideal house for it, at this season, is a small one which can be closed early after spraying the plants and saturating the floors. A crack of air, however, can be given in the evening, especially as the growths become quite large. Dendrobes revel in a brisk, moist heat while growing, and, like calanthes, are really benefited by a little fire heat on cool nights, even in July and August.

Dendrobium Wardianum.

Dendrobium Wardianum completes its pseudo-bulbs earlier than nobile and its hybrids. Do not keep it too long in strong heat; move it to a cooler and airier house, where the growths can gradually be ripened up. If kept hot and moist too long there is danger of second growths starting up, which are not wanted.

Oncidium Varicosum Rogersii.

Oncidium varicosum Rogersii is easily the most useful and showy of all the commercial oncidiums. Its long sprays are indispensable in groups at the fall exhibitions, and it is an orchid we could ill spare. Spikes are now pushing up on many bulbs. Snails are fond of them, and it is wise to wrap a piece of cotton-wool at the base of each as a protection against these marauders. This oncidium does not need a warm house; the cooler end of a cattleya house answers admirably for it.

Odontoglossum Crispum.

Summer is a hard time for Odontoglossum crispum. All we can do is to keep the house containing them as cool as possible and leave abundant ventilation on at night. Spray the plants once a day, but in extremely hot weather it is better to keep them a little on the dry side. The flowering season is practically over, but carefully protect any flower spikes with cotton-wool, or shell snails will soon destroy them.

Vanda Cœrulea.

Some spikes should now be showing on Vanda cœrulea, one of the most exquisite orchids of a blue shade. Give the plants a good light and, if the moss on the surface of the pots is not fresh, give a top-dressing of live sphagnum. This not only improves the looks of the plants, but they seem to grow better after being so treated.

Vanda Teres.

How to make Vanda teres flower satisfactorily has puzzled the brain of many a good grower. Anyone can grow it luxuriantly, but few get more than an occasional spike from it. This is a sun-loving orchid, and no one will ever succeed in flowering it well unless it is given almost full sunshine through the summer. Any shade must be quite light or it will be harmful.

SWEET PEAS FAIL TO OPEN.

What is the cause of outdoor sweet peas not opening after the buds become fully developed? The vines average five feet in height and are planted in rows three feet apart. They seem to be healthy, having no blight, and they are free from insects. They have been well watered and have about two inches of mulch between the rows. The stems are good and the buds develop, but fail to open. Any information will be greatly appreciated. L. G.

This is by no means an unusual condition with outdoor sweet peas. Unfavorable weather is the real cause of it. A spell of dark, damp weather closely following clear, warm conditions will often cause many flowers not to open. If your plants are clean and healthy, and well watered and mulched, they will soon improve when you get clearer skies and more satisfactory growing conditions. C. W.

ORIGIN OF WINTER SWEET PEA.

As Told by A. C. Zvolanek.

The following account of the rapid development of the sweet pea, from its original outdoor form to its latest commercial type, known as the winter orchid-flowering, is reprinted from the booklet on "Commercial Sweet Pea Culture," recently published by A. C. Zvolanek. There are many readers who will not be willing to accord to Mr. Zvolanek all the credit that he claims in this connection, but even those who most emphatically disagree with him cannot fail to be interested in his version of the story. He says:

"The first sweet peas of which I have any recollection were in the public school garden of my native town, Krucemburg, Bohemia. I attended this school between the years 1870 and 1876. The principal of the school was a great student of horticulture, and was noted far and wide as a collector of anything new or rare in the plant line. The sweet pea at that time was rare, but there were already about ten or twelve distinct varieties in this garden, and all occupied a prominent place.

"This was where I learned to love this noble flower; and in any spare time after school hours I used to go with my teacher to help him work among the flowers.

First Attempts in Winter Culture.

"After leaving the public school, in 1876, I became a florist in Vienna. Carrying some of the seed of each variety with me to my new place, I asked the manager of the greenhouse where I worked whether there was any possibility of growing sweet peas in the greenhouse during the winter. He agreed to try the plan with me. Part of the seeds we planted in pots and transplanted into the greenhouse in October; the rest were planted in cool frames. Notwithstanding the special care given them, the plants grew during the winter to be over thirty feet high, but not a single blossom appeared until late in April. The only ones with which we had any success were those planted in cool frames during December. These blossomed sooner than those in the greenhouse, and as the flowers sold well, the experiment was successful to a certain extent.

"However, I was not yet satisfied. My idea was to get the flowers to bloom earlier. To accomplish this, I realized that I must pollinate the sweet pea with some other flower which bloomed early in winter; so I began to work along this plan.

First Work in Hybridizing.

"After several years of experimenting, I found a common table pea, and a common vetch, which is largely grown for fodder purposes in Europe, among the sweet pea rows, which had begun to bloom in winter. I at once began to pollinate these with the sweet peas. These crosses were carefully labeled and kept separate from the other seed. After sowing this seed I noticed, to my disappointment, that these plants bloomed no earlier than any others. Several new colors and new hybrids were all I found. I selected the best seed to sow the next year. Sowing this seed the next year, I noticed that, notwithstanding the fact that only sweet pea seed had been sown, there were several vetches among the plants of this second generation. This led me to the discovery that the sweet pea may go back to the vetch after several generations. As the vetch hybrids were slightly different from the original vetch in color and foliage, I carefully

The Market.

There has been little change in the cut flower market since the last report. Asters of poor quality are in evidence by the thousand and are sold for low prices. Up to the present, only a few good asters have found their way to the local market. Roses continue poor in quality and are not especially plentiful; white ones are in greatest demand. There is a shortage of good gladioli in the better grades of America and light colors, but reds and low-grade stock can be had at almost any price. Valley continues low in price, owing to the poor demand, but a good supply is on hand. Carnations are about over for the season and only a few poor ones are coming in. There is a sufficient demand for lilies to take up the entire supply at good prices. A few early dahlias arrived in the market, but the stems were short and only low prices were realized. Green goods sold well and the wholesale houses were cleaned out, but are assured of a good supply from local growers for some time to come.

During the last week the weather has been exceptionally cool for this season of the year; on some nights during the week the temperature fell to 50 degrees, something unusual for this locality.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Harry J. Quick was operated on for appendicitis at St. Joseph's hospital, July 29, and at this writing is doing as well as can be expected.

F. A. Seidlich, of Woodlawn, had some of the first cosmos seen this season at his stall in Lexington market August 1.

A large amount of funeral work for the A. S. Ahell funeral kept a number of florists busy last week. John Cook and William J. Halliday both furnished a number of floral tokens.

The next regular meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club will be held at the club rooms August 10. As this is the last meeting before the S. A. F. convention, it is hoped a large crowd of members will turn out.

William McKissick, manager of the local branch of the Leo Niessen Co., left August 1, accompanied by Mrs. McKissick, for a two weeks' stay at Wildwood, N. J., after a few days' stop in Philadelphia. During Mr. McKissick's absence, Louis Glick will be in charge of the business.

James Glass has a fine lot of ferns, mostly Bostons, of which some good specimens were seen on his stall in Lexington market on Saturday, August 1.

Richard Vincent states that all arrangements for the Baltimore-to-Boston trip by boat are practically complete and that the number of members going from this city will exceed expectations. A most enjoyable time will be spent, as almost the entire boat will be occupied by the florists from this and other cities. A stop-over in Norfolk, Va., is planned for August 15. The boat leaves this city August 14, at 6 p. m., and will stop one day in Norfolk, leaving there at 6 p. m. on Saturday and arriving in Boston on Monday, August 17, at 10 a. m. There are a few berths left and anyone contemplating going by this route would do well to secure one at once. The fare from this city is $15 one way and $25 for the round trip. This includes berths and meals for the entire trip. The majority are going by this route, but will return by different routes. Some will come directly back by rail; others are planning side trips and stop-overs at points of interest on the way. W. F. E.

NEW YORK TO WASHINGTON.

The week's automobile trip from New York to Washington, D. C., and return made recently by J. K. Allen, the New York wholesaler, and his friends, William Thurston and A. B. D. Snyder, was pronounced a most enjoyable one by all three, and they point to the accompanying illustration to prove it. This view does not show them as at all hilarious, but perhaps that is because they were on the public streets of Wilmington, Del., at the time. At any rate, they paid no fines and did not get stuck in the mud. The sights on the road and near Washington were worth seeing, and the ride delightful, reports Mr. Allen.

OBITUARY

Henry Schlaack.

Henry Schlaack, one of the oldest florists at Elgin, Ill., died July 22 at the age of 68, at the home of Mrs. Mary Stamm, where he had resided for fourteen years. Mr. Schlaack was born in Germany December 27, 1846. For the last forty years he had resided in Elgin. He was for a time gardener for Borden's Condensed Milk Co. Later he opened a small greenhouse on Water street and had such success in business for himself that he established a larger range, at Spring and Franklin streets. Several years ago he was elected collector of the city of Elgin. The funeral was held July 24 at undertaking parlors in Elgin, and burial was at Bluff City.

Alexander McKerichar.

Following an illness of only one week, Alexander McKerichar, who for the last thirty-three years has been superintendent of Glenwood cemetery, at Washington, D. C., died at his home, on the cemetery grounds, at the age of 83. Death is said to have resulted from a general breakdown brought about by the intense heat and the recent death of his brother in Canada at the age of 85.

Born in Perthshire, Scotland, August 4, 1831, he began an apprenticeship on the estate of the Duke of Athole, at Dunkeld, Scotland, in 1847. In June, 1851, he came to this country and obtained a position with Robert Steele, at Winchester, Va., as foreman in his nurseries. In June, 1854, he went to Washington and obtained a position at the United States Botanical Gardens, under William Breckenridge, and continued there under the late William R. Smith until June of the next year, when he accepted a position as foreman of the gardens of the President of the United States. After seven or eight years he was appointed superintendent of the gardens and grounds. This work continued until in May, 1875, he went into business for himself in Alexandria, Va., as a florist and nurseryman. In February, 1881, he accepted the position of superintendent of the cemetery.

He was one of the most prominent Masons in Washington and had attained the thirty-third degree in Masonry. He became a master Mason in Lebanon Lodge in 1873, and held membership in many branches of the order.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

A meeting of the board of directors will be held in Boston, Mass., at 9:00 a. m. Thursday, August 20. All members who are in attendance at the S. A. F. convention are invited to meet with the board.

S. J. Goddard, Pres.
A. F. J. Baur, Sec'y.

Horseheads, N. Y.—Earl Shults has let the contract for a semi-iron-frame greenhouse, 18 x 50 feet, to the King Construction Co. and expects to grow cut flowers in addition to potted plants. He started four years ago with a single house, 10 x 40; later added one, 10 x 50, and will soon have a third.

The Convention Program

THE PROGRAM of the thirtieth annual convention of the Society of American Florists, to be held in Boston, Mass., beginning August 18, has been planned again to occupy the customary length of four days, after the trial of a longer program last year. The business sessions will take up the whole of the first three days, while Friday, August 21, will be given over to an outing, in the charge of the horticultural interests of Boston. The opening session of the society will be called to order at 2 p. m. Tuesday, allowing visitors all of the forenoon to make any necessary arrangements and get used to their surroundings.

As the judges for the trade exhibition, the following have been appointed: For sections A, B and F, M. A. Patten, Tewksbury, Mass.; William Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., and John R. Fotheringham, Tarrytown, N. Y.; for sections C and D, Wm. H. Siebrecht, Sr., Chappaqua, N. Y.; Joseph A. Manda, West Orange, N. J., and Frank H. Traendly, New York city; for sections E and G, Thomas F. Galvin, Boston, Mass.; Wm. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y., and Olaf J. Olson, St. Paul, Minn. The following have been appointed judges of the convention garden: Robert Cameron, Cambridge, Mass.; J. F. Huss, Hartford, Conn.; Harry A. Bunyard, New York city; Gustav X. Amrhyn, superintendent of parks, New Haven, Conn., and John N. Champion, New Haven, Conn.

Affiliation—Special Report of Board of Directors.

At the morning session of Friday, August 22, of the Minneapolis convention the following recommendation of the board of directors was adopted:

"That the fee for members of any regular florists' clubs who wish to join the S. A. F. as a body will be reduced to $3 for the first year and the annual dues thereafter to be $2 per year for each member thereof. These dues must be paid to the S. A. F. by the treasurer of each club and not by the members individually, and we further recommend that our constitution and by-laws be amended to comply with this recommendation."

At the meeting of the board of directors, held in Boston, March 17 and 18, 1914, the matter of affiliation was again thoroughly discussed by the full board, with the result that the recommendation was considered to be rather indefinite. It was therefore voted that a special committee of three be appointed to work out a definite plan of affiliation, the same to be presented as an amendment to the constitution and by-laws. The committee, consisting of George Asmus, chairman, Wm. F. Kasting and J. J. Hess, ultimately submitted the following amendment, which has been approved and is now recommended for adoption by the board of directors in place of the recommendation offered at Minneapolis:

Amendment to Paragraph (b) of Section 2 of Article II.

1. That clubs, societies or kindred organizations of professional florists, gardeners and horticulturists, having a paid-up membership of 100 or more members in the S. A. F., shall be entitled to one representative on the board of directors of the S. A. F.
2. Such representative shall be the president of such organization and must be a member of the S. A. F.
3. Any elective officer or appointed director of the S. A. F. shall not be eligible as a representative of such organization.
4. When the president of any such organization is already a director, the vice-president shall be eligible for the office.
5. Any organization applying for representation shall submit to the secretary of the S. A. F. a complete list of its membership. It shall be the secretary's duty to confirm same and submit it to the president for final confirmation. Such a list shall be in the hands of the secretary by December 1 of each year. Announcement of such director shall be made by the president-elect on January 1 of each year.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

THE STANDARD FLOWER POT.

[By J. G. Whilldin.]

Rumors of a movement on hand to have the standard flower pots changed from the present standard shapes adopted at the convention of the Society of American Florists at Boston, Mass., August 21, 1890, have reached the ears of the pottery trade, and their immediate reply is, "Standardize the jardinieres." Our product was standardized in 1890. Rumor has it that some few retailers object to the present style of standard rimmed pots and they suggest a return to the smaller rim, similar in design to the old-style hand-made pots of uncertain dimension, simply because one or more of their customers may have a pet jardiniere in which they find it hard or impossible to insert a standard rimmed pot without the rim showing.

The jardiniere makers are continually at work designing and making new patterns in regular and odd shapes in limited quantities, which are soon discarded, and they seemingly pay little attention to the size of the opening in its relation to the depth of the vessel, while a few thoughts directed to that end would clear up at once any objection to the use of standard flower pots as made at present. The potteries, to keep up with the newest design of jardinieres, would have to be continually changing the size and shape of their pots to correspond to the changing designs of jardinieres, and there would soon be no use for the standard shapes, as there would be none made.

Advantages of Present Standard.

To return to the old style would not remove the objections of the retailers, but the same difficulty would occur, as the old-style pot was proportionally thicker at the top and possibly thicker around the rim than the present pot with rim, and would still bind before reaching the bottom of the jardinieres.

In olden days, long before the adoption of the present standard pots, the pottery salesman would sell pots to one florist for 5-inch and possibly the next customer would buy the same pot for a 6-inch; then again, a florist would advertise 6-inch stock, which, upon arrival at its destination, would go into the buyer's 5-inch pots. These conditions were the same in every section of the country, and when the Society of American Florists adopted and standardized the flower pots they did more for the trade in general than any other convention up to that time, and possibly since.

Practical potters tell us they would prefer a smaller rim, as then they could place more pots in their kilns and less room would be occupied in storage per thousand pots, but this would necessitate a smaller diameter at the bottom, and therefore less room for the soil so much desired by the grower, and it is only by the present system of nesting or stacking pots that the price is kept at the present low price.

Trouble for Supply Houses.

The basket maker gets a standard pot, azalea or bulb pan when he wants to make a new design, and his baskets are formed over the size of pot or pan to be used, thereby preventing the use of those words so apt to spring from our lips when things go wrong.

The supply houses have on hand figures or samples of the most-used sizes of standard flower pots, and whenever a novelty is offered to them their first inquiry is, "Does it fit the standard flower pot?"

Along with the potters' cry of "Standardize the jardinieres" should be coupled the fern-dishers' protest, and every retailer knows his troubles in the past, when, by hammer, chisel and saw he has tried to cut down a pot or pan to fit a liner to some odd size of fern dish, or has called upon some tinsmith to make a liner of zinc or tin.

Any standard flower pot manufacturer would gladly furnish the jardiniere and fern dish makers any information regarding dimensions, etc., of their product.

AFFILIATION FOR CO-OPERATION.

[By Adolph Farenwald.]

I think enough has happened this last year in horticulture to bring affiliation closer home to most branches of the trade. Anybody who has eyes to see and ears to hear can understand the sign of the times, the need for combined effort to give us and to hold the rights in our profession, a profession which does so much for better life and better citizenship. Our whole great country is afire against the ravages of rum. Let us help in a more sensible way than the many misdirected efforts, by building up the home ties and taste, the love for flowers and plants and trees. That branch of education rests with us.

So that we can all do our best, no matter what branch we are in, we must not be hampered by unjust legislation, by dishonest and greedy competition. We should be on the same footing all over the country, honest seeds and trees and plants and flowers. No sliding scales. Neither wealth, nor position, nor ignorance should be a factor in any sale. Integrity should be written all over our great profession, all its branches, absolute and always. If we want to be educators, we must be honest to ourselves and to the public. No Burbankism will stand the acid test of the public for any length of time.

Common Understanding Needed.

To do this, we must get closer together, so that we can understand one another's wants and needs better. Brains, applied science and common sense should soon make us independent of Dutch and French bulbs, English roses and nursery stock, and German seeds. In our great country we should and would be able to find climate and soils for all purposes. But such enterprises must be helped from some central point, where tests and records can be made and kept, and so stimulate this enterprise from one common source. It takes a staff of able men to take care of all problems of horticulture so that scientific and practical methods can be applied to all branches needing this help and protection. As we grow, so must our problems grow towards the public. Constructive foresight is a great asset. Let us make it in time. I again appeal to your loyalty and common sense to help and uplift your chosen profession. Everyone should desire to see horticulture shoulder to shoulder with other enterprises. At the present time it is not.

The verdict against the growers of flowers and plants in Ohio a month or so ago, taxing greenhouse products as personal property, is the straw that shows how the wind blows. The public in general thinks the florists and those engaged in allied branches are making money by the barrel; therefore make them pay taxes. What is a law now in Ohio will possibly soon be tried in other states, such as Illinois, New York and Pennsylvania. We must not lose sight of the good will of the people.

It was an ugly blow to our seed merchants when the government gave its contract for seed to English firms. It seems as if the integrity of the home merchant were doubted. What is our seed trade going to do about it? If responsible firms did not care to take the orders the government had to give, on account of their agitation against free seed, they seem to have made a mistake. They forgot the public. Foreign seedsmen will make the most out of it and advertise it widely, and the public here will wonder, why did Uncle Sam do it? It leaves the door wide open to all kinds of harmful conjectures. Watchful waiting does not seem to have done, as far as the seedsman's troubles are concerned.

In Union Is Strength.

A union of horticultural interests would put a different aspect on this feature. The seedsmen could not make a wiser move, and for that matter all other branches of horticulture, than to join hands with the S. A. F. as a society. This great society is broad in scope, and it has charters made to suit exactly these purposes. The time is here to combine; team work is what is needed. Horticulture does not produce multi-millionaires; our means are all moderate; so as individuals we do not amount to much, but we are strong in numbers. If we could only forget for once our special interests and feel more as a horticulturist in the broadest sense of the word, we would then soon get together on a basis of mutual benefit. Of course, in numbers is where our power will be. Horticulture united will put everybody on a higher plane of life, from the humble private gardener to the most exalted position in horticulture.

All who go to Boston will have a chance to vote affiliation either one way or the other. Other members who cannot be there and think favorably of affiliation, please send me a letter with just these words: "I am in favor of affiliation"—and your name. I will make the most of it. This holds good of any man in business, in any branch of horticulture, whether nurseryman, seedsman or private gardener—send me just those few words. The stronger the effort, the quicker the results. You don't need to be a member of the S. A. F. to show your sentiments toward affiliation. It may turn out to be the straw to show how the wind blows. Do it now.

SECRETARY'S ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Meeting of Chrysanthemum Society.

The Chrysanthemum Society of America will hold a meeting in the Paul Revere hall, Mechanics building, Boston, 9:30 a. m., Wednesday, August 19, 1914, the second day of the convention. This announcement should have been included in the program mailed to all members some time ago.

Department of Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that Vaughan's Seed Store, 31 West Randolph street, Chicago, Ill., offers for registration the new sweet pea, Christmas orchid-flowered Selma Swenson. Any person objecting to the registration, or to the use of the proposed name, is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from this date. Raiser's description: Variety originated by G. Swenson, Elmhurst, Ill.; color, a light, soft, clear pink, for greenhouse forcing; name, Selma Swenson.

CHICAGO TO BOSTON.

Members of the trade west, north or southwest of Chicago will use the Lake Shore-New York Central route to the Boston convention of the S. A. F. Following the action of the Chicago Florists' Club, at its March meeting, instructing its transportation committee to select this route, it has been arranged that President Wirth, of the S. A. F., will leave Chicago, Sunday evening, August 16, on a special train over the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad, La Salle street station, at 8 p. m., with the Chicago Florists' Club and others desirous of joining the convention party on the President's Special. This train is due at Niagara Falls Monday noon at 12:04 o'clock and several hours will be spent there, the party leaving again at 3:50 p. m. the same day and due in Boston Tuesday, August 18, at 7:05 a. m. The fare from Chicago to Boston and return is $30, good for thirty days; berths Chicago to Boston, one way, lower, $5.50; upper, $4.40. The foregoing rates apply only to Boston and return. Many extended tours and side trips may be arranged returning on application to local transportation agents at equally low rates, including New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Thousand Islands, Hudson river, etc.

All members of the S. A. F. and their friends from points north, west and south of Chicago, who wish to join the president's party at Chicago, should secure tickets reading over the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad and New York Central, Chicago to Boston and return.

Reservations will be made on application to G. K. Thompson, 100 South Clark street, Chicago, Ill., who will cheerfully supply all other information regarding this trip.

NEW YORK TO BOSTON.

The New York Florists' Club, on its annual trip to the convention, will travel to Boston by the magnificent steamers of the Metropolitan Steamship Co., the all-water route, leaving New York from Pier 18, North river, foot of Murray street, at 5 p. m. Monday, August 17. The steamers Massachusetts and Bunker Hill are noted for their superb service and accommodations. Traffic in August is heavy, and your committee, in order to properly take care of members and friends of the club, has reserved 100 staterooms on the steamship Massachusetts, sailing on this date. These rooms will be held up to ten days of the date of sailing, after which time the committee cannot guarantee accommodations. Single fares, $4. Price of berths extra, as follows: Two-berth stateroom, outside, $2; inside, with electric fan, $1. The transportation committee earnestly requests that reservation be made as soon as possible, in order that proper provision may be made for the comfort and entertainment of the members and guests of the club. All applications for reservations must be accompanied by check or money order in payment of the same, and made payable to Frank H. Traendly, chairman transportation committee, 131 West Twenty-eighth street, New York.

CALL TO DAHLIA GROWERS.

Maurice Fuld, who is known in connection with previous attempts to organize dahlia growers, requests the publication of the following notice over his signature:

An invitation is extended to every lover of dahlias to meet at a formal gathering of all American dahlia enthusiasts at Newport, R. I., on August 13, 1914, for the purpose of organizing the American Dahlia Society.

This society will be founded for the purpose of promoting the interest of the dahlia. It will endeavor to further its progress, establish a clear classification, encourage more public exhibitions and, last but not least, it will disseminate useful and helpful information at regular intervals to its members.

The meeting will take place at 8 p. m., August 13, in the Weaver building, Broadway, Newport, R. I. August 13 is the first day of the combined flower shows given at Belcourt, Newport, R. I., and the exhibits of dahlias here will certainly be an attraction worth while for all dahlia lovers to undertake the trip to Newport.

Come and help in a worthy cause.

Maurice Fuld.

Convention City Hotels

THE hotel committee for the Boston convention has sent out a circular letter containing the list of hotels which is here appended, with prices and other particulars. The committee has made comprehensive arrangements and in most cases can hold reservations until August 15. It will be best to write direct to the hotel for reservations, but the committee suggests that intending visitors send duplicate announcements to the office of the general secretary, 120 Boylston street, Boston, Room 702, as a record, as it is the desire to help members in every way. Besides the hotels below, there are a number of other excellent family hotels in the vicinity of the garden and hall and innumerable first-class furnished rooming houses and reasonably priced restaurants.

People intending to stay at Back Bay hotels, the Somerset, Nottingham, Thorndike, Westminster, Lenox, Victoria, Canterbury, Hemingway, Vendome or Carleton, or to look for furnished rooms, should leave trains via N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. and Boston & Albany R. R. at the Back Bay stations of the roads, all others at the South Station terminal. Patrick Welch, 226 Devonshire street, Boston, is chairman of the hotel committee.

The Copley Plaza hotel, in Copley Square, has been chosen as official headquarters of the convention. It is one block from the Back Bay and Huntington avenue railroad stations. To reach this hotel, leave the train at the Back Bay station. Check your baggage to the Back Bay and Huntington avenue stations, as it will be transferred to and from the hotel without charge.

In order that there be no confusion, Mr. Welch wishes to call special attention to the similarity of the names Copley Plaza, Copley Square, and Plaza. In making reservations, be careful to address the hotel you have in mind.

NEWS, NOTES AND COMMENTS

Fair Haven, Mass.—Peter Murray is adding one house, 30x150, and two others for bedding plants. He is also making other improvements in his range.

St. Louis, Mo.—Julius A. Wolff, son of the Philadelphia florist, was married at Clayton July 29 to Miss Marjorie I. Adams. The bride and bridegroom are on their way east to visit the parents of the bridegroom.

Lawrence, Mass.—Thornton Bros. are now established in their new store in the Oswald block. The building is a new one, in the heart of the business district, and the store was fitted up especially for this firm's business. The display window is kept up to the minute by an experienced decorator.

Greeley, Colo.—Miss Helen Peery, bookkeeper and saleslady for Ellis the Florist, is spending her three weeks' vacation in the Rocky mountains with her sister. Charles Swagyer, in business at Cheyenne, Wyo., spent Friday, July 24, with Mr. Ellis.

Mamaroneck, N. Y.—The annual outing of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society will be held at Edwards' Rye Beach hotel, August 11. Games start at 10:30 a. m. Dinner tickets can be obtained from W. J. Sealey, Portchester, N. Y., at $1.50 a person. The fall show of this society will be held in Germania hall, New Rochelle, N. Y., November 4 to 6.

Charlevoix, Mich.—B. B. Blair has retired from business, having sold his establishment to Babcock & Son. Mr. Blair has been in business here for fourteen years and built up a good business. The property just sold includes six greenhouses, comprising 14,000 feet of glass, and a good-sized tract of land used for perennials, etc.

Moscow, Idaho.—Scott Bros., proprietors of the Roselawn Greenhouses, are putting in a 50-horse-power boiler and building a propagating house, 9x 125 feet. Carnations and chrysanthemums are all benched and stock is looking fine. Edwin G. Scott recently returned from a ten days' visit on the coast. He witnessed the rose carnival at Portland and called on growers and retailers in that city and in Seattle and Tacoma.

Rockville Center, N. Y.—George T. Schuneman has completed the new house 65x300 of Hitchings iron-frame construction, and is as proud as a boy with a new toy. The house has nine feet of glass in the side walls and is to be used for the new winter-blooming Spencer sweet peas. Mr. Schuneman began business in 1888 and soon established a reputation as a violet specialist. As the violet lost marketability he turned to winter sweet peas and had equal success.

Taunton, Mass.—A. R. Field, of North Taunton, is putting a 60-foot addition on his greenhouse and making extensive repairs.

Hawk, N. C.—Aaron Buchanan is building a frost-proof structure 18x30 and eight feet high, with stone and concrete walls sixteen inches thick, for the storage of evergreens.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Freyling & Mendels, who established their business in 1875 but incorporated in 1913 as the Wealthy Avenue Floral Co., are building a show house 22x65.

Judge the Tree by Its Fruit

All you need to do to sell stock is to have the goods, make the price right and then put it all in The Review, and bingo!—she's sold.—Lampert Floral Co., Xenia, O., July 21, 1914.

Cedar Falls, Ia.—The company which was recently organized to grow roses here on a large scale, under the managership of George Bancroft, has merged with the firm of Joseph Bancroft & Son, and the business of the two concerns will be placed in the hands of George Bancroft, who for many years was connected with the latter firm.

Thorsby, Ala.—On account of the great demand for their stock last season, Howard Bros. are erecting another greenhouse this summer, the material for which is being furnished by the John C. Moninger Co., of Chicago. This is the fourth house in their range, all of which are devoted exclusively to growing carnations for the wholesale trade. The carnation plants are looking fine, although the weather has been hot and dry during the last two months. Howard Bros. are waiting for rain to begin housing the plants.

New Bedford, Mass.—Post & Gray, who have succeeded to the Woodhouse greenhouses, are getting nicely into shape for fall business.

Fall River, Mass.—Mrs. T. W. Lawton, the pioneer lady florist, is yet active in business. The houses are being overhauled for fall planting. Crego asters are quite satisfactory.

Westerly, R. I.—S. J. Reuter & Son, Inc., states that an order has been given the King Construction Co., North Tonawanda, N. Y., for material for a house 42x175, flat rafter construction. This is the only building the Reuter concern will do this season.

Shenandoah, Ia.—The Stevens Floral Co. will build three greenhouses, 25x100, and a display room on the lot between the Central hotel and the Carnegie library, which was purchased last week for $6,000. The house now on the lot will be moved early in August and building begun.

Tarrytown, N. Y.—The annual outing of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society took place August 4 at Rye Beach, N. Y., shore dinner at Edwards' Beach Hill hotel. This is always a pleasant gathering of the members and friends of the society, and the 1914 affair was no exception to the rule.

Columbus, O.—Sealed bids for the construction of a greenhouse at Ohio State University, in accordance with plans and specifications prepared by Joseph N. Bradford, university architect, will be received at the office of the board of trustees until noon Monday, August 17. Proposals include the materials and erection.

Creston, Ia.—The Creston Greenhouses & Floral Co., of which Carl Gehrecke is the proprietor, is adding a large house this year, which comprises as many feet of glass as the three houses which the company built during 1912 and 1913. This serves to indicate, Mr. Gehrecke believes, how rapidly a business may grow in this short time in a small town, even in the face of strong competition.

Lincoln, Ill.—By the time the firm of Gullett & Sons celebrates its fiftieth anniversary next year, the addition of a new range to take care of their wholesale business will have been completed. The retail business will be conducted at the present establishment, at Tremont and Logan streets, and on the five acres of the firm near Tremont and Sherman streets the new range will be erected. July 6 Gullett & Sons purchased two blocks in the Mayfield addition, which has already been surveyed for building and the location of the boiler rooms. The city council has been petitioned to vacate that part of the Gullett property which has been platted but never used for building purposes.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.
Officers for 1914: President, Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis; vice-president, Patrick Welch, Boston; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.
Thirtieth annual convention, Boston, Mass., August 18 to 21, 1914.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

WAR, or no war, this week's issue of The Review, a regular edition, all in the day's work, eats up 8,932 pounds of white paper—practically four and one-half tons.

C. W. JOHNSON, Morgan Park, Ill., secretary of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, has mailed to members the annual volume containing the report of the 1913 convention, lists of American and European varieties disseminated in the year, tabular record of the work of the seedling committees published in The Review from week to week during the season, list of members, scales for judging, and other data.

YOU can say the summer is over. And that it has been a not half bad summer. With the arrival of August the greenhouse men are finishing the work of getting planted and snugged up for the new season, and the store men are busy with redecorating and the purchase of fixtures and requisites against the reawakening of the retail demand. Conditions might be better than they are today, but, for florists, they might be far worse.

WAR AND THE TRADE.

What effect will the European war have on the business of florists in the United States? The probability is that general business in this country will be good so long as the big exporting nations of Europe are occupied with more urgent matters, and there never has been a time when florists did not get their opportunity to handle their part of whatever money general business activity put in circulation.

But the effect of the war will be direct and quickly apparent in the matter of the supply of such trade articles as are imported. A large part of our florists' supplies come from Germany and France. For the present these imports are suspended and there is no prospect of the early resumption of transportation. A long conflict will mean a famine in retailers' requisites and a suspension of business for even thirty days will result in many shortages, for a large number of staple articles are brought to this country in small lots, the importers carrying no great stocks, but relying on the arrival of frequent shipments. An interruption of only a few weeks will see the present stocks cleaned up. The great quantities of material designed for the holiday trade are, for the most part, still in Europe; indeed, the French immortelles are still unharvested. A war that lasts more than a few weeks will put America on its own resources for the approaching Christmas, insofar as florists' supplies are concerned.

French bulbs are either in port or afloat. There should be no trouble on that score. But the Dutch bulbs for the most part still are in the exporters' warehouses. The call to arms has taken the young men, leaving only the old men and the women to finish cleaning and packing the crop. Then will come the question of transportation. At present the Holland-American line boats are running, but it seems impossible that the bulbs can get through on time unless the war is settled within a few days, which nobody dares hope.

The supply of valley pips now in cold storage in this country would, under normal conditions, last until December or perhaps January. By not crowding the market it will be possible to stretch the supply over another couple of months, but after that the trade will have to get along without forced valley unless England raises the blockade of Hamburg. Even if the crop now maturing can be harvested by the few hands available, it will be impossible to put the new pips afloat so long as hostilities last.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

SEVEN YEARS.

Coe, Asher M., North Olmsted, O.

THREE YEARS.

Koenig, Wm. J., Weehawken, N. J.

TWO YEARS.

Kienahs, Theo., La Crosse, Wis.
Ruble, A. D., Indianapolis, Ind.
Woerner, A., Siloam Springs, Ark.
Walker Peony Farms, Hamorton, Pa.

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The new green notice with the last copy tells the story. No bills are run up; no duns sent.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

During the last few days everyone has been too busy talking European war to have time for much business. The condition holds good in all lines; general business has been reduced by the excitement, but this is expected to wear off in a few days, when conditions will become normal.

There is no appreciable change in the market. The supply of stock is adequate; there is no scarcity in any department. Weather conditions have been unusually good, with the result that roses are of excellent quality. There has been some increase in the supply of

MILADY and KILLARNEY BRILLIANT

HERE we have two Roses that are worth the attention of all the buyers. Killarney Brilliant is the Rose that will displace Killarney, Milady the one that is ousting Richmond. Show your trade these Roses and you will have your competitor at a disadvantage. Get the Roses of us. We have a large supply. Good quality, although mostly medium stems. Also Mrs. Russell and other popular varieties.

FANCY LILIES

These are home-grown Lilies, true Giganteums, grown from perfectly healthy bulbs. They will reach you in excellent condition and make money for you. Can supply in quantity. Also can furnish Rubrums and Auratums of fine quality.

BEAUTIES

We shall be glad to keep you supplied with good summer Beauties—any length. We ALWAYS have large cuts of Beauties and you can get them here every day in the year.

VALLEY

We always have Valley—the famous Chicago Market Brand.

ORCHIDS

You can get here as many fine Cattleyas as you need.

GLADIOLI

We do not handle the mixed stock dumped on the market by growers of bulbs. Our Glads are grown by specialists who grow for cut flowers only and who start with the right varieties, grow them right, cut them right and pack them right. Plenty of America, King and Augusta.

ASTERS

We have stock that is quite out of the ordinary. Grown under irrigation, these Asters are the best in market. White, pink, lavender. Try some. You'll want more. Of course we have short Asters, too, for work.

NEW FANCY FERNS

By ordering of us you can get all the Hardy Cut Ferns you need. Our stock is good; we never ship anything but the best on the market.

Beauties as compared with last week; one or two growers are just coming in with nice crops from young plants. Stem and foliage are fine and the flowers are as large as can be expected at this time of year. Cool nights are responsible for considerable mildew in the roses of growers who are careless about ventilation and heat. The principal change in the rose market is found in increased cuts of Killarney Brilliant. This novelty has been largely planted and most growers who are trying it now are cutting more or less from the young stock. Not many are yet able to cut stems of much length, but the rose is well liked. Mrs. Russell continues the best seller, however. Shawyer is well liked by the buyers and the receipts usually are quickly picked up. Bulgarie also is popular and seldom accumulates. Milady is much more abundant than it ever has been before at this time of year, for a number of growers planted it much more heavily this year than last, when it was on probation. Unfortunately, the cut comes at a time when there is little call for red roses.

Carnations are of minor importance at present. Only a few indoor flowers now come in, but there are considerable quantities of field-grown stock. The demand is light. Instead of carnations, the buyers are asking for asters. Of these flowers there are great quantities, but the majority are extremely poor, because of the lack of rain. Really good asters are excellent property, but there is nothing in the market that is harder to move than the small, open-centered and short-stemmed stock. The daily receipts run into big quantities and some of the wholesalers are finding it impossible to clean out at any price.

The market is full of gladioli and prices are as low as they ever have been in this market, but the receipts do not prove as unwieldy as many observers had expected they would be this year. Perhaps it is the dry weather that is holding back the anticipated heavy cuts, but thus far it has been possible to sell everything of worth-while quality that has come in. True, there is a large quantity of mixed stock that has little value, but good America, King and Augusta still are selling in what should be a satisfactory fashion in view of last year's prices and the increase in plantings this year.

Easter lilies are abundant and there has been a large increase in the supply of auratums. Rubrums also continue plentiful. The orchid supply is in only a few hands, but there is an abundance of stock and prices are low, considering the fine quality. Valley is not in large supply, but is equal to the demand.

The green goods market is quiet, as it always is at this season, when cut flowers are plentiful and funeral work the chief demand.

Various Notes.

Chicago growers who use West Virginia smokeless coals and pay $2.10 freight are pleased with the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission published August 1, refusing the railroads permission to advance the rate five per cent, or 10½ cents per ton. The advance, had it been granted, would have cost a dozen or more of the larger places anywhere from $300 to $3,000 per year, and all others in proportion.

John Poehlmann says he thinks the war in Europe, should it prove prolonged, will have little effect on American florists, believing that general business will soon settle down and proceed as usual. The trade may be affected by the interruption of imports, especially of Dutch bulbs, valley pips and florists' supplies.

H. N. Bruns says he sees little prospect of getting the new crop valley pips from Hamburg at the usual time and that he has, therefore, ceased selling cold storage stock, preferring to hold the quantity now on hand until he sees where the supply for his own forcing is to be replenished.

Miss Mattie C. Lindon, daughter of Mrs. Sarah Lindon, who does business as the Temple Floral Shop, at 108 East Fifty-first street, returned August 1 from a vacation at Benton Harbor, Mich. Mrs. Lindon expects to open her new store, at 828 East Forty-seventh street, about August 15.

Charles Erne, of Erne & Klingel, says he believes that the flower business in July, while not up to the best previous record, still has been fully as good as trade in any other line and better than most.

around, now that his place is all planted up for the new season.

When Albert Amling and Mrs. Amling were last heard from they were in Switzerland, having made an automobile trip from Berlin into Italy. The letter was written July 22, and they are supposed to be back in Berlin by now.

Ollie Zech, of Zech & Mann, and Joseph Weiss, the north side retailer, returned August 1 from a fortnight's fishing trip to Tomahawk lake. They were accompanied by Mrs. Zech. Several boxes of fish preceded them.

A. C. Kohlbrand, of the E. C. Amling Co., is at Torch lake for a fortnight's fishing. A. E. Cole and wife have returned from a trip to Quebec.

C. A. Alles, with Wietor Bros., says orders received by mail August 3 cleaned up the firm's supply of young chrysanthemum stock, making the season one of the best on record. Charles Dressler is vacationing.

A. I. Simmons appeared in the market August 3, after having spent three weeks at Springfield, in camp with the National Guard. He is a captain in the commissary department.

The latest addition to the staff of the A. L. Randall Co., which grows steadily, is Joe Pollworth, formerly associated with the C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, but for the last three years engaged in another line of business. Mr. Pollworth will have charge of the department of growers' supplies. J. E. Killen represents the concern at the convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association at Toronto this week. The European war is stirring up the supply houses. Shipments from Germany already have ceased and it is expected many shortages will result. August 1 the cut flower department of the Randall Co. received a consignment of thirty-two dozen chrysanthemums, mostly Golden Glow, but including a few Smith's Advance. It was found the buyers are not keen for mums at this time of year.

The E. Wienhoeber Co. and Walter Adams, near neighbors on the north side, have not opened on Sunday since July 1. They say they do not believe any business has been lost, customers who called up Sunday without result calling again on Monday, and they expect a number of other stores will follow their example in enjoying a full day of rest on the Sabbath.

The Chicago Florists' Club is scheduled to hold its monthly meeting tonight, August 6, at the Bismarck hotel. Convention excursion preparations will be concluded.

The first rudbeckia of the season, consigned to Kennicott Bros. Co., were received July 31.

Mike Fink, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, left the store August 1 to start a two weeks' vacation and when he reached home found there a summons to appear in court August 4 to do a fortnight's jury service. Paul R. Klingsporn, with Mrs. Klingsporn, plans to attend the Boston convention and later visit their old home at Philadelphia.

Miss Charlotte Paradise, who for seven years has had charge of the books of A. L. Vaughan & Co., is enjoying a fortnight's vacation.

Winterson's Seed Store reports an excellent demand for Harrisii bulbs of the larger sizes.

Miss Marguerite K. McNulty, of Peter Reinberg's city store staff, has returned from a vacation spent at Munising, Mich., where her brother is in a school of forestry.

In the plant department of Poehlmann Bros. Co., C. G. Anderson is preparing to meet a big demand for Boston ferns, bench after bench being planted with this stock.

C. L. Washburn and Mrs. Washburn left August 3 for a three weeks' trip to Salt Lake City, Utah, and Pasadena, Cal., where they will visit E. B. Washburn and O. P. Bassett.

Fred Price, of J. A. Budlong's, is enjoying his vacation by taking short trips to nearby summer resorts.

A five-passenger Overland automobile has recently been purchased by Peter Knees, 2409 North Western avenue. Later in the season he expects to make a trip in it to Burlington, Ia.

John Welsh, Jr., 4407 Broadway, made a trip to Fox Lake, Ill., last week.

A new 24-light electric sign has been put up at the retail store of Fred Liebermann, 1609 Wells street.

Miss L. A. Tonner is enjoying renewing acquaintances on the market, through taking charge of the business of her sister, Miss Olga A. Tonner, while that indefatigable lady is vacationing at Crystal lake, in Wisconsin, in company with Miss Nettie Parker, of the Chicago Carnation Co., and other friends.

C. H. Post, with J. Pehrson, 1134 Bryn Mawr avenue, has returned from a two weeks' fishing trip at Loon lake, Mich.

the month, which is eighty per cent of the possible. The normal for July is seventy-one per cent of the possible. The temperature was slightly above normal.

Victor Young, manager for the branch store of the George Wittbold Co., at 1309 North Clark street, leaves for his vacation next week. He intends spending most of his time in Wisconsin.

With war in Europe, the supply of natural prepared foliages is expected to be reduced, if not cut off. Theodore Kirchen, manager for Oscar Leistner, reports that August 3 he booked an order for two carloads of American prepared beech sprays from a concern that heretofore has depended for its supply on European manufacturers. Mr. Kirchen says Mr. Leistner reached New York July 29 from Europe, where he had spent twelve weeks buying stock. He is calling on the trade in the east and will be in Boston during the convention, where he will exhibit Ove Gnatt's line of prepared foliage.

George Willens, of the Willens Construction Co., returned July 23 from Norfolk, Neb., where he had been superintending the construction of L. Buckendorf's new greenhouses. July 24 he left to superintend another job.

In preparation for the S. A. F. members who stop on their way through Chicago, a thorough redecoration has been made in the display rooms and offices of the Raedlein Basket Co. The complete new line is on exhibition and arrived from Germany just in time to escape being detained on account of the conditions in Europe. Curt Kindler, the secretary, is away on his vacation.

Sidney Buchbinder, of Buchbinder Bros., spent August 2 at Bluff lake, Ill., driving with his brother in the latter's machine.

One of last week's visitors at The Review office, piloted by H. H. Wilkerson, was Gerald Gibson, manager for A. M. Terrill, Ltd., of Calgary. Mr. Gibson was returning from an eastern vacation trip, visiting points of trade interest on his way in search of new ideas, particularly as to cost systems.

Fred C. Weber, Mrs. Weber and the Misses Meinhardt, of St. Louis, arrived in the city August 1, on their way east.

August 3, A. Miller, of Henderson & Co., was acting as pilot around the market for Mrs. Windmiller, of the Fred Windmiller Co., Mankato, Minn.

Edward Amerpohl, Janesville, Wis., was in town August 3. He has been an infrequent visitor of late, because of his connection with the fair in his home town.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., found appended to an order from P. M. Palez, Little Rock, Ark., a request to reserve a berth for the trip to Boston and to be sure to have it "in a car with the live ones."

of clerk. To carry on the work of the year, Congress appropriated $24,954,908.68 and for the next year the head of the department recommends increases aggregating $1,074,387.

The securing of men of the requisite training and experience in the various fields of agricultural science has been one of the serious problems which for some time have confronted the department. Two causes have tended to bring about this situation. One has been the low maximum salary which the department is permitted to pay to its scientific investigators as compared with the salaries paid by outside institutions and commercial concerns. The other has been the comparatively small number of strong, virile men who have been trained in scientific agriculture. Because of the great demand for such men in this country and abroad, the department is constantly losing men whom it ought to keep, and it is unable to find an adequate supply of just the right type of men to replace them. Under the present law the maximum salary which can be paid is $4,000. "Many of the leaders in the department," says Secretary Houston, "are men who could command salaries in many cases more than twice what they are receiving, but who remain because of their interest in the work."

Erie, Ill.—Although Erie has only about 1,000 inhabitants, C. J. Peckham, proprietor of the Erie Greenhouses, has increased his glass area from 12x60 to 28x80 in the three years he has been here, and he expects to double the size of the range next year.

Rumson, N. J.—Frank McMahon is one of the last to grow Brides and Maids, but this will probably be the last season, as they are outclassed. Dennis Martin says Killarney Brilliant, Hadley, Ophelia and Shawyer will take their place.

Sheboygan, Wis.—William F. Altman, of Manitowoc, has purchased property on North Eighth street, on which he will erect two large greenhouses. He also contemplates establishing a store in the downtown district, and expects to be ready for business by autumn.

The Market.

The supply of flowers is at low water mark. The demand is not much better; a little business, enough generally for the best stock, with difficulty to dispose of the rest. Asters are the most important flowers in the market. Some of them are extremely fine, but most of them are of medium grade. Prices are low on quantity lots where quality is not important. Gladioli are in heavy supply and it has taken special offers to find buyers for the surplus. Roses are in shorter supply, although the cool weather has helped their quality. The first new-crop Beauties have come. Easter lilies are quite scarce. There are few orchids in the market. Valley is in excess of requirements.

The Effect of the War.

The whole community has been stirred by the European war news that has come in over the cables with scant warning, spreading alarm everywhere. The immediate effect of the war on our business is marked. The great center of the florists' supply business of the country is in this city. The recalling of the ocean liners and steamships sailing from the German ports to New York has cut off the incoming supplies for the fall and winter. Cables were sent last week ordering that all goods ready be rushed off and later that these goods be shipped from a neutral port. The closing of all ports on the North sea is believed to end this chance of getting freight over for the present.

The effect of the cutting off of imports, should it continue, is of interest. There are enough goods now here in practically all lines to satisfy the immediate demand. This, of course, cannot continue, because the bulk of the imports intended for consumption at the holidays are still in Europe. The French immortelles and the Austrian statice are not yet harvested. Should war continue they probably will be lost. The quantities of dried material prepared on the other side, for wreaths and other designs, cannot be duplicated here. Baskets, on the other hand, can and will be made here just as well as abroad, though the cost will be greater. Basket-making in Europe is often done after hours at home, or when other work is slack. Wages also are low. Here the baskets are made by men who receive excellent pay for their work, work that is a regular employment for men, not an extra for the whole family.

Exactly what effect the changed conditions will have on the other supplies cannot be accurately foretold. It is certain, however, that the energy and enterprise that have made the florists' supply business what it is today will be brought to bear on the new conditions, with strong probability of a successful outcome.

Orders have been coming in more rapidly this week, due to the war scare, and they are being filled from stock now on hand. Where these orders are for scarce articles, such as immortelles, they are being filled in part only. Regular customers are given preference over those not in the habit of buying. Prices have not yet advanced, nor are they expected to do so unless conditions become more acute.

Club Meeting.

The August meeting of the Florists' Club was mainly devoted to arrangements for attending the convention. It is expected seventy-five will go from here. This includes exhibitors and their assistants.

John Clark, of Bar Harbor, Me., who happened in, addressed the meeting. After the routine business the essay committee provided entertainment and refreshment.

The Greenhouses at Wyncote.

Joseph Heacock, head of two prosperous greenhouse establishments, and filling one of the highest positions of honor and trust in the gift of his fellow citizens, rose from his desk as the office door closed. With him were his daughter, evidently in charge of the books, and John G. Esler, of Saddle River, N. J. A few words from Mr. Heacock explained that Mr. Esler's books as secretary of the Florists' Hail Association had just been compared with those of the treasurer, Mr. Heacock himself; that the auditor had gone carefuly over both, as well as the vouchers and the assets, and that they were correct. Then, with a smile, Mr. Heacock proposed a walk through the greenhouses, which was delayed for a time by Mr. Esler's enthusiastic effort to secure a convert. His facts and figures were so convincing that the prospective convert's face lost its doubtful look and caught some of the eagerness of the jolly secretary.

Theodore Shober was in command in the well-lighted service shed over the power house. Little Cocos Weddelliana from thumb pots were being packed, and kentias were being packed, while others were being potted and still others straightened for dress parade. There were kentias from last year's seed boxes, just a few still coming up, an excellent germination, Mr. Heacock said. Then there were kentias in small sizes, kentias in medium sizes, kentias in large sizes. So large and fine were the specimen kentias that walking through them was like a walk in Jamaica, Mr. Esler said, only you can transport the Wyncote kentias into your parlor or anybody else's, if you want to do so. Then there were arecas and cibotiums, fine ones, and Bostons, and a house of commercial orchids in prime condition, with a few Cattleya gigas in bloom, by way of adding some glorious color.

The condition of the whole place was good to look upon—clean, neat, thrifty. Mr. Esler said a number of good things, but insisted that they be not herein set down, so to get them you will have to call at Saddle River.

While talking over the growing of plants and flowers, Mr. Heacock said that never in his experience had our business suffered a setback during years of financial depression. Each year has shown an improvement over the year preceding. This should encourage us all during this time of war scare.

The Fuel Market.

With reference to the fuel situation, Smith, Lineaweaver & Co. advise me:

"Buying this summer in some sections has been considerably less than normal, but this simply means that later on the tonnages not taken during the summer months will be taken, and to our minds will create an unusually strong and active demand early in the fall. The question of supply and demand is so close on anthracite that the market cannot, for any long period, remain inactive, and it is our opinion that, with the approach of autumn and winter, those who now find it easy to secure their supplies will find considerable difficulty in getting prompt deliveries. The tide has already turned and the demand during the last two weeks has perceptibly increased over the several weeks preceding."

Horticultural Hall.

Xavier E. Schmitt has his plants in Fairmount park in good shape, after the trying weather of June and July. Drought and cold were a check that has been gradually overcome by moisture and heat.

The cactus beds are planted with the same precision as last season, and with little change in variety. The features of the sunken garden are the new varieties of geraniums planted in beds of solid colors, and the displacement of the alternantheras by the achyranthes. It is too early yet to tell how the new geraniums will succeed. The alternantheras have been found unsatisfactory because they color so late in the season. The improvements in the varieties of achyranthes afford a range of color and a richness that give ample opportunity for fine bedding effects. Crotons and cannas are freely used.

Various Notes.

A terribly sad drowning accident occurred in the Schuylkill river, at Spring Mill, on the afternoon of August 3. Edward W. Habermehl, Jr., aged 22 years, was seized with cramps while swimming and sank before his companion could reach him. Deep sympathy is extended to his father.

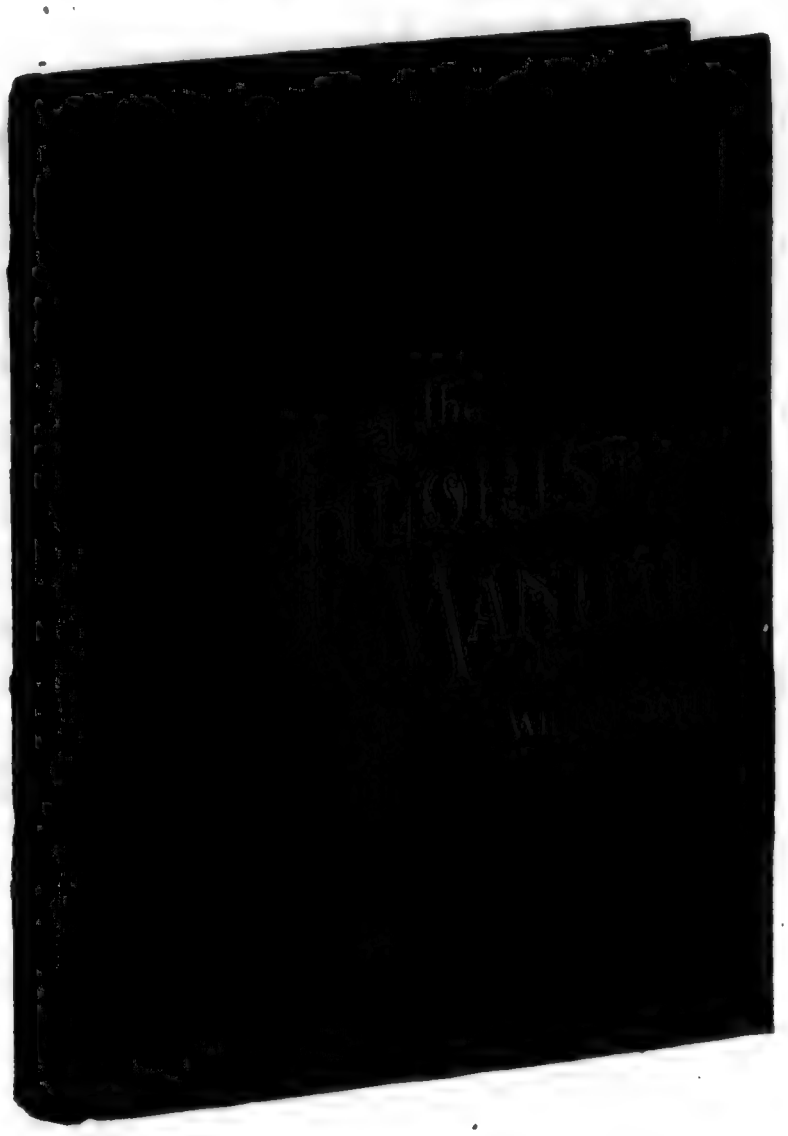
Sydney H. Bayersdorfer cabled to his father from Lucerne, Switzerland, August 3: "I am enjoying myself here." This simple cablegram shows S. H. B. to be a thoroughly good sport, as the war scare must be greater abroad than here.

Carl A. Corts closed the Ranstead street cut flower headquarters of the Joseph Heacock Co., August 1, to be reopened September 14, when the first flowers of the new crop are expected.

Robert Craig Co. will be represented at Boston by Robert Craig, William P. Craig, Duncan Macaw and Leonard Sieger.

Edward Reid wrote from Belfast, Ireland, that he expected to be in France this week.

Franklin Ely, of the Henry F. Michell Co., is dividing his vacation between shore and country.



Godfrey Aschmann is looking well and talks cheerfully.

Thomas Holland has the Century Flower Shop No. 2 in apple-pie order; it looks as attractive now as in the height of the season.

Leo Niessen objects to the statement in a recent issue of a contemporary to the effect that he went daily from here to Wildwood, N. J., and back in a motor car; firstly, because it is too far; secondly, because his family is now at home, and, thirdly, because he didn't do it.

William Diddin is sending the first flowers of his splendidly grown asters to the Philadelphia Cut Flower Co.

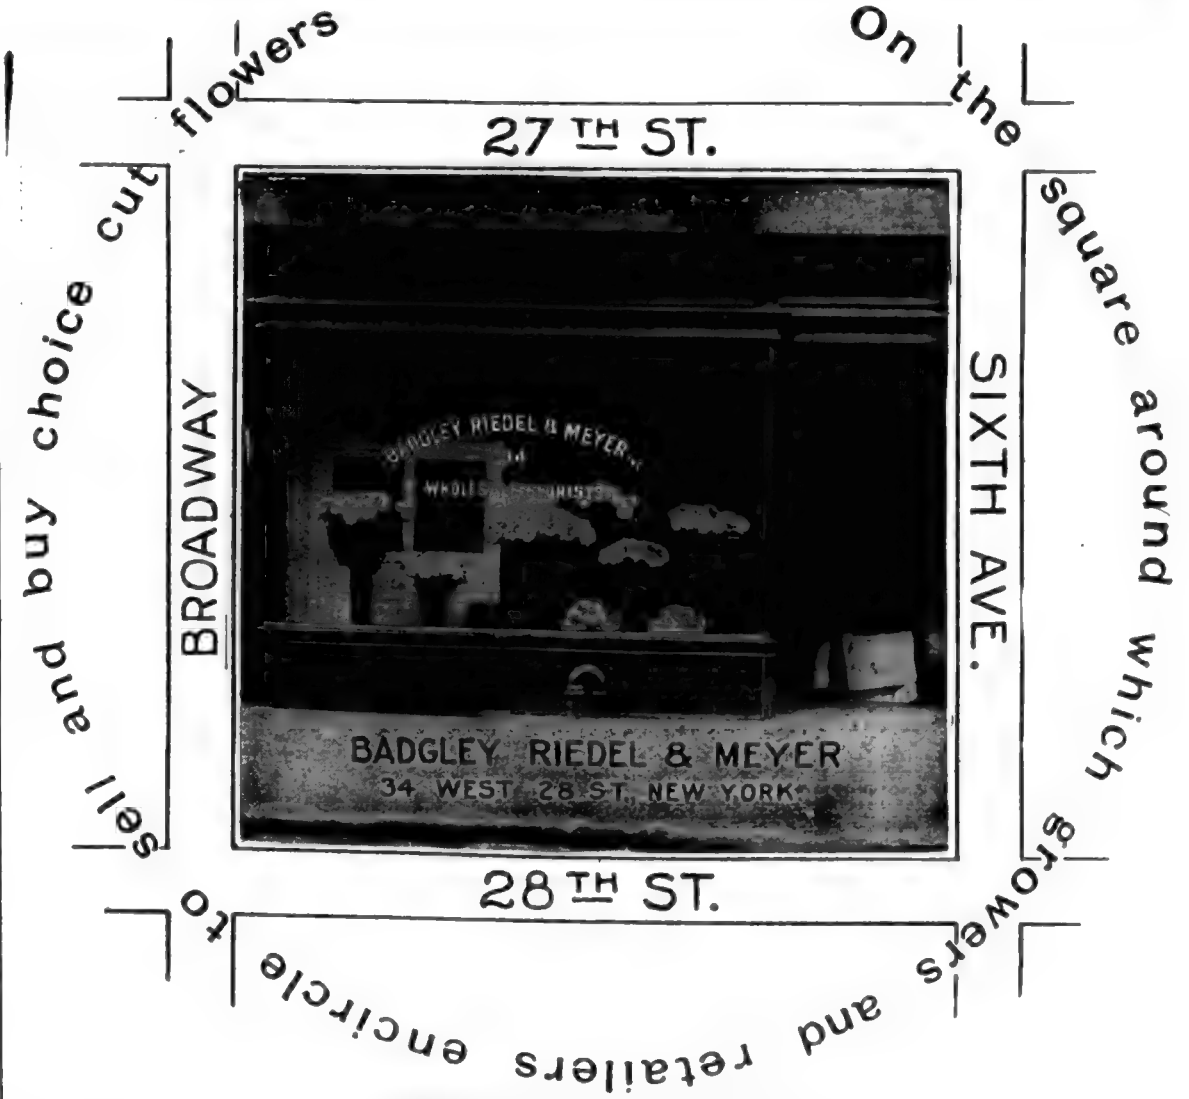
their Boston exhibit will be made exactly as intended despite the war.

Mrs. Fred Ehret and Miss Ehret will attend the convention.



B. Eschner, of the M. Rice Co., states that on account of the conditions in Europe, due to the war in progress, it will be next to impossible to receive any quantity of imported merchandise and there will no doubt have to be an advance in price on such as is received.

The Market.

Following the hot wave came the wettest, chilliest week July has known in a generation. From 95 degrees to 55 degrees is a considerable drop in midsummer. But the week's end developed a higher temperature, and August opened with clear skies and lessened humidity. Business, however, showed no improvement in the cut flower market, and the only features of importance were the lessening in rose shipments and the tremendous flood of asters and gladioli. In roses, carnations, orchids and lilies there is no change in the prevailing prices. Lilies are, perhaps, a trifle stronger. There are few carnations, and extremely few good roses. There seems to be a great abundance of orchids.

the flower trade can only be conjectured, and all branches of the business await with much anxiety the outcome.

The daily receipts of gladioli here are already beyond computation. The price has fallen to $1 per hundred, even the new varieties and the selects commanding no more, and the same exactly may be said of asters. Hydrangeas and goldenrod are the latest novelties in the windows. This is rushing the season with a vengeance. Rain has fallen almost continuously for two weeks and its effects upon the sweet peas and asters may be imagined.

Various Notes.

In less than two weeks from the date of this issue of The Review, "Eastward Ho!" will be the cry of many hundreds on their way to the convention of the S. A. F. at Boston. On the evening of August 17 the New York contingent will leave by the steamer Massachusetts. Chairman Traendly issues his last call to those desiring berths, only 100 having been reserved and most of these already taken. The gardeners are being cared for by Secretary Ebel, of Madison, N. J. A party of 200 to go via the all-water route seems assured.

Tuesday, August 4, the Tarrytown Horticultural Society enjoyed its annual outing at Rye beach, Rye, N. Y.

The Essex County Gardeners' Club celebrated Wednesday, August 5, at Hilton, N. J. This was the first outing of the new club and a great success.

All the employees of A. H. Langjahr are back, brown and strengthened, from their vacation. Mr. Langjahr, like many of the wholesalers, will enjoy a part of his holiday at the convention.

H. E. Froment is receiving some blooms daily of the new rose, Ophelia, and considers it an excellent acquisition. These are grown by L. W. Coddington. Mr. Froment had a display of hydrangeas in several colors Saturday. Miss Mabel Conklin, the bookkeeper, is back from Sackett lake, and Wm. Sampson leaves August 10 for the mountains. Mr. Froment will begin his vacation at the convention, on his way to the Adirondacks.

Hugh Peake, of Walter Sheridan's force, leaves August 15 for a two weeks' holiday at Greenport, L. I.

Harry Riedel leaves for Canada August 8 and will be in Boston during convention week. Mr. Meyer returned Saturday, August 1, from his vacation, at Tannersville, N. Y., and Atlantic City. A. Schawzer, of A. Warendorff's force, accompanied him.

A. R. Dentale, of Young & Nugent, with his family, leaves August 8 for a week in the Orange mountains.

Charles Schwake, who left for Europe July 4, returned August 4. Mr. Schwake celebrates his anniversary September 1. Miss Millie, his bookkeeper and office manager, leaves the city August 8 for a two weeks' holiday in the Catskills.

Miss Margaret Hamburg, bookkeeper for Woodrow & Marketos, has returned from a two weeks' holiday at Asbury Park, N. J.

Miss Nellie McDonald, with A. Warendorff, will spend August at Orillia, Canada.

Wm. Iler, of E. Horan's force, goes August 15 with his family to Lake Mohonk. Charles Matthews left Saturday, August 1, for two weeks at Lake George and Saratoga.

George Bradshaw, with Wm. Kessler, will enjoy a week's well merited rest up the Hudson.

W. Z. PURNELL, Snow Hill, Md.

Saturday, August 1, for a two weeks' vacation at Portland, Old Orchard and other Maine resorts.

John Hunter, with Burnett Bros., is back from two weeks' rest at Woodland beach, S. I. W. Barnwell is in the Adirondacks and Frank Muller at Highlands, N. Y.

R. A. Johnstone, bookkeeper for the Kervan Co., with his family, returned July 27 from a two weeks' camping in Connecticut.

L. Bonnot, under the title of Bonnot Bros., has had since January the sole management and ownership of this wholesale business. Mr. Bonnot has doubled his space and facilities and is prepared for a much larger shipping business than at any time since the firm was established, in 1902.

A great many orders for flowers for the steamers which were to sail Saturday and were held in New York harbor caused serious losses to many of the retail florists. The complaints were widespread and few of the leading firms escaped. There is no telling what the present week may develop.

Herman Weiss, of 112 West Twenty-eighth street, will handle the stock of the Lone Oak Greenhouses, at Lone Oak, L. I., which were recently incorporated for $100,000 by Duncan C. Arnold. William Wincott, formerly manager of the Arnold estate, will be manager of the concern.

During the convention of the American Association of Park Superintendents, which will be held at Newburgh, N. Y., August 24 to 27, the headquarters of the organization in this city will be at the Hotel Astor. The entertainment committee has provided for a visit to Mount Beacon, a boat trip down the Hudson, a luncheon at Arden, by courtesy of Mrs. E. H. Harriman, visits to Interstate park and to West Point, and an excursion by automobile through the Newburgh parks and the Tuxedo valley.

August 11 to 14 the Railway Gardening Association will hold its eighth annual convention here, with headquarters at the Hotel Breslin. Trips to the Duke farms at Ocean Grove, N. J., and to Coney island are scheduled.

Hitchings & Co. have completed J. W. Beall's iron-frame house, 61x108, at Hanover, Mass. Mr. Beall is a professional architect, but has developed his florists' interests from a small beginning until they have become his vocation.

W. R. Cobb, of the Lord & Burnham Co., is on his way home from Canada, where he arranged for an exhibit on the grounds of the National Exposition Co., at Toronto, for the great August horticultural exhibition.

L. W. C. Tuthill has returned from Troy, O., where he attended the meeting of the committee appointed to pass on the tests of the new improvements which the Skinner Irrigation Co. will bring out this fall.

Among those in the trade marooned in Europe are Mr. Russin, of Russin & Hanfling; Mr. Keller, of Reed & Keller, and Mrs. Jordan, bookkeeper for Wadley & Smythe.

Harry A. Bunyard and wife are enjoying their summer at Patchogue, L. I. John Donaldson has made this beautiful town his permanent home and the latchstring always is out.

J. Austin Shaw.

SEEDLING PERENNIALS.

I am sowing the seed of delphinium, aquilegia, Bellis perennis, coreopsis, gaillardia, iris, Shasta daisy, sweet william, tritoma, peony, poppy, primula, geum and nemesia, and want to advertise some of these plants for sale next spring from 2½-inch pots. What is the best way to do this—to plant the seedlings in the pots as soon as they are large enough for potting and put them in a glassless coldframe over winter? I will cover the frame with cloth in place of glass, which will not exclude the light but keep out the snow. I will put the cloth on sashes made of plastering lath, but use no glass. I am entering the perennial plant business on a small scale and have no greenhouse at my disposal, so that I must make a start without one. F. T. W.

You could winter the perennials in the way suggested, but, even in New Jersey, if you pot up the plants and give them merely a cloth covering, the frost will break a large proportion of the pots. By using some of the better made paper pots this might be avoided, but the latter are not so desirable as earthenware pots. If you decide to pot your plants this summer or early next fall, you should be able to protect them from frost. If not, a better plan would be to prick the various seedlings into coldframes, allow them to freeze firmly, then cover with dry leaves and later with board shutters or sashes.

It will pay you to buy sufficient sashes to cover your frames. This will insure the leaves keeping dry, and when spring arrives the plants will be as fresh as when covered up. You could pot up the plants in spring if desired, but personally I would much prefer the plants from the frames to any which had been potted. While a few of the plants named could be carried in 2½-inch pots, such sorts as coreopsis, gaillardia, sweet william, Shasta daisy, etc., would be simply starved in such small receptacles. Nemesia, which you mention, is an annual, and should not be sown before February or March. All the perennials named should winter well outdoors with you, if given a light mulch of leaves or pine needles after the ground freezes. C. W.

POINSETTIAS IN BENCHES.

Kindly tell us through your columns the proper date for benching poinsettia plants to get good bracts and not too long stems. We are limited for head room in the house, one bench having but three to four feet, the other bench more. Also, what is the proper date to fill pans of poinsettias? J. P. K.

If you want good bracts on your poinsettias, the young plants should be benched at once. If they are now in 2½-inch or 3-inch pots and not over six inches in height, the head room you mention should suffice.

Pans of poinsettias can be made up from now until the middle of September. Those made up will grow moderately tall and should go into 8-inch or 10-inch pans; smaller sizes do not contain sufficient compost to support them. The pans made up late are dwarf and considerably in demand, but the bracts are, of course, small. The early made up pans will produce large bracts, and careful watering and a suitable temperature will insure foliage down to the pans. C. W.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Gentlemen:

During the past year I paid you $18.20 for a half inch advertisement in the Retail Florists Department of The Review. I received through this small advertisement, from January 1, 1913, to December 31, 1913, orders to the amount of $566.00. They came by mail and telegraph from New York to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis. Since I allowed the senders 20%, the record is as follows:

Total value of orders	$566.00
Less 20% allowed senders.. .. .	113.20
Net value of orders..... .:.	452.80

Here is an addition of $452.80 in business which could not otherwise have been obtained and at an expense of only $18.20.

Since my advertisement appeared only in The Review it goes to show what the retail florists through the country lose if they do not use this medium of advertising It also goes to show that The Review is not only there with a big "R" but that it has three more big "R's" - Readers - Reliability - Results!

Yours respectfully,
J. J. Beneke

The Market.

There is little to say regarding the local wholesale market last week, as the buyers show little activity. Stock of anything in season is plentiful enough and the prices are low. The retailers say the business is at its lowest ebb, with hardly anything except funeral work, and even that is light. In looking over the stock at the different wholesale houses, I found a great abundance of roses, the bulk of them Killarneys of the several varieties, many showing improved stem and flowers. There also are plenty of Wards and Beauties of fairly good quality. Carnations are nearing the end. A few good ones are seen, but most of them are small and sell cheaply. Sweet peas are few. Asters are coming in quite heavily, but fancy stock as yet is scarce, the bulk of the receipts showing the bad effects of the dry summer. A few dahlias are coming in, but they sell poorly. Good gladioli are plentiful, but move slowly, as so many of the ordinary sorts are offered at as little as $10 in thousand lots. Shasta daisies and Easter lilies are more than the demand can use up at present. A few light showers last week brightened up the outdoor stock somewhat.

In greens the market found slow sales during the week, with plenty of fancy ferns, asparagus and smilax.

meeting August 13, on the grounds of the Connon Floral Co., at Webster Groves, Mo. The members are to take the Manchester car on Market street to Gove avenue at Webster. Subjects for discussion at this meeting will be night meetings, affiliation of the club with the S. A. F., and convention matters in general. A large attendance is looked for.

W. J. Pilcher, of Kirkwood, reports that his big rose house is in fine shape and that the young stock is making splendid growth. Violet and carnation plants in the field suffered a great deal this summer from the continued hot and dry weather. The loss will be about sixty per cent.

A. S. Halstead, of the St. Clair Floral Co., Belleville, called last week and said that he will take in the Boston convention, after which he will visit some of the large growers around New York and Philadelphia. Mr. Halstead will spend thirty days on his trip.

Now that Arthur Kring, John Erlinger and Otto Breuning, the H. G. Berning working force, have had their vacations, it is up to the boss to take his. Mr. Berning has become one of our great baseball fans.

Edwin Gerlach, formerly bookkeeper for C. A. Kuehn and well known in local trade circles, was married last week, his bride being Miss Virginia Lutteke. Mr. Gerlach is now head of the Hagen Paper Co. and his many friends wish the couple much happiness.

July 28 a hail storm did considerable damage to greenhouse glass in the north end. The Koenig Floral Co. and John Nyflot, on Florissant avenue, suffered most.

Bertha Meinhardt, left July 31 for an eastern trip. From Chicago they will go to Boston and other cities in the east. They will be away the whole month of August.

City Forester Julius Koenig says that after the new charter goes into effect, August 29, his office will come under the direction of the park commissioner.

Henry Emunds, of Belleville, Ill., says that his yellow Queen Helen canna withstood the dry summer in great shape and that the big field of it looks fine. He has a good field of carnation plants, which he will house by the middle of the month.

W. W. Randall and M. A. Le Ganger, representing the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, were at the Maryland hotel from July 31 to August 5 with a line of florists' supplies.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. is building a new office in the front of the salesroom. This week interior decoration will be started. Frank Windler, head of the firm, is shaping things to take in the S. A. F. convention. His trip will include New York, Philadelphia and Atlantic City.

Henry Ostertag says he will be too busy to take a vacation this summer, as he is over his head in politics. He is seeking the nomination of central committeeman in his ward and can be seen daily in his big automobile, electioneering for his democratic friends.

The Riessen Floral Co., on South Broadway, reports a splendid July business, mostly funeral work. Edward Buechel, head of the concern, contemplates a trip to Sedalia and Joplin this month, to attend an annual meeting at each place.

strong are enjoying the summer months in Colorado. They will reopen the store September 1.

Carl Beyer and wife are spending a part of the summer on weekly boat trips up the Mississippi river.

M. M. Ayres reports unusually good summer trade, including a heavy run of funeral work, with many large designs. Mrs. Ayres will not make an eastern trip this summer.

Word has been received from Alex Siegel, who is enjoying the summer months at Mackinac Island, that he has completely recovered from his recent illness.

Prof. D. R. Jones, plant pathologist at the University of Wisconsin; Prof. L. H. Harvey, of Kalamazoo, Mich., and Prof. G. H. Bretnall, of La Crosse, Wis., were recent visitors at the Missouri Botanical Gardens.

Henry Kahrs, for the last ten years in the employ of Grimm & Gorly, died August 1, at St. Mary's hospital, after an illness of ten days with typhoid pneumonia. He was 37 years old. The remains were sent to New York, August 3, for burial. Mr. Kahrs had charge of the shipping department and was regarded as a valuable employee.

Otto Sanders, recently with Grimm & Gorly, has taken a position with the Mullanphy Floral Co.

The Ladies' Home Circle will meet August 12 at the home of Mrs. Otto Koenig, 6471 Florissant avenue.

The Market.

Business continues quiet. The quantity of flowers coming in is comparatively small, but is more than ample for the light demand. The shipping trade to shore and mountain resorts has been disappointing and the clouded business horizon now makes any improvement improbable. Asters are just coming to the front and will soon dominate the market. Some of the growers have splendid greenhouse-grown flowers. These have longer stems, larger flowers and are in every way superior to the outdoor ones. White is far the most popular color. Outdoor gladioli are coming in, but as yet only in moderate quantities compared with other years, owing to the abnormally cool July.

Carnations still arrive from one or two growers, but there is little use for them while good asters are abundant. I do not remember having ever before seen such really good carnations so late in the summer. Quite a lot of short-stemmed roses of the new crop are coming in. Prices on these are low. Fair prices still are realized for the better grades. Lilies of several kinds are abundant, but selling slowly. For valley and cattleyas there is a slow sale. Some good sweet peas arrive from shore resorts. These sell well. Many are short-stemmed, however. Dahlias, cosmos, larkspurs, bachelor's buttons, gypsophila, phlox and astilbes of the Arendsi type are among other flowers seen.

Convention Notes.

With the S. A. F. convention close at hand, Boston is almost in readiness for the hundreds of guests it hopes to welcome a fortnight hence. The several committees are all working energetically and enthusiastically and have arrangements well advanced. The outing for the ladies August 20, which will include a 70-mile ride via Salem, Danvers, Wenham, Ipswich, Gloucester, Manchester, Prides Crossing, Beverly Farms, etc., covering a considerable portion of the famed north shore of Massachusetts, with lunch at Tuck's Point, Manchester, should draw a large crowd of the fair sex. The trip down Boston harbor per special steamer August 21 will undoubtedly attract a record crowd. Fort Warren will be first called at and here the sports will be run off. Later a sail will be enjoyed to Boston Light, returning to Nantasket in the afternoon, where a first-class dinner will be served at the Rockland House.

One or two late comers are still filling beds in the convention garden and several large growers who are not represented are feeling quite sore at themselves. The forty or more courageous exhibitors will, I am sure, find their beds a grand advertisement, for tens of thousands of visitors will see them and a large proportion are sure to have notebooks with them.

Various Notes.

Elmer W. Tyler, formerly of Los Angeles, Cal., again is with his old firm, Joseph Breck & Sons, after an absence of three years. He will travel among members of the trade. A. F. Hills, of the same firm, will return in a few days from a honeymoon spent in England and Scotland. J. L. Russell, another representative, will arrive from Europe August 12.

At the Montrose Greenhouses, Eber Holmes is busy installing two new 150 horse-power steam boilers and laying new 10-inch mains which will permit the addition of more glass in the near future. Roses here are looking remarkably well, and a fine lot of Sunburst, Double White Killarney and dark Killarney of the new plantings are being cut.

William Sim and wife are enjoying a vacation at Bastins Island, Me. Mr. Sim has been picking an average of nine tons of tomatoes a week lately. He also has a grand lot of gladioli.

Mann Bros. are large growers of giganteum, auratum and speciosum lilies and their stands are always attractive, even at this dull season. Their greenhouse-grown asters, from C. Orsett, are unusually fine.

John W. Foote, of Reading, is one of the growers for the Coöperative Market who is not seen often. His goods are all well cared for by Herbert T. Capers. He still sends in Pink Delight and White Wonder carnations of remarkably fine quality.

The houses of Lorraine and Cincinnati begonias, cyclamens and other winter-flowering stock at the establishment of W. W. Edgar Co. never looked better.

Among the growers who are sending in good sweet peas, special mention should be given those from Mrs. Dockam, of Woburn.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Penn left August 1 per auto for a vacation at York Cliff, Me. William Penn is on duty again. The store is in the hands of decorators. August 1 Penn's had all the decorations for the wedding of Miss Mildred Bond and John A. Rogers at Swampscott.

John R. Ness and Peter Arnolt, two popular young Scotchmen from Brookline, sailed on the S. S. Pretorian for Glasgow July 31, for a two months' tour in Great Britain.

The finest asters I have seen this season were grown by E. J. Ahearn, of Wellesley. These were all greenhouse-grown and it was a simple matter to distinguish them from outdoor flowers.

The war situation in Europe is causing serious concern to the local seed merchants. They believe Dutch and French bulbs will probably come to hand all right, but the securing from Germany of necessary flower seeds promises to be difficult unless the situation clears.

F. H. Houghton had a simple but charming window August 1, using large bowls and baskets of gladioli with a background of Cibotium Schiedei.

Fred E. Palmer, of Brookline, is spending a short vacation in Maine. His large bed in the convention garden looks attractive.

J. Newman & Son say they have had a good summer trade. Steamer and funeral orders have come in freely.

Galvin's had the wedding decorations, which were quite extensive, for the Rice-Ayer wedding at Ipswich August 4. In the grounds they used large numbers of hydrangeas, bays, box and other material to good advantage. They also had the decorations for Miss Appleton's wedding at Ipswich August 5. In their window decorations August 1 I noted a nice lot of the new forms of Astilbe Arendsi and other fine perennials from the Mount Desert Nurseries, Bar Harbor. One entire window of white lilies with a background of palms was pleasing.

Welch Bros. Co. reports business as a little quiet, but says roses are unusually good for August, while sweet peas from north shore points are excellent.

B. Hammond Tracy, of Wenham, says gladioli with him are of fine quality, but unusually late in blooming. He is building a two-story house 38 x 46, to give necessary additional bulb storage facilities.

Among the newest exhibitors in the convention garden are the Eastern Nurseries, New England Nurseries, Edward MacMulkin and Robert Craig Co. The last named firm has a bed of the newer crotons.

The weather bureau says that the temperature in July was the lowest for that month since 1902. The season has been a comfortable one for stay-at-homes, but plants which enjoy tropical or semi-tropical weather have not made their usual growth.

The Boston Cut Flower Co., when visited August 1, was busy on funeral work. Mr. Rosenthal has done good service of late as a member of the local finance committee for the S. A. F. convention.

H. H. Rogers, of South Sudbury, has two specialties, carnations and asters. He grows both well.

McAlpine & McDonald report good July business, their shipping trade being beyond expectations. Frank J. McDonald has just returned from his vacation.

At the store of Henry R. Comley, on Park street, I noticed, among other flowers in his always varied weekly displays, neriums, Dendrobium formosum, platycodons and a nice lot of nymphæas.

of Natick, as convalescent after a sickness of ten days. Mr. Wheeler has his large carnation house planted and the stock looks fine.

Peter Fisher finished planting his carnations August 3. The batch of 40,000 Alice looks remarkably well and will be in heavy crop by September, if allowed to bloom.

John T. Butterworth has a splendid lot of Cattleya Harrisoniæ coming in. This proves useful at this season, when cattleyas are scarce.

Some of the local growers now in Europe who may be delayed in getting home are Thomas Stock, of Dorchester; Charles Holbrow, of Brighton, and A. Leuthy, of Roslindale.

A feature of the exhibition at Horticultural hall August 8 and 9 will be a large and artistically arranged display of fancy-leaved caladiums in 125 varieties from James Marlborough, superintendent for Thomas E. Proctor, Topsfield, Mass.

The S. S. Franconia, of the Cunard line, due to sail for Liverpool August 4, has been requisitioned by the British government. Passengers will all be sent on other steamers. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Capers, of Wellesley, were among those due to sail.

THE FLORISTS' MANUAL, by Wm. Scott, the greatest book ever written for florists, sent by The Review for $5.

I WAS flooded with a tremendous torrent of orders for my tomato plants, until that rushing stream, which lasted for three consecutive days, swept away every plant I had in the house, numbering tens of thousands. All of it came through The Review. You have no competitor.—H. J. Potomkin, Muncie, Ind.

...THE...

Chrysanthemum

By Arthur Herrington

Formerly president Chrysanthemum Society of America.

The most complete and comprehensive work on the cultivation of the chrysanthemum that has yet been published in America. Its scope and character may be gleaned from the list of contents, which comprises chapters on composts; planting; benches, boxes or pots; general cultural details; crown and terminal buds; feeding, its object and application; care of the buds; exhibition and judging; specimen plants, plants in pots; raising from seed and hybridizing; sports; hardy chrysanthemums; chrysanthemums for south and west; insect pests and diseases; classification and selection of varieties for special purposes; history of the chrysanthemum, etc. The book will be welcomed for the lucid, comprehensive, as well as the practical character of its contents. Handsomely illustrated. 168 pages, 5x7 inches. Price 50c postpaid.

All our posts are guaranteed wrought iron. They are in one solid piece from eave to bottom of concrete footing. It's the strongest method of side construction we know of. That's why we use it.

WM. SIM, Cliftondale, Mass.

He has several of our Iron Frame houses. One which he uses for violets and sweet peas is 43 x 200.

WM. NICHOLSON, JR., So. Framingham, Mass.

When "Junior" took over the business from his father, there were several L. & B. houses in fine condition. They put up the strongest kind of an argument for more of L. & B.'s. So we built him one 52 x 200. It's one of our best jobs. We always take pride in having anyone see it.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Lester L. Morse, San Francisco, Cal.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O. Thirty-third annual convention, San Francisco, Cal., June, 1915.

THE first Dutch bulbs of the season arrived at New York July 31, on the Sloterdyk, from Rotterdam, four cases consigned to Maltus & Ware and two cases consigned to G. W. Sheldon & Co.

INCORPORATION papers have been issued to the W. D. Wise Seed Co., of El Paso, Tex. The capital stock is placed at $30,000, and the incorporators are W. D. Wise, Charles Davis and M. J. Murray.

THOSE of the seed trade who deal in lily bulbs will be interested in the table on page 64, showing the shipments of Formosa bulbs for the season: 6,371 cases to America; 3,559 cases to the rest of the world; total crop slightly more than 9,930 cases, as the table was prepared in Japan at almost the end of the shipping season.

As forecast in The Review of July 30, L. Daehnfeldt, Ltd., of Odense, Denmark, has announced the appointment of Axel Knudsen as resident American agent. He succeeds Wm. Rehm. Mr. Knudsen was for several years employed in the Daehnfeldt export department, but has of late been a resident of Minneapolis, Minn., where he conducted a business for himself.

WITH lilies an everyday crop the demand for bulbs from Formosa has increased rapidly. The Formosa longiflorums are not only the earliest to be delivered but they flower earlier than either Japanese or Bermudian Easter lilies and are wanted by practically every grower who tries to cut lilies steadily. The demand has increased faster than production.

THE Barteldes Seed Co., of Oklahoma City, Okla., and the Oklahoma Traffic Association have filed a joint complaint with the interstate commerce commission against the Santa Fe, Missouri, Kansas & Texas, and other roads, stating that the rates on Spanish moss from points in Minnesota and Wisconsin to Oklahoma points are unjust and unreasonable in and of themselves, and especially when compared with rates from the same points to Kansas City and Joplin, Mo.; Wichita, Kan., and Fort Smith, Ark.

THE WAR AND THE SEED TRADE.

Imports Will Be Cut Off.

The anxiety that prevails in the seed trade as the result of the outbreak in Europe is shown by the fact that The Review has, in the last two days, received a large number of inquiries, by wire as well as by mail, regarding the effect the war will have on imports. In

Vacations

Almost every mill, factory and plant operated by machinery is closed down at certain periods of the year to permit overhauling, repairing and fixing up—to give the machinery a rest, or practically speaking, a vacation. If material constructed by human hands, any working parts of which can be replaced, requires a rest, how much more does that greatest handiwork of all, of the Supreme Power of the universe, the human body, require a vacation. A florist conceived the idea some years ago that by keeping his greenhouses lighted at night, the crops would keep continually growing—he discovered his mistake—his crops went back—as plant life needs rest. A continual grind at our daily labors, for such abuse man was never intended. Lay out your work so you can get away for a little vacation—not necessarily to go to Newport, Atlantic City or abroad, regulate that to the limit of your pocket book, but by all means pack your grip and enjoy a little vacation—take the better half and the kiddies along, if you have them; the grown-ups can look after the business until you return. Don't say you cannot get away—many thought should Morgan pass away the world would stop—Morgan is no longer with us, but the world moves along just the same. Put in your Lilium Formosum for early flowering—best if you get Horseshoe Brand Formosum—as they are the reliable kind—then off for your vacation. Horseshoe Brand Bulbs, particularly Lily Bulbs, average the highest percentage obtainable—enough said. Send for the Joy Book—your's for the asking.

most cases the questions relate specially to the shipments of bulbs which should ordinarily come in during the next sixty days. The seed trade has its fall bulb books under way—in many cases ready to mail. The question is, will it be possible to procure the stock and, secondly, what will be the effect on prices? The matter is urgent.

The Bulb Situation.

The French bulbs either have reached New York or are afloat. The first shipment of the season came in July 28 on the Sant' Anna. The Venezia arrived August 5 and the Patria is due August 12. The Germania sailed from Marseilles July 28 and was on the Atlantic before hostilities became acute. All the French bulbs, therefore, should get in safely and on time.

The war comes just as the Dutch bulbs are beginning to move. A small shipment, mainly for S. A. F. convention exhibition purposes, was on the Rotterdam, which reached New York August 3. The Potsdam sailed from Rotterdam August 1 with a few cases of bulbs, but the season is about a week late and the bulk of the crop is not yet on the move. At the Chicago office of the Holland-American line it was stated August 5 that the schedule of weekly sailings Rotterdam to New York will not be disturbed, according to latest advices, but of course conditions are such that assurances of this sort can have little value. Of greater immediate importance is the mobilization of the army of Holland—it has taken a large part of the workers out of the bulb exporters' warehouses. All the young men belong to the landwehr reserves; the crops are in, but only the women and men over 45 are left to prepare them for shipment, to care for the land and plant next year's crop. Cable advices to a large forwarder indicate serious delay and a possible sharp reduction in shipments. There is, however, another aspect of the case. Holland has lifted a bulb crop of approximately 24,000 tons (official figures show recent crops to have been from 17,000,000 to 23,000,000 kilos). Great Britain ordinarily takes one-third the Holland bulb crop, Germany and Austria a quarter, France a tenth, and Russia an appreciable fraction. The great countries now at war use approximately two-thirds of Holland's bulbs, while the United States uses only about one-sixth. With European markets closed, or nearly so, what will Holland do with its bulbs? If there is transportation between Holland and the United States it seems possible that this country may be called on to take this year a large part of the world's supply of Dutch bulbs.

Valley pips would not begin to move for some weeks yet, and the greater part of the crop is grown on small plots, where the women, children and old men do a large part of the work even under normal conditions. But Hamburg will be effectually sealed by the English fleet. It probably is safe to base action on the supposition that Germany will

Germany and England, that a long and closely contested war may have serious results for the seed trade here. Statistics are unreliable, but the U. S. census puts the value of all the vegetable and flower seeds grown in this country in 1909 at only $1,411,013, while imports of vegetable seeds alone, in 1913, far exceeded that sum. The U. S. By far the greater part of these imports came from Germany, France and England.

The seed crops of 1914 practically are made—but there remains the harvest, the preparation and shipment. With the reserves called out, every man under 45 years of age is taken off the work on seed crops and sent to war. At the best it means delay with seeds. If the war lasts over four months it will mean that the spring seed trade in America for 1915 will have to be handled with only a small part of the usual imported supply. So long as England is at war with Germany there can be no hope of receiving the usual shipments from the Quedlinburg and Erfurt districts. France will be in a little better position, and England much better, backed by her navy. While transatlantic business is for the moment completely suspended, no doubt there will be a partial resumption when conditions have had time to settle down on the new basis. But at best imports will be late and irregular, with a possibility that they will be shut off completely as long as the war lasts.

CUT AND COME AGAIN

If there ever was a plant entitled to the above heading it is my original SEEDLING SILVER PINK SNAPDRAGON. We are still cutting blossoms from a bench that went on duty in January and has worked every minute since. Every job calls for several casket sprays of "that beautiful pink snapdragon that we see in the front house."

A bed of Silver Pink is not only a good ad. but it is a strong business asset. To have blossoms when you want them is like having money when you need it.

BODDINGTON'S "QUALITY" CHRISTMAS-FLOWERING

Sweet Peas

WE ARE SUPER-HEADQUARTERS

All true stocks of Winter-flowering Sweet Peas will again be scarce this season. The winter-flowering Spencer types are almost a total failure, owing to the exceptional season in California this spring, and through the ravages of Aphis we regret that we are unable to offer any seed, with the following exceptions. Our advice to intending planters is to order at once. Note revised prices.

The Sensational Australian Spencer Winter-flowering Sweet Pea, Yarrawa

We have been fortunate enough to secure a small quantity of this wonderful new Spencer Winter-flowering Sweet Pea from the raiser, Arthur Yates, of Sidney, and now offer it for the first time in America. It is far superior to the prevailing Spencer types—the flowers being exceptionally large and well fluted and waved; in color it is almost a duplicate of Countess Spencer, a delightful light soft rose, which lights up beautifully at night. We offer this original stock till sold, for trial, at $1.00 per trade pkt.; 3 trade pkts. for $2.75.

ROSE QUEEN "ROSE QUEEN" is Orchid-flowering, borne on long stems, extremely free and early and of pink color most attractive; is a decided acquisition, and, like all meritorious novelties, is sure to be in demand wherever grown. Prices: Trade pkt., $1.00; 3 trade pkts. for $2.75; 1 oz., $12.00.

ANITA WEHRMAN A fine, clear lavender, with three to four flowers to stem, and has been grown with 20-inch stems, holding the length longer than is usual with any other winter-flowering variety. Prices: Trade pkt., $1.00; 3 trade pkts. for $2.75; 1 oz., $12.00.

SEED CROPS IN HOLLAND.

The season has not been specially eventful for the seed growers in Holland. Here and there biennials were lost, but in general the winter was not unfavorable and there were no really important failures. Cauliflower, cabbage and Brussels sprouts promise an average crop, according to Sluis & Groot, of Enkhuisen. There was greater variation in the various fields of turnips and Swedes. The acreage of mangels and sugar beets was much reduced this year. The development of beet was late, owing to dry weather in the spring, but a middling crop is reported in prospect on a good acreage. Radish is satisfactory, but the acreage is limited. Onion has given poor results. Parsley was sown on a large scale, but only a small area survives. Spinach was not sown as widely as usual and the stand was so poor that some fields were plowed up, but the prospect on what is left is not bad. The prospect on peas is uncertain. Beans got a bad start, with a shortage of stock seed. There is a small area of parsnip, but the stand is good. Celery will be a small crop.

SHIPMENTS OF FORMOSA LILIES

The crop of Formosa lilies this season was larger than was expected. High prices prevailed, however, and several exporters are reported to have lost considerable sums in filling their orders. Of some interest to the trade will be the table below, giving the consignments to this country, together with the destinations and marks, as well as the shippers and dates. The total number of cases shipped to this country was 6,371; that to other countries was 3,559, making the grand total of shipments to date 9,930 cases. PRINCESS

20—The New Upright Pansy

This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing, and extremely weather-proof, enduring many storms without damage to its flower. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy velvety texture, on heavy stems carried well above the foliage. Attractive by the brilliancy of its colors.

500 seeds, 25c; 1000, 50c; ¼ oz., $2.50; 1 oz., $10.00.

34—Bronze—Brown and copper shades mixed.
36—Fancy—Rich colors, mostly margined.
38—Mme. Perret—Red and wine shades.
40—Zebra—Fine striped mixture.
42—Adonis—Light blue, white center.
44—Black—Almost coal black.
46—Black with bronze center.
48—Lord Beaconsfield—Purple shaded white.
50—Bronze—Beautiful bronze.
52—Bronze with yellow center.

The KENILWORTH Giant Pansy

seeds are all grown by myself and are offered in the following mixtures and separate colors:

22—KENILWORTH STRAIN—The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are from 3½ to 4 inches; it is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings, rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, mahogany and many others too numerous to mention. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures.

24—KENILWORTH SHOW—An extra fine strain of large flowers; the immense flowers are of circular form and great substance; a beautiful collection of colors and markings.

26—KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE—Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower or for exhibition purposes, for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 7 or 8 inches long, in the most graceful manner, and stand the hot, dry weather well.

28—MASTERPIECE—A remarkable type; the curled, wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance, large flowers of great substance, on long, strong stems.

30—GIANT THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED PANSIES—A superb mixture. Flowers large and of circular form and of great substance. The display of coloring is unsurpassed. A combination of almost every shade of rich velvety colors, reds are particularly conspicuous; the petals being distinctly marked with three or five large dark blotches.

NEW SEED NOW READY

All sorts and mixtures, except the new Pansy Princess, are $5.00 per oz.; $1.25 per ¼-oz.; 5000 seeds, $1.00; trade packet of 1000 seeds, 25c; any 5 pkts., $1.00. Please order by number.

56—Havana Brown.
58—Havana Brown with yellow center.
60—Cardinal—Curled, bright red, dark blotch.
62—Cecily—Steel blue, margined white.
64—Goliath—Large curled yellow blotched.
66—Hero—Curled, deep blue shaded white.
68—Emp. William—Ultramarine blue, violet eye.

carefully weighed and tested. Any necessary remilling is to be done by D. M. Ferry & Co., at their expense. Payment is to be made only for such seed as they consider sufficiently clean, bright and vital for seedsmen's use; no credit being given for dirt, damaged or poor seed which has to be removed. In all cases the screenings and culls are to remain the property of the party who separates them from the crop. It is further mutually agreed that, if the crop as delivered is impure through fault of the grower, or in any other respect is, in the judgment of D. M. Ferry & Co., unfit for seedsmen's use and cannot be made fit without an unreasonable amount of recleaning or hand-picking, D. M. Ferry & Co. may refuse to accept it in fulfillment of this contract. * * * In consideration of the faithful carrying out of the provisions of this agreement on the part of said G. W. Hodges, and for his services in the growing and delivering of said seeds, D. M. Ferry & Co. hereby agree to pay him at the rate of 12 cents per pound for all the seed satisfactory to said D. M. Ferry & Co. which he may deliver in accordance with this agreement in excess of the stock seed furnished him, said payment to be made immediately upon receipt of such seed, and the ascertaining by said D. M. Ferry & Co. that it is vital and fit for seed purposes.''

The Right to Reject the Seed.

Seeds delivered under the contract having been rejected by defendant, plaintiff brought suit to recover compensation. Judgment was awarded in favor of plaintiff and defendant appealed to the Supreme Court, which reversed the judgment, saying:

''The contract provided that payment should be made, not for such seeds as were sufficiently clean, bright and vital for seedsmen's use, but for such seeds only as the defendant considered of that character. The right was expressly reserved to reject the crop, not if it was unfit for seedsmen's use, but if, in the judgment of defendant, it was unfit. * * * The actual character of the seeds, whether clean, bright and vital according to some seedsmen or not, was not the matter to be determined, and was not even pertinent to that issue, except in connection with proof of bad faith.''

Incidentally, the court finds that the trial judge committed error in refusing to permit the defendant to show that some of the seeds had been tested in a laboratory of the United States Department of Agriculture and found to have a percentage of vitality of fifty-four and one-half per cent and fifty-six and one-half per cent, respectively, which the company deemed to be too low to be acceptable. Defendant claimed that the average percentage of vitality for watermelon seeds is eighty-six per cent and that seeds under seventy-five per cent are not merchantable for seed purposes. S.

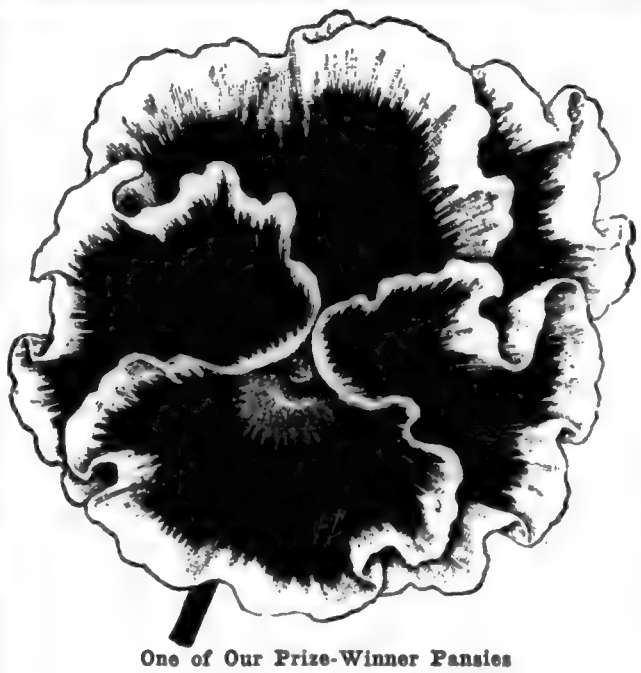
RED SPIDER ON CUCUMBERS.

Can red spider on cucumbers be killed? What is the cause of the pest?

H. H.



Red spider is difficult to kill on cucumbers. It comes only when the atmospheric conditions are too dry. Pressure of water, well directed, is perhaps the best remedy, but the tender nature of the cucumber leaves makes it impossible to use strong pressure. If you keep the atmosphere more humid another season and attend to damping and spraying more carefully, this pest may not trouble you. C. W.

KEEPING CELERY IN TRENCHES.

Kindly advise me how to keep celery in a trench. How deep and wide should the trench be and how close should I put the celery in it? What would you cover it with? I wish to keep it until about Christmas. The variety I grow is White Plume. D. G.

The best way to keep celery in trenches outdoors is to grow the plants in trenches dug out ten inches deep and of sufficient width to accommodate a double row. The plants can go ten inches apart and the rows should be twelve to fifteen inches apart. It is then a simple matter to hill up gradually with soil and protect them. As you have probably been growing your plants in single rows, dig out a trench eighteen inches deep and a yard wide on any well-drained land. Lift with a good ball and pack close together. Every four or five feet put in a board partition. This prevents heating and the spreading of mold. Cover with soil as you proceed, except the tops of the plants; these can be covered later. When all are covered, let the ground freeze two or three inches thick before putting on a coating of straw, leaves or some other mulch. A couple of wide boards, nailed V-shape, can be used on the top of the trench to throw off the water.

An easier way to keep celery would be either in a coldframe or cellar, packing the roots in sand and airing freely

NITRATE OF SODA.

Will you please give me some information regarding the use of nitrate of soda on ground to be used for tomatoes? When should it be put on the ground, in the fall or spring, and how much per acre? Would it be beneficial to the land? I have grown tomatoes in this soil for several years.

W. I. T.

Nitrate of soda is a powerful and quick acting nitrogenous fertilizer. It should be applied at the rate of not over 150 or 200 pounds per acre, and then only to well established crops. As a stimulant to crops in need of a tonic, it is excellent, giving results in a short time. For tomatoes I have not found it a good fertilizer. Dried blood and fine bone have proved more beneficial, and good cow manure has proved superior to all.

Tomatoes should not be grown on the same land year after year, or they will deteriorate in quality. Nitrate of soda should never be applied in the fall and extreme caution must be used in sprinkling it on the ground. Use care not to get it too near the plants, and remember that an overdose will do much harm rather than good. Be sure all lumps are broken up finely before spreading it on the land. While it promotes a rapid growth, its continued use soon exhausts the land.

C. W.

Adelphia, N. J.—George Hall, who handles seeds, plants and bulbs in connection with a general merchandise business, says the outlook is excellent. The potato crop is the great specialty in this section, and potatoes never looked better. The early crop was marketed at the highest prices within Mr. Hall's recollection.

Portland, Ore.—A. Hallett thinks he has a sure remedy for the tarnish bug, grasshopper and leaf miner, all of which infest outdoor asters and mums. He has his stock clean this season.

Wenatchee, Wash.—Leon I. Milot, of the Milot-Mills Co., has just returned from an extensive trip in his Chalmers "Six." After visiting his home in Helena, Mont., he went to Yellowstone National park and, as cars are not allowed in the park, took the 5½-day tour through. Returning by way of Helena, he went north to Glacier National park and back by way of Spokane. The total distance traveled was 1,786 miles. Mr. Milot visited many greenhouses on his way and found all doing well. The Milot-Mills Co. has just completed an addition, 20 x 200, and will put in steam heat this year.

PLANTS FOR HOT, DRY CLIMATE.

In The Review of July 16, J. E. W., of Redlands, Cal., asks for information as to the best plants for a hot, dry climate. As I live at Montgomery, Ala., and the description "hot and dry" applies well to the climate here, a little account of my experience may be useful to J. E. W. This season has been one of the hottest we have ever known in Alabama. We had only two rains during June and July. One of my plantings this summer is in the form of four beds, each 5x8 feet, surrounding a sundial and separated from one another and from the sundial by concrete walks. For these beds I selected the following combination of plants, which have proved quite satisfactory: For borders I used Alternanthera aurea nana. I planted the balance of the beds with trailing lantanas and dotted twelve yellow crotons in each bed. The lantanas have covered the center with pretty lavender-colored flowers, and the yellow crotons, coming up among the lantanas, make an attractive contrast. I keep the lantanas pegged down.

According to my experience, the following plants are all suitable for a hot, dry climate, if they can be well watered: Flowering plants—Salvias, cannas, vincas, lantanas, petunias, zinnias and hibiscus. Foliage plants—Alternantheras, coleus, Centaurea gymnocarpa, acalyphas and banana plants.

I have a pretty border which is planted with salvias, coleus and centaureas. There are salvias at the back and Golden Bedder coleus for the middle row, with an edging of Centaurea gymnocarpa. F. B.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

There is a holiday feeling in the air, and the ocean and mountains are more attractive than the slow business at the stores. Everything in the way of flowers is plentiful and of good quality for this time of year. Roses from outdoors are letting up both in quality and quantity, and the indoor stock is nothing extra. Carnations are fair. Centaureas are good and there is still a big supply of dahlias, gladioli and asters. Valley has been a little short of the demand, but of good quality. Orchids are scarce, but the demand is not heavy. Ferns and all kinds of greens are plentiful. The biggest part of the business is in funeral work.

I sold over 35,000 chrysanthemum plants this season on my 1-inch ad in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. Of course that paid me well and I am very pleased. You will hear from me again as soon as I can work up stock.—Frank Wilhelm, R. F. D. No. 6, Los Angeles, Cal., June 13, '14.

Various Notes.

Jacob Dieterich is making frequent visits to Redondo in his Henderson car, Mrs. Dieterich and family having been there for some time.

Reeve Darling has returned from his trip to the Yosemite as guide for the Sierra Club and is looking fine. He says he had a fine trip and is now settling down to work to enable his manager, Walter Garbett, to get away for a month's vacation. Mr. Garbett is undecided as to where he is going; or, at any rate, he "ain't goin' to tell."

A new propagating house has just been finished at the Selig zoo at Mission road. Almost before the roof was on, Albert Youngerman, the gardener, started to propagate various kinds of stock. The house was built by the Germain Seed & Plant Co.

A large broken wheel and a vacant chair were among the pieces made by Wolfskills' and Morris Goldenson this week for the Lane funeral. These designs were largely composed of valley and orchids. A new cash register has been put in.

C. B. Knickman, representing McHutchison & Co., New York, has been calling on the trade here. He says he has never enjoyed his trip to Los Angeles as much as this year, owing in large measure to the pleasant manner of getting around, with J. Dieterich as pilot, in the latter's big car. The number of new roads around the city and country, opening up surrounding towns, were a surprise to him, as they continue to be to all eastern visitors.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The one commodity which strikes our eye most this week is Lilium rubrum. Quantities of fine long-stemmed lilies are being brought in daily, and the florists have been featuring them as their best article of adornment. They are retailing at from $3 to $5, depending on the length of stem. A slight increase has been noticed in the general transient trade of the week. People are beginning to return from their summer outings, and naturally their thoughts turn first toward house adornment. There has been considerable call for potted plants and ferns. We have practically nothing to offer in flowering plants, the only available one being Hydrangea paniculata, of which we see a few fairly good specimens in the stores.

There are quantities of first-class cut flowers still available. Roses are not so much in oversupply as in the last three weeks. Taft is more in evidence than any other. At this writing there are some fair Prima Donnas and some good Killarneys and White Killarneys. Gladiolus America is still one of the best staples of the flower market, and dahlias are in abundance, particularly Minnie Burgle. There were not so many cactus dahlias last week as we have been having, probably on account of the heavy demand made on this one variety. There is a profusion of scabiosas; in fact, they are used more than any other flower for a filler at this season, and it must be said to the credit of our growers of outdoor flowers that they have made wonderful strides in the perfection of flowers easily cultivated outdoors. Large-sized zinnias are being used extensively for basket work. Some of the blooms are fully six inches in diameter, and the pastel shades seem to be growing more and more the fad among the women folk.

Cecile Brunner roses, especially the outdoor grown ones, are in good supply, and good liberal bunches are being retailed at 25 cents a bunch. The bunches of sweet peas are getting larger instead of smaller, but we notice that the stems are considerably shorter, this being the second crop. Lilium auratum and longiflorum make an excellent showing at this writing, but there is no great quantity of them available. Cattleyas are in short supply. A few of our growers bringing in late gigas find them quickly bought up. Phalænopsis are practically unavailable; a few Cattleya Mendellii still hang on. Gardenias are becoming more and more an article of demand in the west, and several of our growers are going into the culture of gardenias more heavily than in seasons heretofore.

Joint Outing.

The joint annual outing of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society and the Retail Florists' Association was held Sunday, July 27, at Grand Canyon park, Richmond. The attendance was close to 700, and it was a good, jolly crowd.

Daniel Raymond, who represents the Garden City Pottery Co.; Peter Ferrari, a local grower, and H. Plath, president of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, were untiring in their efforts to push the affair to a success, and they certainly made a good job of it.

In addition to a hotly contested baseball game between the growers and the retail florists, there was dancing to the tune of a brass band of ten, picnicking and a general frolic. When the final gate receipts are reported, there is no doubt that there will be a neat balance to be divided between the treasuries of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society and the Retail Florists' Association.

Various Notes.

J. H. Troy, manager and proprietor of the Rosary Flower Co., New York city, has been visiting the Pacific coast with his wife and son. Mr. Troy spent three weeks around Los Angeles and has just left San Francisco after taking in the sights about the exposition grounds and the peninsula. Mr. Troy was the guest of Daniel MacRorie on his tour.

Eric James, one of our leading transbay growers, is enlarging his establishment by the addition of several houses. Mr. James is well known among the trade for his efficiency as a grower of potted flowering plants, kentias and ferns.

NEW SWEET PEA
MONROVIA

For several years this has been the best seller on the Los Angeles and other local markets, and I have decided to offer it to the trade as long as the stock lasts at $5.00 per ounce.

Monrovia begins to flower when only about one foot high and continues to bloom profusely until it reaches 8 feet high outdoors. It will make a splendid greenhouse variety, as the buds do not drop under any conditions. The color is a deep purple outside, inside heliotrope, and it is unquestionably the finest winter-blooming purple in existence. The seed has been carefully reselected from large pods only. It was gathered in April and May in the foothill section, and is consequently mature and of high germinating power. It is an exceptionally stout grower and throws long stemmed flowers all through the season, four to six flowers to the stem. This offer will be withdrawn as soon as present stock is exhausted.

ful shop with two large hydrangeas at the sides of the entrance court. The hydrangeas when placed there were a mass of blue flowers and stood fully eight feet high and ten feet in diameter. They are the finest specimens that we have ever seen exhibited in any local shop. Mr. Stein reports a flourishing business for the month of July, having been occupied constantly with decorations. The recent Lilienthal-Fries wedding at the Fairmont hotel was an occasion for which Mr. Stein could use his great decorative genius. The color scheme was pink and blue, and by the use of Grecian vases and other equally attractive ornaments, Mr. Stein converted the ball room into a royal bower.

Peter Ferrari, of Ferrari Bros., is overlooking the work of extensive improvement in the range of his firm.

The Fairmont Floral Co. has been showing its new delivery automobile during the last week. The car has a large white body and is quite attractive, as well as useful.

Podesta & Baldocchi have been featuring large ornate baskets in their windows during the week. The flowers most used for color have been zinnias and scabiosas. Mr. and Mrs. Victor Podesta recently returned from a ten days' trip through the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys in their new machine.

D. MacRorie, H. Plath, Peter Ferrari and many other members of the craft have just completed preparing the itinerary of their trip to the Boston convention. It is hoped that our eastern brothers and fellow tradesmen will realize that San Francisco is the only logical point for the 1915 convention, it being the exposition city. W. A. H.

WINTER SWEET PEAS.

kept the seeds of each separate. First I sowed the vetch, but having only a few seeds, as most of them had been destroyed by a fire near-by, I finally had only the sweet pea hybrid seed left. This was in 1887, when I was preparing to come to the United States.

Comes to America.

"In the fall of 1888 I came to this country, and a year afterward was given charge of H. Bolte's greenhouses, at Allentown, Pa. There I at once sowed the sweet pea hybrids. Several weeks after sowing, many strange plants came up among the seedlings, entirely different in foliage and growth. This was a most exciting time for me. Soon I noticed that they had begun to form buds, and about sixty days after the seeds were first sown, the first flower opened. The plants were only about twenty-eight inches high, with only a single branch. The flowers were small, only one or two of brick red, purple, and white with bluish-pink, on a stem. I kept each color separate, crossing them again with the best variety of sweet pea existing at that time. It was in this year that Henry Eckford began his great work of improving the sweet pea, and by the year 1889 there were thirty-five known varieties.

"About the same year D. M. Ferry & Co. introduced the famous Blanche Ferry. This variety has put all other varieties in the shade. No wonder, for this sweet pea produces flowers with stems sixteen inches long, with three to four large flowers on each stem, at that time unknown.

Puts New Sorts on the Market.

"I became exceedingly busy now crossing this new variety with my winter-flowering hybrids. In the second generation many different colors came. Three of the same shape as the Blanche Ferry were much larger; one was pink and white, one pure white, and one blue. I selected the pink and white for propagating, and named it the Winter Blanche Ferry. This variety began to revert so badly to the old late-flowering type that I have not intended to introduce it at all, but have given some seeds to many growers for test under glass. Recrossing the Christmas Blanche Ferry with the late-flowering Blanche Ferry, again I obtained the famous Christmas Pink.

"In 1893 Peter Henderson & Co. introduced the epoch-making white sweet pea, Emily Henderson. This I crossed again with my Christmas Pink, and the result was the pure white winter-flowering large hybrid which I later named Florence Denzer. This and Christmas Pink were extensively grown for the New York stores from 1895 to 1898.

The Demand for the Seed.

"Having offers for my seed from many growers, many of whom offered me as much as $150 a pound, I began to increase the seed as much as possible. I now began to advertise, and in a few weeks, to my surprise, found I had sold all the seed. The orders had been scattered all over the world among the florists. About this same time one seed firm began to advertise the 'Earliest of All Sweet Peas,' which, on close examination, I found to be nothing but my old Christmas Blanche Ferry. As I have mentioned, this variety has the tendency to revert to the late-flowering, so that only about ten per cent have come into bloom during the winter. This seed has been offered quite cheap, so that many florists have bought it and planted it extensively in their greenhouses, but they are unable to cut any flowers until late in May, while those who have bought my Christmas Pink seed have picked flowers from Thanksgiving until late in the spring.

Outbreak of "Sweet Pea Fever."

"From that time I devoted my entire time to the sweet pea seed, selecting only the best-selling varieties. About the year 1906 the sweet pea fever began to exist among florists. One large greenhouse after another was built in nearly every section for sweet peas alone. Sometimes whole ranges of glass were constructed for them. The call for sweet pea seed grew larger every year, the orders being doubled and tripled, until I began to think that the sweet pea would soon be overdone. Instead of going down, however, the price of the flowers rose. This convinced me that people want this flower at any price.

"In 1901 Silas Cole, an English gardener, had exhibited a new kind of sweet pea which he called the Countess Spencer, after his employer. This new sweet pea, when first exhibited, created great excitement among the English, which was only natural, for it was larger than any existing at that time, was of a beautifully wavy shape and usually bore four flowers on a long stem. The entire world learned of this new variety, and the name of Silas Cole has been written in golden letters in the history of the sweet pea.

Charlotte, Mich.—Mr. and Mrs. Rheinholdt Wietzke have moved here from Owosso to take possession of the greenhouse property recently purchased from Mrs. William Breitmeyer. The new owners were married last June; Mrs. Wietzke before her marriage was Miss Beatrice Olive Herrick.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE annual meeting of the Idaho Nurserymen's Association has been postponed until the time of the meeting of the state legislature next winter.

CALIFORNIA nurserymen are to have a first-rate convention this year, if early preparations mean anything. President D. W. Coolidge, of Pasadena, and Secretary Henry W. Kruckeberg, of Los Angeles, met a number of San Diego nurserymen at the U. S. Grant hotel in their city last week, to start the ball rolling. The fourth annual convention of the association will be held in San Diego October 14 and 15, and a live meeting is expected.

FOR a purpose not divulged, publicity is being given the value of English walnut trees for commercial orchards by Hollister Sage, of Waterbury, Conn. He believes that of the 50,000,000 pounds of these nuts annually consumed by the United States the large proportion which is now imported might be grown in the northern states of this country. California, he states, grows about 24,000,000 pounds a year. In connection with this subject the success of E. C. Pomeroy, son of Norman Pomeroy, the Lockport, N. Y., nurseryman, is referred to.

A BILL providing a place for a practical nurseryman on the state board of entomology is before the senate of the Georgia legislature and has received the recommendation of the committee on agriculture. At present the presidents of the state horticultural and agricultural societies are ex-officio members of the board; by this bill, when the terms of the two present incumbents expire, four and six years from now, the governor is to appoint a nurseryman and a farmer to their places. The present members, presidents of the societies, are J. C. Wade, of Cornelia, and J. T. Williams, of Red Oak.

IN connection with its landscape and nursery business, the La Grange Nursery Co., of La Grange, Ill., proposes to conduct a general greenhouse business and has purchased the range of C. W. Northrup, which will be moved to the company's grounds on North Brainard avenue. The La Grange Nursery Co. has met with such success since it was started by Henry Mehl two years ago that the proprietor's father-in-law, Julius Westphal, of Chicago, is to join him in enlarging the facilities of the concern and will move to La Grange. Carl L. Sewell, for many years with the Harrison nurseries, at York, Neb., will come to La Grange to act as general manager and superintendent of both the greenhouses and nursery.

PARK SUPERINTENDENTS MEET.

The American Association of Park Superintendents will hold its annual meeting August 24 to 27 at Newburgh, N. Y. The headquarters of the association in New York city will be the Hotel Astor. The entertainment committee has been busy and the members of the association in attendance will have much of their time taken up by excursions of various kinds. On the schedule are a visit to Mount Beacon, a boat trip down the Hudson river, a luncheon at Arden, by the courtesy of Mrs. E. H. Harriman, visits to Interstate park and West Point, and an automobile excursion through the Newburgh parks and the Tuxedo valley.

You may discontinue our advertisement, as we are through with our spring shipments, but we will give you another order for fall, as THE RESULTS from the one for spring HAVE BEEN VERY SATISFACTORY.—Franklin Davis Nursery Co., Baltimore, Md., May 19, 1914.

RAILWAY GARDENERS TO MEET.

The eighth annual convention of the Railway Gardening Association will be held in New York city August 11 to 14. The headquarters of the association will be at the Hotel Breslin. As a form of rest after the more serious proceedings of the organization, trips to the Duke farms, at Ocean Grove, N. J., and to Coney island have been arranged by the entertainment committee.

FROZEN AFTER PURCHASE.

Was Buyer or Seller the Loser?

A contract to sell and "to deliver to party of the second part, in a sound and healthy condition, such and all [orange] trees now growing in our nursery rows, and hereinafter described," at 30 cents per tree, was recently construed by the Texas Court of Civil Appeals, in the case of Alsworth vs. Reppert, 167 Southwestern Reporter, 1098, not to make the buyer liable for the price of trees which were frozen before they were dug by him. The seller claimed that the buyer must bear the loss, on the theory that title to the trees passed when the contract of sale was made, but the Court of Civil Appeals said:

"The instrument is headed 'Purchase Contract,' and is referred to as a 'contract and sale.' It does not recite that the appellants have sold the trees to appellees, but that appellants agree to deliver them in a sound and healthy

CALIFORNIA PRIVET HEDGING

For the coming Autumn and next Spring's sales

I have to offer over a half million California Privet, consisting of two years old in 1½ to 2 feet, 2 to 3 feet and 3 to 4 feet; three years in 3 to 4 feet, and one year in 12 to 18 inches and 1½ to 2 feet grades. The two and three year grades were carefully cut back the past Spring, are well branched and strictly first-class.

I am prepared to offer exceedingly attractive prices, especially in carload lots.

Being the introducer of the California Privet as a hedge plant away back in the early seventies, it is perhaps not claiming too much to say I am headquarters for it.

condition. The trees were sound and healthy at the time the instrument was signed, and, had it been intended that appellees should take title at that time, and with it the risk, it would have been easy to express that intention by simply saying that the trees were sold and delivered to appellees. The instrument further provides that the balance was to be paid 'as trees are delivered, the delivery consisting as above described, wherein party of the second part is to dig said trees at his own expense.' By this clause the parties admit that no delivery has been made, and agree what should constitute a delivery.

Constructive or Actual Delivery?

"It does not appear," the judge continued, "that the trees were counted, or their number agreed upon, at the time or before the signing of said instrument, and, while the number of the trees of the size mentioned could easily be arrived at by measuring and counting, yet it also became necessary to determine at the time of delivery how many of the trees were sound and healthy, and to separate them from those which might be unsound or unhealthy. The agreement either contemplated that the title should pass at the time of delivery, in which case the risk was with the appellants, or that the title passed at once, and appellants contracted that all of the trees would remain in a sound and healthy condition up to the time when delivery should take place as provided in the instrument. The latter construction, which was the one adopted by the trial court, is said by appellants to be absurd, as it would bind them to deliver every tree of the size specified then growing in their nursery rows, and, if they failed to do so, appellees would be released from complying with the contract. Such a contract appears very unwise to appellants after the freeze, and upon a close analysis of its terms by their attorney; but it is highly probable that when they signed it they did not view it as they do now. tention that one part of the contract refers to a constructive delivery and the other to an actual delivery is absurd. They say that the obligation to deliver in a sound and healthy condition meant to so deliver constructively at the time the instrument was signed, and, as it is admitted that the trees were sound and healthy at that time, they have fully complied with their contract. The delivery contemplated in the agreement was an actual delivery, and it was expressly provided how it should be consummated.

Risk Assumed by Seller.

"We conclude," said the court, "that the parties intended the instrument as an executory contract of sale, and that the title to the trees which became frozen had never passed to appellees, but, should we be mistaken in this, then it is clear that appellants contracted absolutely to deliver the trees in a sound and healthy condition when called for by appellees, and that they failed to comply with such contract. The law declares that the risk goes with the title; but that is in the absence of a contract. There can be no doubt that the parties as a part of their contract can provide that the seller assumes the risk up to actual delivery. When such a contract is made, and the payment is to be made for trees delivered in a sound and healthy condition, plaintiffs cannot recover the price upon delivering or tendering frozen trees. We are not considering whether appellants could be held liable for damages for failing to comply with their contract, but whether they can recover upon same when they have not complied therewith. If appellants wanted to make any exception which would relieve them from the risk they assumed by contracting that the trees would be sound and healthy when delivered, they should have named such exception in the contract. They did not occupy the position of bailees, as contended by appellants, but of contractors, who, having failed to comply with their contract, cannot recover the compensation agreed to be paid for such compliance. * * * The testimony that 'sound and healthy' means, among nurserymen, such a condition of trees as is certified to by certificates from the Department of Agriculture was properly excluded. No inspector would certify that dead or frozen trees were in a sound and healthy condition. The words 'sound and healthy' may mean free from disease, as contended by appellants, but also mean that the trees must be alive, and not frozen so badly as to be worthless." S.

CENSUS OF TRADE IN ENGLAND.

A census of the nursery (greenhouse) and seed trades has been undertaken by the Horticultural Trades Association of Great Britain and Ireland, but is meeting with the same difficulties that destroyed the value of the work of the United States census in 1910—the trade does not respond fully and accurately. The first attempt of the U. S. census bureau was to gather its statistics by means of responses to blanks sent to all known addresses in the trade. But there was no complete, accurate list, and only a small percentage of those who received blanks returned them with all spaces properly and accurately filled in. Then special enumerators were instructed to get the facts, but too late to secure the results that had been anticipated.

When the trades association in England undertook a census of the industry a firm of American certified public accountants was retained. At a recent meeting it was reported that "the inquiry did not touch a large class of tomato and cucumber growers, who, though not nurserymen, formed a strong branch of commercial horticulture and ought, it was considered, to be included in any return made. It was arranged to take steps to enlarge the scope of the inquiry so as to take in the class described. A communication was submitted from Price, Waterhouse & Co., showing that they were having considerable difficulty in compiling the returns, owing to the careless way in which some members had filled in their forms. It was also stated that only some 600 had made returns out of the 2,000 requested to do so, and that unless a larger percentage could be induced to make returns, the results of the inquiry would be obviously defective and incomplete. It was agreed that an appeal to the trade be issued through the press, and all those who have not yet made returns strongly urged to give the matter their prompt attention."

FIELD-GROWN PLANTS OF CARNATIONS EVERYBODY NEEDS

JOY! We have been handling it for a little over two years and ought to know something about it. JOY! It's a real red. It is the kind of Carnation that proves the florists' friend. Shipped over a distance, it will look as good on arrival as when sent. This feature appeals to us because we know what it means to the man who is depending on us.

JOY has been described by Mr. E. H. Blameuser, of Niles Center, Ill.—the man who raised it—as "a strong grower, early, very free and continuous bloomer, with strong calyx and good stem." That should be good enough for anybody.

Strong field-grown plants, $10.00 per 100; $80.00 per 1000.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The last week has brought no change in the local market conditions, the supply and demand being practically equally adjusted. Asters are rapidly becoming the predominant feature. Business is normally sluggish, funeral work giving about all the activity noticeable.

Various Notes.

Matthew J. Leach, one of the best known florists in Rhode Island, and his two sons, Herbert A. Leach and Edward I. Leach, all of Pawtucket, have filed articles of association as M. J. Leach & Sons, for the purpose of conducting a florists' business, located at Pawtucket, with a capitalization of $40,000.

Nathan Fishelson, of Joseph Koppelman's force, and his wife are spending the summer at Sharon Springs, Mass.

Eugene Seymour is putting one of his large houses at Warren to Whitmani ferns.

Smith, the Florist, has had several large funeral orders recently. Among these was a large standing wreath, ten feet tall, for the funeral of Superintendent of Public Buildings Steere.

The Providence Horticultural Co. has been driven with work during the last week in connection with the crusade on the army worm.

Frederick Covill, formerly manager of the flower department of the Shepard Co., but now with a florists' concern at Montreal, Can., is spending a part of his vacation in this city. W. H. M.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Mrs. Carl Jurgens, Sr., is critically ill at her residence, on Bliss Mine road.

The receptions, dinners and other social functions in connection with the visit of the Duchess of Marlborough have made an unusual demand for flowers and decorations. Wadley & Smythe have been exceptionally busy along these lines, and the other retailers have received their share of work.

Table decorations are included in the premium list of the joint show of the Newport Garden Club and the Newport Horticultural Society, to be held at Belcourt August 13 to 15. The prizes for this class led to the expectation of fine exhibits. Other lines are well represented, also. W. H. M.

Canton, Ill.—George W. Jacobs is putting in an addition to his greenhouse on East Elm street. The boiler room is being reconstructed, and new foundations and a new smokestack are being built..

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

All the talk at present here is of war. Some are talking of the European war, and others of war on the drought of the last two seasons. There are more private irrigating plants being put in this season than ever before in the city and vicinity, I am sure. Florists who have been short of water are looking to their supply, while market gardeners are putting in private pumping plants and the Skinner irrigating system where they can. Those who have already done so are reaping a rich harvest this season. We are led to wonder if it would not have paid some of the growers to grow tomatoes and beans this season instead of roses and carnations. String beans were selling at $10.50 per barrel wholesale on the market square a few days ago. This is not really trade news, but it tells better than anything else the condition of outdoor crops. With the exception of gladioli, there are no outdoor flowers.

Cut flowers are scarce. Kaiserin and Maryland are about the only thing in roses, and they are not at all good. We doubt if a dozen really high-class roses could be found in the city today. Lilies are in good supply and the quality is good. Gladioli are in good supply, but the quality is poor. It is better than it was a week ago, however.

Business has been better during the last fortnight than is usual at this season. As the demand has been mostly for funeral work, it has been possible to dispose of the short-stemmed roses to good advantage. We have not seen a carnation that was worthy the name for several weeks. Asters are little better and they are all shipped in.

Various Notes.

Most of the help of the Joy Floral Co. are off on their vacations. Those who were left behind have been on the jump to get out a run of funeral work. This firm is cutting gladioli heavily at present, and the blooms are the best that I have seen this season.

The new pavement is finished in front or the store of Geny Bros. and they are again able to get their wagons up to the door. For a time they have been compelled to carry everything half a block. Oscar and Leo Geny have each purchased a new Overland car and are taking advantage of the slack summer season to see the country in the vicinity of Nashville.

We are informed that J. K. Postma has taken charge of the Ward Belmont Greenhouses for the coming year. Mr. Postma has received word that his patent has been allowed on his fumigator for burning tobacco in a more economical and effective way in greenhouses. Those who have tested it say that it is a good thing.

McIntyre Bros. say business is rather quiet at present, but they are getting the usual amount of summer work.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

FREIGHT ON FUEL UNCHANGED.

A majority of all the greenhouses in the United States are located in the territory affected by the long overdue freight rate decision published August 1 by the Interstate Commerce Commission. This territory comprises that part of the country east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio river, east to the Atlantic ocean. It is less than one-fourth the area of the United States, but in it are more than three-fourths of the subscribers to The Review. They will, of course, be affected exactly as are the rest of the people by the broad general phases of the decision, but they will escape any addition to the transportation cost of coal, the article which, next to labor, forms the principal item of expense in running a greenhouse. The commission refuses permission to advance the rate on coal—anywhere. While it is found that rates in the territory between Buffalo, Pittsburgh and the Mississippi are lower than anywhere else in the United States, and permission is granted for an advance of five per cent in class rates and on many commodities, the rates on coal are among those that are held to be already sufficiently profitable. In no other territory are any advances granted. How important to florists as a whole is the action holding down the rates on coal may be judged from the fact that there are a dozen growers around Chicago who each burn anywhere from 3,000 to 20,000 or more tons of West Virginia coal on which the freight already is $2.10 per ton and on which the railroads had asked the right to advance it another 10½ cents per ton.

ONE-INCH PIPE IS TOO SMALL.

I should like to get a little advice in regard to piping my two greenhouses, which are each 14x50, four feet high to the eaves and nine feet high to the ridge. The houses adjoin, but have a concrete wall between them. The two outside walls and the ends are also concrete. I wish to grow carnation and tomato plants. Here, in the western part of New York state, the outside temperature sometimes drops as low as 25 degrees below zero. The boiler house is connected to the end of the greenhouses. My dwelling house protects the greenhouses from the severe west winds. I shall use hot water heat. Would it be satisfactory to put a 2-inch pipe, four inches long, in the top of the boiler with a tee coupling, so that I could run flowpipes into the two houses side by side? Would this pipe, four inches long, be large enough to supply the two mains? How should the houses be piped, for best results? Can I use 1-inch and 1½-inch pipe? I have plenty of these on hand.

G. W. B.

To heat the houses described, at least 250 square feet of radiation will be required for each house with an open-tank system and 200 square feet if a mercury circulator is used. I would prefer to use one 2½-inch flow pipe for each of the houses, and it would be well to connect each of them directly with the boiler. Even when to be used under pressure and with small sized pipes for the coils, it would be preferable not to use a single 2-inch connection for the two houses, although it would answer if a 2-inch flow were used for each. If 2½-inch flows are used, they might be connected singly with the boiler by means of short 2-inch nipples.

It will answer well to use 1½-inch pipes for the returns, but I would prefer not to use the 1-inch pipe. For each of the houses put in a 2½-inch overhead flow and six 1½-inch returns with a mercury circulator, or eight or nine returns with an open-tank system.

THE COAL MARKET.

The latest reports on the coal trade may be summarized in the scarcely enthusiastic statement that the slight improvement announced last week is still discernible, with an advance in the prices of certain grades of fuel, but that buying still is light and there are large reserve stocks of coal that have not yet been touched. Naturally, there has been much discussion during the last week as to what effect the European war may be expected to have on the coal trade in America, if all the principal countries of Europe become involved in the terrific struggle. It seems to be generally agreed that a war of such magnitude would necessarily increase the demand for fuel in this country to a greater or less degree, but the various opinions seem to be governed as much by imagination as by available facts and figures. However, there are vague, unverified reports to the effect that considerable quantities of American coal have already been purchased for the use of European navies.

The greatest present increase of business is noted in the sales of the class of fuel in which florists are most interested, the so-called smokeless coals. With reference to this department of the market a leading coal journal says: "The smokeless coal business has shown a decided upturn in the last week. Sales during the last half of July were quite heavy for two reasons: The first is that the circular price advanced to $1.40 per ton August 1. Retail dealers appreciate that the larger companies are able to maintain that circular price. Therefore, they have been buying as much coal at July circular as they could take care of. The second reason is that real estate agencies have begun to buy coal for storage in apartment houses. This is making some small inroads upon retail stocks. Those stocks are quite heavy and could stand still greater inroads without embarrassment. But the dealers do not want to disturb these storage piles until the heavy movement begins in the latter part of September. Therefore, they are taking care of apartment house needs by placing orders with the mines. The supply of lump and egg still is less than the demand and the prices are strong."

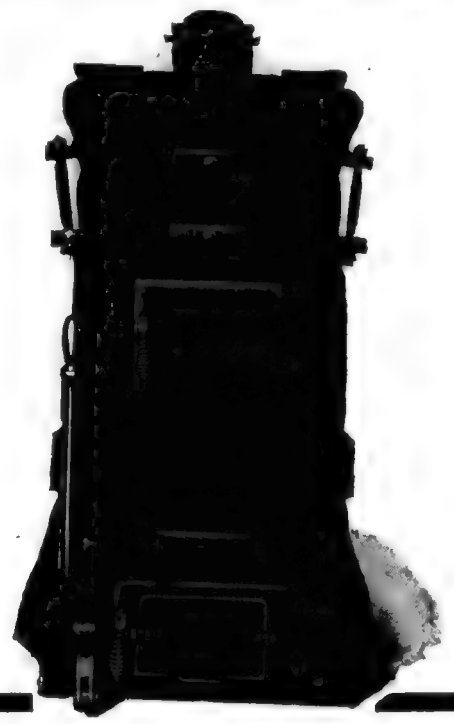
PIPING FOR HOTBED RANGE.

I intend to build a hotbed range 100 feet long, using 4x6 sashes. Kindly tell me how many 2-inch flow pipes, for hot water, will be needed to keep the range at a temperature of 40 to 45 degrees in zero weather. The location is eastern Missouri. G. F. D.

In case the house has no glass in the side walls and has but one row of sashes on each side of the ridge, it can be heated by means of one 2½-inch overhead flow and four 2-inch returns. If it is desired to use 2-inch pipes for the flows, two should be put in, each of which should be connected with two returns.

USING ONLY 2-INCH PIPE.

Please let me know what length of rafters should be used on a greenhouse twenty-two feet wide, inside measurement. Also tell me how many lines of 2-inch pipe will be needed to heat the house to 50 degrees in this Chicago climate. The house is 22x50, with 4-foot concrete walls and two feet of glass on top of the concrete. J. M. P.



While the length of the rafters will depend somewhat upon the desired height of the house and the use to which it is to be put, it will be about right to make them thirteen feet long. To heat the house described to 50 degrees will require about 400 square feet of radiating surface. I would advise running one flow pipe a foot or two below the ridge, connecting it at the farther end of the house with five 2-inch return pipes distributed under the benches. Then run a flow pipe on each wall plate and connect each of the flow pipes with four returns. Give the flow pipes a slight fall and connect the highest point of each with the expansion tank.

CANNOT GET SUFFICIENT HEAT.

Please give me some advice on how to pipe my greenhouses so as to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees in the daytime and 48 to 50 degrees at night. All the pipes, as at present installed, become uniformly hot, including the returns up to the boiler, but more radiation seems to be needed. I wish to use 2-inch pipe for flows and returns. The houses are built in an ell shape, with no partition. One 4-inch flow and one 4-inch return go through house No. 1 and branch to three 2-inch flows, connecting with twelve 2-inch returns in house No. 2. There are also one 2-inch flow and five 2-inch returns in house No. 1. I am located in northwestern Ohio. C. W. S.

The accompanying sketch shows house No. 1 to be 15x50 feet. This is heated by one 2-inch flow pipe and five 2-inch returns, in addition to the 4-inch flow and return which lead to house No. 2. The latter house is 30x50 and is heated by four 2-inch flows and twelve 2-inch returns.

With this radiation there should be no difficulty in maintaining the temperature desired, provided the piping is properly arranged. If, as stated, the pipes heat up evenly, it may be that the trouble is with the boiler or the firing.

"RICHARDSON" GREENHOUSE BOILERS

Were first put on the market many years ago. They were quickly recognized as possessing special adaptability to greenhouse requirements and have been sold to florists in steadily increasing numbers as the greenhouse industry has expanded.

A boiler must be a good boiler—and made by a strong, dependable manufacturer—to have withstood the stress of competition for so many years.

The "Richardson" line has developed with the needs of the trade. The "Richardson" now is made in sixty sizes, round, end feed, side feed—all sectional—for hot water and steam. They are low priced, but, better yet, they are fuel savers.

Back to Boiler SYSTEM

Why, Certainly

You can save fuel, time and money and have a better growth of stock by draining your steam lines and returning the condensation direct to your boilers—placed above ground—as pure, hot feed water.

If you will use, in place of your present unsatisfactory methods, an installation of the Morehead Back-to-Boiler System, you will find that the temperature of your greenhouses will always be steady and uniform.

Now will you write us your conditions and have our engineers go into your particular problem and then show you how it will be possible to make a real saving for you? Will you do this today—right now? It will be to your advantage.

Expressions From Men Who Know Boilers

A FAMOUS LONG ISLAND ESTABLISHMENT.

During the last cold wave, 6 above zero with a 90-mile gale blowing, one end of houses was as warm as the other, no variation at all, which speaks well for your heating plan.

There are no remarks or suggestions to make regarding your boilers, as we consider same the acme of perfection for greenhouse hot water heating in every way.

The steam boiler you furnished us last summer for pumping and heating purposes is certainly a "GEM." An easier, more effective as well as economical boiler as to fuel consumption I have not seen.

Supt. for Arthur Cockcroft.

OHIO'S CELEBRATED CYCLAMEN SPECIALIST.

After using your No. 12 Kroeschell Boiler I came to the conclusion that had I to install more boilers it would be the Kroeschell and no other. It really is a pleasure to heat, no trouble to get the desired heat in a very short time.

(Signed) CHRIST WINTERICH.
DEFIANCE, OHIO.

THE QUALITY PLACE OF BOSTON.

Regarding the Kroeschell it is the best we have ever had and satisfactory beyond our expectations. It heats up especially quick and has saved us considerably already in the price of fuel. When we are in need of another boiler we will give the Kroeschell the first consideration.

(Signed) WM. W. EDGAR CO.,

A BIG MAN IN THE FLORICULTURAL WORLD.

The Kroeschell Boiler I installed last year usually runs from 10 p. m. to 6 a. m. without attention. I do not have the least trouble to keep temperatures in the coldest weather. The boiler has given entire satisfaction.

The Kroeschell is the best boiler we have ever handled.

(Signed) CHARLES TOTTY,
MADISON, NEW JERSEY.

A FAMOUS ILLINOIS ROSE RANGE.

In speaking of the Kroeschell Boiler as an economical greenhouse boiler I cannot say too much. Personally I have had the pleasure or misfortune to fire nearly every make of G. H. Boiler on the market and I can safely say the Kroeschell is the best of them all.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST MUSHROOM PLANT.

We spent $100,000 in building and equipping the largest modern mushroom plant in the world. We purchased in every instance the best of everything we could get, and the fact that we installed a Kroeschell Boiler to furnish our heat is sufficient evidence of our opinion of same.

Since installing this boiler and operating it we have never had any reason to change our opinion.

(Signed) FALMOUTH MUSHROOM CELLARS, INC.,

A WELL KNOWN CARNATION PRIZE WINNER.

The carnation range of Mr. Nic Zweifel, of North Milwaukee, consists of nearly 70,000 sq. ft. glass and the water plant is heated by a No. 14 and No. 15 Kroeschell Boiler and Kroeschell Generator. The product of the plant is known throughout the West for its fine quality. Mr. Z. has used different kinds of boilers. As for the Kroeschell, he says: "I think the Kroeschell Boilers are the best boilers a florist can buy."

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

Every florist complains that business is exceedingly dull. A little funeral work is about all the activity in the flower line these days. There is a scarcity of all kinds of stock. Roses are poor and scarce. Russell, Taft and Ward are the best roses; White Killarney holds up pretty well, however. Gladioli are excellent and they are the most abundant flowers just now. Asters are coming into the market in large quantities and they are improving in size and length of stem right along. There are a few Japanese lilies, rubrum and album, to be had now. Harrisii lilies are rather scarce. Sweet peas are getting poorer and the summer crop will soon be over. American Beauties are good, considering the warm weather. Valley is excellent and the price is moderate. Cattleyas are abundant. Larkspurs, snapdragons, cut hydrangeas, candytuft, etc., are among the garden flowers for sale of late.

Club Picnic.

The annual outing of the Buffalo Florists' Club was held Thursday, July 23, at the Bedell House, Grand Island. Notwithstanding the fact that it rained nearly all afternoon, there was a good attendance, and in the late afternoon the weather was quite clear, so that the events were run off in a satisfactory manner. These included various kinds of races, a baseball game and a tug of war between growers and storemen. Walter Leney was the star prize winner of the day, capturing firsts in the half-mile race and running broad jump and second prize in the 100-yard dash.

Dinner was served at 7 p. m. and the table decoration was most artistic, having been executed by Charles Erhardt, who deserves a great deal of credit for his work. After dinner, dancing and bowling occupied the evening until a late hour. Everyone voted the day a most enjoyable one.

Oldest and Newest Greenhouse Boiler Made

IT'S really forty years old and two years young. Forty years ago we started to make our first greenhouse boiler. Two years ago we made the last really important improvement on it—that of making the grates shake half at a time.

This Burnham Boiler now is the big brother of a family of four, three of whom have long since been relegated to the past. This Big Brother Burnham, however, is the boiled down goodness of all the good there was in those other boilers, with the faults all skimmed off and thrown away. As it stands today it represents our half a century, and over, of greenhouse experience, and forty years of actual boiler making.

We were the first to make a boiler especially for greenhouse work. We are still the first; because there has been, or is, no second.

Anything that is made especially to do a special thing, it stands to reason, should do that thing specially well.

The question for you to decide then, is—will you buy just a boiler, or a greenhouse boiler that actually is a greenhouse boiler? Before you make any decision, let us give you some important facts and figures.

forms the principal motif. Spencer pink peas are artistically grouped, while overhead the leafy canopy of beech branches makes a most realistic woodland scene. Birds flit about in the branches; rabbits scamper over the logs and rocks, while white ducklings swim about in the pond and goldfish play in the water. Altogether it is the most realistic summer window shown thus far in this particular style.

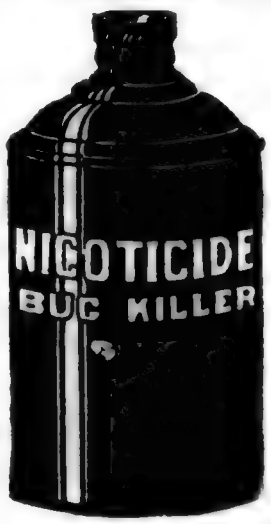
DETROIT.

Florists' Club Outing.

The outing of the Detroit Florists' Club, at Bois Blanc island, July 31, was fairly well attended, although many familiar faces were missing, especially those of some of our older members. The weather was ideal, being cool, and the ball game was the attractive feature of the day. John Berlin, of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, acted as captain for the wholesalers, and J. Anderson for the retailers; the latter won by a score of 9 to 7, in seven innings.



Phil Foley, of Chicago, happened to be in Mount Clemens, and when he heard of the outing he joined us at Detroit. Mr. Foley was easily the most popular man in the crowd. He gave a liberal cash prize to the winners of the ball game and then treated the losing team to their dinner. Although Henry Rahaley acted as umpire, Mr. Foley rendered many of the decisions. As he is a quite good-sized man, no one dared cross him. In the games the prize-winners were:

Girls' race, under 10 years—Elenore Miesel, first.
Ladies' race—Henrietta Pautke, first.
Boys' race, under 10 years—Fred Miesel, first.
Boys' race, between 10 and 16 years—Ed. Podlewski, first.
Men's race—Ben. Pautke, first; John Breitmeyer, second; B. Hielscher, third.
Broad jump—Mr. Wittbrodt, first; Ben. Pautke, second.
Half-mile race—Ben. Pautke, first; J. Breitmeyer, second; G. Pautke, third.
Quoits—Robert Jean, first; Fred Miesel, second.

Various Notes.

Among the many thousand Americans now in Europe are Harry Breitmeyer, Frank Danzer and Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Plumb. The two former were to return about September 1. Mr. Plumb sailed from Quebec with his wife August 1.

PLANTLIFE

PLANTLIFE has several advantages over liquid insecticides on the market. Containing refined tobacco dust it can be used to mix with the soil, acting as an excellent fertilizer, at the same time destroying worms and insects in the ground before they have a chance to reach the plant.

PLANTLIFE has been found very effective in ridding greenhouses of insects by dusting on plants. When dry, use for dusting about once a week.

Put up in bulk for greenhouse men; in packages for retail trade.

The Market.

The market is well supplied in almost every line. Throughout last week and the first part of this week the receipts have increased steadily, until there is on hand far more than enough stock to go around. Naturally, low prices rule.

The supply of gladioli continues large and includes many choice spikes. The aster cut has increased greatly and added to the large local supply are the shipments from Michigan. These really are better than anything else in the market. Giganteum lilies are not plentiful, but apparently are sufficient in quantity to take care of all calls. The rose situation is unchanged. There is plenty of stock, some of which is more or less indifferent in quality, while a considerable part of the whole moves out of the wholesale houses only via the waste barrel. Other offerings include auratum and rubrum lilies, tuberoses, hardy hydrangeas, dahlias and a few antirrhinums. The supply of greens is sufficient for requirements.

Various Notes.

The Cincinnati Florists' Society will hold its regular meeting at the club rooms Monday, August 10.

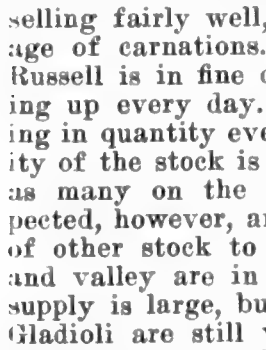
The Market.

The old saying that "there is no loss without some small gain" holds good in the florists' business now. Were it not for deaths and the resultant funeral work, the trade would have absolutely nothing to do. Florists in general are taking advantage of the lull and a large percentage are away from the city for rest and recreation.

The old carnations are about gone and there are few coming in. These are always in demand, but their quality is nothing to boast of. Roses are still plentiful and some fine, long-stemmed ones are seen. Short-stemmed roses are selling fairly well, owing to the shortage of carnations. Rose Mrs. Charles Russell is in fine condition and is cleaning up every day. Asters are increasing in quantity every day and the quality of the stock is good. There are not as many on the market as were expected, however, and this helps the sale of other stock to some extent. Lilies and valley are in good shape and the supply is large, but the sales are slow. Gladioli are still with us, but are deteriorating in quality and are not cleaning up well. American Beauties are good, but are having only a limited sale.

Various Notes.



F. H. Holton, accompanied by his wife and daughter, left August 3 on an extended vacation trip. They will visit relatives in Vermont and will attend the S. A. F. convention at Boston. From there they will go to New York and to Atlantic City, where they will spend some time before visiting other cities in the east. They will probably be away about a month.

W. C. Zimmermann left August 2 to attend the Eagles' convention at Kansas City, Mo. He will be away for a week. He has announced his candidacy for the office of county treasurer at the coming election. As his sterling qualities and ability are well known, everyone is pulling for him and wishing him all success.

H. V. Hunkel left on a short business trip in this state July 31.

Paul R. Klingsporn, manager of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, was in Milwaukee July 31. William Johnson, of A. L. Vaughan & Co., Chicago, and Tony Wolniewicz, a Chicago retailer, also visited this city last week.

Mr. Heacock, of the Joseph Heacock Co., Wyncote, Pa., visited the trade here July 31. H. J. S.

An Outing.

The Denver florists entertained the Colorado Springs florists at a picnic Saturday, August 1, at Elitch Gardens, a delightful and popular pleasure resort run in connection with the Elitch-Long Floral Co. A party of forty arrived at 10 a. m. to spend Saturday and Sunday with us. Automobiles were waiting to take them over our splendid boulevard and park system and then out to Elitch Gardens, where dinner was served. After dinner Denver's team beat the Colorado Springs team in a close and interesting baseball game, the score being 12 to 11. Mrs. Ruby Hodgers won first place in the married ladies' race. The young ladies' race was won by Miss Uhra Schlesinger. Mr. Davis was the victor in the young men's race. Carl Lingenfelder won the fat men's race by a small margin. He said he got his training in the German army, only he was not in the fat men's class then. Prizes were given to all the winners.

Supper was served in the gardens, under the magnificent old apple trees that are one of the gardens' greatest charms. In the evening everyone enjoyed a performance of "The Lottery Man," given by the Elitch Gardens stock company.

On Sunday the visitors were taken to the places of interest about the city.

DISEASED ASTERS.

Can you tell me what is the trouble with my aster plants? The buds dry up. I have sprayed with Paris green, but the disease seems to continue. I am sending a specimen plant. I. H. B.

The condition of your asters would seem to indicate a lack of moisture in the soil. Either this or extremes of moisture and dryness are likely to cause the trouble. If you keep your soil constantly cultivated you will retain the necessary moisture in the best possible way. Spraying with Paris green or other poisonous substances is useless except in destroying insect pests, while there is always grave danger that Paris green will burn rather than benefit the plants. Stir the ground thoroughly and frequently. It will do far more good than any spraying. C. W.

Scotch Soot

Where there is a house that is just full of buds almost ready to show color, nothing will turn better color into the flowers than a little soot, that can be scattered over the benches before watering. The amount applied should not be excessive, as the soot is very strong and may damage some of the foliage somewhat. Apply just enough to blacken the surface of the soil in the benches and let it go at that. Better a little oftener than too much all at once.

The Market.

There has been no change in business conditions since the first of last month unless it is that there is less doing. A marked drop in temperature materially shortened the supply of stock last week, but this was hardly noticeable in view of the limited demand. The storm that struck this section Thursday, July 30, was accompanied by hail on the Virginia side of the Potomac. On Sunday the mercury started to rise and the probability is that the city will again swelter throughout the entire month.

CANADIAN FLORISTS

HOLD CONVENTION AT TORONTO

Seventeenth Annual Convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association, at Toronto August 4 to 7, draws record attendance

FROM a social standpoint the seventeenth annual convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association eclipsed all previous records. There were more members in attendance than ever before, and from beginning to end everything was so well planned and carried out that it would seem impossible for better arrangements to have been made. Toronto's "old brigade" sticks together in a most remarkable manner, and when they make up their minds to accomplish anything, they generally manage to get there. At the same time it is rather a pity that out of the list of seventy retail florists in that city not one-third of that number seem to have joined the association, whereas from towns where there are not more than half a dozen florists the proportion of those who attended was outstanding evidence of the real live interest taken in matters pertaining to floriculture in the Dominion of Canada.

OFFICERS ELECTED

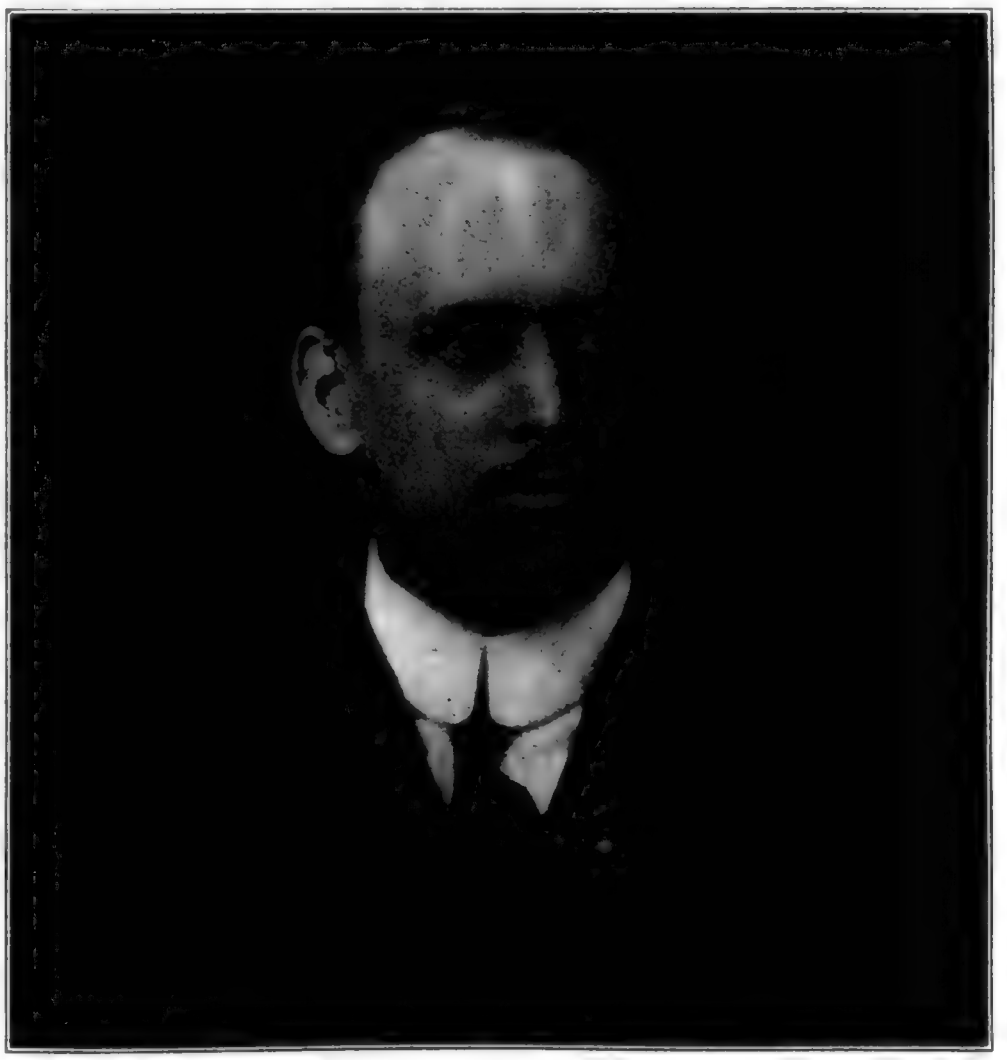
President,
H. B. Cowan, Peterboro.

First Vice-President,
Fred. W. Adams, Toronto.

Second Vice-President,
J. A. Fraser, Prescott.

Secretary-Treasurer,
Julius Luck, Montreal.

Next Meeting Place,
London, Ontario.



Opening Session.

The convention opened Tuesday morning, August 4, at St. George's hall, with E. J. Mepstead, of Ottawa, in the chair, H. B. Cowan, the president, being unfortunately kept away by the death of his mother. Controller O'Neall read Mayor Hocken's civic welcome, which was responded to by James McKenna, of Montreal. The report of Julius Luck, secretary and treasurer, was then read, the balance sheet showing a credit of $157.42 for the last year. Mr. Luck reported that there were at present 102 members belonging to the association, and mentioned that although several new members had joined, other members had dropped off, leaving the total membership about the same as last year. Considering the increased numbers that have entered the trade in the last few years, the energetic secretary would like to see the membership made up to 200 at least by the time of the next convention. An interesting address on "Hardy Conifers" was read by Prof. W. T. Marcoun, after which the city's observation motor cars were in waiting to convey the visitors to Miller & Sons' establishment, at Brackendale, for lunch. Afterwards they went on to the grounds of Sir Henry M. Pellatt, where, under the guidance of T. McVittie, two pleasant hours were spent amid lovely scenery, refreshments being served during the whole time.

The second session took place Tuesday evening, whereat an illustrated lecture was given by Chas. Chambers, park commissioner of Toronto, the subject being "Park Systems." H. J. Moore, of Queen Victoria park, Niagara Falls, gave an address on "A National Plant Register," which, though interesting, was much too long in delivery to be thoroughly liked and remembered by the majority of the listeners.

Interesting Lectures.

The third session, Wednesday morning, was occupied by addresses on "Greenhouse Construction," setting forth the respective merits of single and block houses, the discussion being joined in by most of the practical men present, and replied to by A. C. Wilshire and W. W. Gammage, the contributors of the papers on this subject. Wednesday afternoon was set apart for a journey by special train to the Dale Estate, at Brampton, where the members of the association were shown over the premises, and after being driven around the town were regaled most hospitably on the spacious lawn in front of the Dale homestead. There were over 200 present on this occasion, and after an enjoyable outing everyone returned to the annual banquet, which was held under attractive auspices in Exhibition park, H. B. Cowan presiding.

H. B. Cowan, re-elected President of the Canadian Horticultural Association.

Entertainment Features.

At the Thursday session E. J. Mepstead's paper on cyclamen proved a choice contribution, while papers by Walter Muston, on "Recent Rose Introductions," and by E. F. Collins, on "New Greenhouse Plants," were also appreciated. The members of the association went by special cars in the afternoon to Richmond Hill, where they were entertained by J. H. Dunlop, W. J. Lawrence, H. Mills and the members of the local horticultural society. At seven o'clock they returned to Toronto, and although pretty well used up, traveled down

HOLD CONVENTION AT TORONTO

Seventeenth Annual Convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association, at Toronto August 4 to 7, draws record attendance

FROM a social standpoint the seventeenth annual convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association eclipsed all previous records. There were more members in attendance than ever before, and from beginning to end everything was so well planned and carried out that it would seem impossible for better arrangements to have been made. Toronto's "old brigade" sticks together in a most remarkable manner, and when they make up their minds to accomplish anything, they generally manage to get there. At the same time it is rather a pity that out of the list of seventy retail florists in that city not one-third of that number seem to have joined the association, whereas from towns where there are not more than half a dozen florists the proportion of those who attended was outstanding evidence of the real live interest taken in matters pertaining to horticulture in the Dominion of Canada.

Opening Session.

The convention opened Tuesday morning, August 4, at St. George's hall, with E. J. Mepstead, of Ottawa, in the chair, H. B. Cowan, the president, being unfortunately kept away by the death of his mother. Controller O'Neall read Mayor Hocken's civic welcome, which was responded to by James McKenna, of Montreal. The report of Julius , secretary and surer, was then read, balance sheet showa credit of $157.42 the last year. Mr. reported that there at present 102 ers belonging to association, and oned that although al new members ined, other memhad dropped off, the total memp about the same year. Considerie increased numhat have entered rade in the last ears, the energetic ary would like to the membership p to 200 at least time of the next tion. An interestdress on "Hardy Conifers" was read by Prof. W. T. Macoun, after which the city's observation motor cars were in waiting to convey the visitors to Miller & Sons' establishment, at Brackendale, for lunch. Afterwards they went on to the grounds of Sir Henry M. Pellatt, where, under the guidance of T. McVittie, two pleasant hours were spent amid lovely scenery, refreshments being served during the whole time.

OFFICERS ELECTED

President,
H. B. Cowan, Peterboro.

First Vice-President,
Fred. W. Adams, Toronto.

Second Vice-President,
J. A. Fraser, Prescott.

Secretary-Treasurer,
Julius Luck, Montreal.

Next Meeting Place,
London, Ontario.

H. B. Cowan, re-elected President of the Canadian Horticultural Association.

The second session took place Tuesday evening, whereat an illustrated lecture was given by Chas. Chambers, park commissioner of Toronto, the subject being "Park Systems." H. J. Moore, of Queen Victoria park, Niagara Falls, gave an address on "A National Plant Register," which, though interesting, was much too long in delivery to be thoroughly liked and remembered by the majority of the listeners.

Interesting Lectures.

The third session, Wednesday morning, was occupied by addresses on "Greenhouse Construction," setting forth the respective merits of single and block houses, the discussion being joined in by most of the practical men present, and replied to by A. C. Wilshire and W. W. Gammage, the contributors of the papers on this subject. Wednesday afternoon was set apart for a journey by special train to the Dale Estate, at Brampton, where the members of the association were shown over the premises, and after being driven around the town were regaled most hospitably on the spacious lawn in front of the Dale homestead. There were over 200 present on this occasion, and after an enjoyable outing everyone returned to the annual banquet, which was held under attractive auspices in Exhibition park, H. B. Cowan presiding.

Entertainment Features

At the Thursday session E. J. Mepstead's paper on cyclamen proved a choice contribution, while papers by Walter Muston, on "Recent Rose Introductions," and by E. F. Collins, on "New Greenhouse Plants," were also appreciated. The members of the association went by special cars in the afternoon to Richmond Hill, where they were entertained by J. H. Dunlop, W. J. Lawrence, H. Mills and the members of the local horticultural society. At seven o'clock they returned to Toronto, and although pretty well used up, traveled down to Scarboro beach to spend the rest of the evening.

Friday was a delightful day, and, as the guests of the Toronto Gardeners' and Florists' Association, a large contingent crossed the lake and spent the day at Niagara Falls.

Despite the war news, the week's convention was a most interesting affair, and it is sincerely to be hoped that next year's outing, which is to take place at London, Ontario, will bring all the members together again, and many more in addition.

The Dale Estate, Brampton; W. W. Gammage, London, Ont.; H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, and the John Connon Co., Hamilton, made attractive exhibits of their goods at the convention hall, each firm securing diplomas at the hands of the judges.

The Election.

The officers elected for the ensuing season were:

President—H. B. Cowan, Peterboro, reëlected.

First Vice-President—F. W. Adams, Toronto.

Second Vice-President—J. A. Fraser, Prescott.

Secretary-Treasurer — Julius Luck, Montreal, reëlected.

Executive Committee—R. L. Dunn, H. J. Eddy, J. Jordan, A. Ferguson, J. Milford, F. Wise, J. Graham, A. H. Ewing, H. G. Mullis, F. Dicks, Geo. Douglas and J. Williams.

The Attendance.

The attendance was larger than at any previous meeting and quite enthusiastic. Practically all of the members of the Toronto Gardeners' and Florists' Association were at the meetings and took part in the excursions. Those from out of town whose presence was noted are as follows:

Bennett, J., Montreal.
Cook, E. T.
Cowan, H. B., Peterboro.
Dale, Edward, Brampton.
Dobbie, John, Niagara Falls.
Dunn, R. L., St. Catherines.
Eddy, H. J., Montreal.
Edwards, Mrs. W. H.
Everest, B., Ottawa.
Fendley, Wm., Brampton.
Fraser, J. A., Prescott.
Gammage, W. W., London.
Green, A.
Hay, Chas., Brockville.
Hopton, Mr. and Mrs. Geo., Montreal.
Jennings, R., Brampton.
Jordan, J., Peterboro.
Luck, Julius, Montreal.
McKenna, Jas., Montreal.
Marcoun, Prof. W. T.
Mepstead, E. J., Ottawa.
Mullis, H. G., Brampton.
Packman, C., Ottawa.
Peacock, W. G., Brampton.
Philpott, H. E., Winnipeg.
Porter, J., Collingswood.
Street Bros., Orillia.
Taylor, Wm., Barrie.
White, R. J., Toronto.
Wilshire, A. C., Montreal.
Wise, F., Peterboro.
Wood, Wm. R., Toronto.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

THE WHITE HOUSE FUNERAL.

Many extremely handsome designs were produced by Washington florists for the funeral of Mrs. Wilson, wife of the President, and, all told, they filled more than 150 orders. These orders started to come to the stores late on the afternoon of August 7, but many were not placed until Monday morning for delivery the same afternoon. The coming of a Saturday half-holiday and Sunday between these two dates placed the stores at somewhat of a disadvantage, but everything was handled expeditiously.

George C. Shaffer furnished more than twenty designs, among them being a massive standing wreath, eight feet high, containing upwards of 300 rubrum lilies forming the upper half of the wreath proper, the lower section being white asters interspersed with croton foliage.

J. H. Small & Sons, with but one or two exceptions, furnished the pieces for the entire diplomatic corps stationed in Washington. The majority of these were in the form of standing wreaths and were put up in a solid way, guaranteeing safe shipment to Rome, Ga., where Mrs. Wilson was laid at rest. While large quantities of Radiance, American Beauty, Killarney Queen and other roses were used, the tributes of the South Americans consisted largely of cattleya, formosum and vanda orchids. Many of these were tied with bows of the national colors of the countries for which they were sent. They also furnished offerings for the Washington corps of correspondents, the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Daughters of the Confederacy, the Gridiron Club, and for Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt.

Strange as it may seem, perhaps, the first tribute to be delivered at the White House was sent on behalf of the people of Mexico. This was one of the more than thirty pieces furnished by the Gude Bros. Co.

Z. D. Blackistone supplied, among many pieces, a standing wreath on behalf of the members of the United States Senate. The wreath proper measured a little more than three feet in diameter and was made of orchids and lily of the valley in cascade effect. On behalf of himself and Mrs. Blackistone he sent to the White House a handsome spray of Cattleya gigas.

Wreath by Geo. C. Shaffer for Wilson Funeral.

William Marche & Co., the DuPont Flower Shop, the Washington Florists' Co., Fred H. Kramer, O. A. C. Oehmler and others all came in for a share of the business, which taxed the capacity of the White House for the proper handling of the enormous mass of flowers, which exceeded anything ever before seen in Washington.

At the store of J. H. Small & Sons on Sunday I saw an enormous casket cover of Easter lilies and American Beauty roses furnished by Mr. Cummings of Baltimore, on behalf of the Democratic Clubs of that city.

NOVEL LIGHT FIXTURES.

A Michigan florist is the latest to add to the stylishness and individuality of his store by making use of the decorative skill which is one of the requisites of success in this line of trade. In constructing and fitting up his new retail store last spring, E. S. Thompson, proprietor of the Central Seed & Bulb Co., at 179 Pipestone street, Benton Harbor, Mich., did his best to outdo the other retailers in his part of the state without incurring expense out of proportion to his field. He knew he had a good-sized job on his hands if he were to do this, and started on a hunt for new and unique ideas. One with which he was particularly successful is his light fixtures. Indirect electric light is used in this store. To contain the bulbs and the reflectors, Mr. Thompson used wire hanging baskets, measuring twenty-four inches inside, inlaid with green sheet moss. Inside these, powerful reflectors are bolted and 100-watt electric light bulbs hidden from the view of persons on the floor. The fixtures are quite attractive and in harmony with the business, and the soft glow of light diffused over the entire room is practically as good as daylight. A traveler from that enterprising metropolis, Chicago, who saw the unusual fixtures, immediately asked to have a set made for his store in the city. This order, rather out of the ordinary for a flower store, was filled, and the baskets and lamps ready for lighting were shipped across the lake.

The store is decorated in a way that readily adapts itself to this system of lighting. The upper walls and ceiling are of a cream tint with gold figures, while the lower walls are of a natural green finish. The furnishings are all of white enamel. These include an 8-foot display case with double plate glass in front and sides, a 10-foot display case for baskets, ribbons, foliage, etc., fitted into a series of shelves that extend half the length of the store and across the rear end, and five tables.

There is a large room immediately in the rear for the storage and handling of seeds and bulbs, as well as a basement that keeps perfectly what bulbs and stocks are needed and will accommodate five carloads. Mr. Thompson expects to build up a prosperous retail business in addition to that in the wholesale growing of bulbs already established, and the records since the establishment of the store just before last Easter point to that end.

SUPPLY MEN IN CONFERENCE.

There was a conference of the florists' supplies and ribbons interests at Philadelphia August 10 for welfare reasons—the European war has created such unusual conditions that leading houses thought it desirable to talk over the policies to be pursued. It was the consensus of opinion that it would be folly to show samples of European merchandise at the Boston convention next week, with no stock on hand and little prospect of getting any. It was agreed that each would help the other with merchandise in order that the retail florists might be served as well as possible and it was the general view that the welfare of the trade is to be considered above individual interests and that prices are to be held down as consistently as circumstances will permit.

Leading New York, Chicago and Philadelphia houses were represented.

THE EFFECT OF THE WAR.

War is, of course, economic waste for which the world must pay—and the conflict in Europe is so much the greatest war in all history that it is natural that the waste should be appalling, even to the people of the United States. But it has been a surprise that so many readers should write to The Review for an opinion as to how the war will affect the trade at large and the questioner's private interests. Of course it is quite the fashion, and one that has been encouraged by answering every inquiry to the best of this paper's ability, to consult The Review no matter what information is wanted, but the number of letters concerning the war shows an unusual degree of uncertainty in the trade. The following is indicative of the general tone of the inquiries from florists:

"I am writing for a little information. Have been contemplating building new houses and enlarging our capacity. In your opinion, and as far as you can see, what will be the result of the European war on the florists' business? Will there be a permanent depression in the domestic trade? We contemplate going into the fern and hardy line, but do not want to go ahead if there is danger of a prolonged depression. Would you advise building now, or waiting until spring, and seeing then how the business situation is? Kindly give us your candid opinion on this matter. Any information will be highly appreciated."

No one can predict with any certainty the ultimate effect of the European war, but The Review does not anticipate that the florists' trade in this country will have a bad season. In fact, general opinion seems to be that if the war should prove prolonged it will have the result of stimulating general business in this country.

The Review has made certain plans for the expansion of its own business this fall and has as yet seen no reason to change them in the least. It is to be expected that some unusual conditions will develop in the next few weeks, with probably some temporary loss of business because of the uncertainties of the situation, but after general business has become adjusted to the new conditions The Review expects to see trade in all lines go along much in the same way it did last season. The florist's business in his own community may be affected, one way or the other, by the effect of the war on the special industries of his home town, but in general the trade should have a good season. In recent years the florists' business in the larger cities has had its ups and downs, but in the country towns the demand has increased steadily. Of late the increase has been most rapid in the middle west, where the crops this season are the finest ever harvested. That western crop money will work its way through the trade.

WAR AND THE TRADE.

In The Review, issue of August 6, the article on "War and the Trade" leaves out the important item of peonies, in which I am specially interested. What will become of the large import orders for September and October deliveries? If the fields of France are not devastated by marching armies, who will dig, divide, label and pack them? If Holland opens her dikes, as threatened, where will her peony fields be for the next two or three years? Will this help the American grower to dispose of stock, and will the supply on hand fill the demand? Do you not believe this will increase the business in the home market? M. W. C.

There were many trade items not referred to in the article on "War and the Trade," that appeared in the issue of August 6. Naturally each one of these trade specialties will be affected in the same way that the main trade items are affected. The Holland peonies will share much the same fate as the Holland bulbs, whatever that proves to be, and the French peonies and French nursery stock will be moved about as the French seed crops are. It seems apparent that the war will result in delaying such imports as are not stopped altogether this season, and the natural result will be that American producers of competing articles will have an exceptionally good opportunity for a clean-up.

A SHIPPER'S IDEAS.

Those whose business depends on ocean shipping find themselves without an occupation, as a result of the European war. There are a great many who are affected in much greater degree than are florists, seedsmen or nurserymen. But the shipping trade does not look for any considerable duration of the present almost complete tie-up. It is expected that commerce between England, France and America soon will begin to move again. "There are two alternatives to look for," said W. E. Peck, head of the New York shipping firm of W. E. Peck & Co., discussing the prospect of a restoration of at least a partial ocean traffic. "One is a decisive victory of a British fleet over that of Germany, ridding the seas of a menace of German war vessels to prey on the commerce of England and France. The other is the assigning of a portion of the British navy to convoy merchantmen across the sea from this port.

"Should the conflict be drawn out over a long period, I believe the British admiralty will detach some of its fast cruisers to convoy vessels from this port to England. At the same time I believe an arrangement will be perfected whereby the British government will issue insurance against goods consigned upon such merchantmen. Further than that, it may be seen that British war vessels will be stationed at points along all the principal lanes of commerce, to protect British shipping."

OPENING CONVENTION GARDEN.

The convention garden will be opened officially by His Honor, Mayor Curley, Tuesday morning, August 18, at 11 o'clock. Delegates are requested to be there promptly at that time.

John Young, Sec'y.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

At the S. A. F. convention to be held next week there will be a meeting of the American Rose Society, at which time the Hubbard gold medal will be presented to M. H. Walsh, of Woods Hole, Mass., and the silver medal to John Cook, of Baltimore, Md.

Theodore Wirth, president of the S. A. F. and superintendent of parks at Minneapolis, writes: "I have something which may be of value to some rose growers, particularly amateurs. We have been successful in subduing mildew by using the following preparation: Water, 3 gals.; soft soap, 6 ozs.; potassium sulphide, 2 ozs. We dissolve the soap in water, then add the potassium sulphide. This spray also is good for aphis and will help along blighted buds. For mildew it is the best thing we have ever tried."

Benj. Hammond, Sec'y.

GARDENERS' BOSTON MEETING.

Through the courtesy of the Society of American Florists, the National Association of Gardeners will hold its meeting in Revere hall, Mechanics building, Boston, on Wednesday, August 19, at 1 o'clock, this being the convention hall of the S. A. F. All gardeners and all interested in the profession of gardening are cordially invited to this meeting. Several able speakers from different parts of the country will address the meeting on subjects pertaining to the profession of gardening and horticulture in general.

All members in a position to attend the summer meeting should make every effort to do so, to show an interest in their national association. The trip to Boston offers several days of pleasant vacation. Visitors will find much to entertain them from the horticultural point of view. There are few places to be visited in this country which would prove more interesting than a trip to Boston and its vicinity.

An executive meeting of the trustees and directors, as provided in the by-laws, will be held on Wednesday morning, August 19, at 9 o'clock, at the Copley Square hotel, the headquarters of the association.

Many of the members going by way of New York have decided to travel by the outside line of steamers, leaving foot of Murray street, Monday, August 17, at 5 o'clock. M. C. Ebel, Sec'y.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

Owing to the absence in Europe of President Kleinheinz, Vice-president A. F. J. Baur will preside at the meeting to be held in the Paul Revere hall, Mechanics building, Boston, at 9:30 a. m. on Wednesday, August 19, 1914. Members attending the convention are requested to be present and to bring up any suggestions they may have for the good of the society. The preparations by the State Florists' Association of Indiana for the annual meeting and exhibition to be held at the German House, Indianapolis, Ind., November 6 to 8, 1914, are going on right up to date. A splendid exhibition as well as a record attendance from members, florists and the public is expected.

Chas. W. Johnson, Sec'y.

LADIES' S. A. F.

Mrs. Chas. E. Critchell, president of the Ladies' S. A. F., gives notice that the date of the ladies' reception has been changed from Thursday, August 20, to Wednesday, August 19, at 8:45 p. m., at the Copley Plaza hotel.

Members of the society will find the secretary at her office in Mechanics building, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Members will please register.

A meeting of the board of directors is called for Tuesday evening at the Copley Plaza by Mrs. W. N. Rudd, chairman.

Mrs. Chas. H. Maynard, Sec'y.

THE CONVENTION SPORTS.

The program for the Boston convention sports arrived from Wm. R. Nicholson after this issue had been made up and therefore too late for publication. But there is a fine lot of prizes for the usual list of events. Keen competition will be assured when the visitors see the prizes in the convention hall.

BAILEY'S CYCLOPEDIA, VOL. II.

["The Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture," by L. H. Bailey. Published by the Macmillan Co., New York. Volume II, containing pages 601 to 1,200, fully illustrated with engravings in the text and with full-page plates. To be completed in six volumes. Price per volume, bound in cloth, $6.]

About four months ago the publication of the first volume of Professor Bailey's new cyclopedia was announced in these columns. Now the second volume is ready for its introduction to the public. The present reviewer said some emphatic words in praise of the first volume, feeling sure—absolutely sure—that he was safely within the boundaries of the truth in doing so, and the second book in the big sextette seems to be worthy of as strong commendation. The great expectations aroused in the first volume are not disappointed in the second one. The second volume, like the first one, bears unmistakable evidence, not simply of careful and scholarly revision, but of the rewriting of entire articles whenever brand-new matter was desirable.

But, while thus drawing attention to the changes that have been made in the cyclopedia, while laying stress on the differences between the old cyclopedia and the new one, it may be well also to speak of the resemblances between them, for the resemblances are as striking as are the differences. Some of the characteristics of the former edition, especially its general style of arrangement, would have been difficult to improve and therefore they remain unaltered in the new books. Hence the pages, on the whole, have the familiar appearance of old friends.

For instance, one of the features which distinguished the old edition of Bailey's cyclopedia from some other horticultural dictionaries was Bailey's manner of arranging the names of species under the name of the genus, and this method of arrangement is retained in the new edition. The different varieties in a genus or family of plants are not arranged alphabetically under the name of the genus, but are grouped according to their horticultural connection or affinity, and are quickly found by means of a separate alphabetical index which accompanies the description of each genus, except in cases where the genus is so small as not to require such an index. In other words, the names of the members of a plant family, like the names of the individuals in the successive generations of a human family, are placed in order according to their genealogy, their history, their family resemblances and other peculiarities of relationship. Users of the cyclopedia soon become accustomed to this arrangement and appreciate its advantages

After all, Bailey's cyclopedia is not greatly in need of commendation, since there is scarcely anyone who would dispute its high standing or its practical usefulness, but there are many people who just need to be reminded that they ought to possess a first-class horticultural cyclopedia and that a new edition of such a cyclopedia is now being prepared for them. It is for sale by The Review on the same terms as are offered by the publishers.

Will this help the American grower to dispose of stock, and will the supply on hand fill the demand? Do you not believe this will increase the business in the home market? M. W. C.

There were many trade items not referred to in the article on "War and the Trade," that appeared in the issue of August 6. Naturally each one of these trade specialties will be affected in the same way that the main trade items are affected. The Holland peonies will share much the same fate as the Holland bulbs, whatever that proves to be, and the French peonies and French nursery stock will be moved about as the French seed crops are. It seems apparent that the war will result in delaying such imports as are not stopped altogether this season, and the natural result will be that American producers of competing articles will have an exceptionally good opportunity for a clean-up.

A SHIPPER'S IDEAS.

Those whose business depends on ocean shipping find themselves without an occupation, as a result of the European war. There are a great many who are affected in much greater degree than are florists, seedsmen or nurserymen. But the shipping trade does not look for any considerable duration of the present almost complete tie-up. It is expected that commerce between England, France and America soon will begin to move again. "There are two alternatives to look for," said W. E. Peck, head of the New York shipping firm of W. E. Peck & Co., discussing the prospect of a restoration of at least a partial ocean traffic. "One is a decisive victory of a British fleet over that of Germany, ridding the seas of a menace of German war vessels to prey on the commerce of England and France. The other is the assigning of a portion of the British navy to convoy merchantmen across the sea from this port.

"Should the conflict be drawn out over a long period, I believe the British admiralty will detach some of its fast cruisers to convoy vessels from this port to England. At the same time I believe an arrangement will be perfected whereby the British government will issue insurance against goods consigned upon such merchantmen. Further than that, it may be seen that British war vessels will be stationed at points along all the principal lanes of commerce, to protect British shipping.

OPENING CONVENTION GARDEN

The convention garden will be opened officially by His Honor, Mayor Curley, Tuesday morning, August 18, at 1 o'clock. Delegates are requested to be there promptly at that time.

John Young, Sec'y.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

At the S. A. F. convention to be held next week there will be a meeting of the American Rose Society, at which time the Hubbard gold medal will be presented to M. H. Walsh, of Woods Hole, Mass., and the silver medal to John Cook, of Baltimore, Md.

Theodore Wirth, president of the S. A. F. and superintendent of parks at Minneapolis, writes: "I have something which may be of value to some rose growers, particularly amateurs. We have been successful in subduing mildew by using the following preparation: Water, 3 gals.; soft soap, 6 ozs.; potassium sulphide, 2 ozs. We dissolve the soap in water, then add the potassium sulphide. This spray also is good for aphis and will help along blighted buds. For mildew it is the best thing we have ever tried."

GARDENERS' BOSTON MEETING.

Through the courtesy of the Society of American Florists, the National Association of Gardeners will hold its meeting in Revere hall, Mechanics building, Boston, on Wednesday, August 19, at 1 o'clock, this being the convention hall of the S. A. F. All gardeners and all interested in the profession of gardening are cordially invited to this meeting. Several able speakers from different parts of the country will address the meeting on subjects pertaining to the profession of gardening and horticulture in general.

All members in a position to attend the summer meeting should make every effort to do so, to show an interest in their national association. The trip to Boston offers several days of pleasant vacation. Visitors will find much to entertain them from the horticultural point of view. There are few places to be visited in this country which would prove more interesting than a trip to Boston and its vicinity.

An executive meeting of the trustees and directors, as provided in the by-laws, will be held on Wednesday morning, August 19, at 9 o'clock, at the Copley Square hotel, the headquarters of the association.

Many of the members going by way of New York have decided to travel by the outside line of steamers, leaving foot of Murray street, Monday, August 17, at 5 o'clock. M. C. Ebel, Sec'y.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

Owing to the absence in Europe of President Kleinheinz, Vice-president A. F. J. Baur will preside at the meeting to be held in the Paul Revere hall, Mechanics building, Boston, at 9:30 m. on Wednesday, August 19, 1914. Members attending the convention are requested to be present and to bring up any suggestions they may have for the good of the society. The preparations by the State Florists' Association of Indiana for the annual meeting and exhibition to be held at the German House, Indianapolis, Ind., November 6 to 8, 1914, are going on right up to date. A splendid exhibition as well as a record attendance from members, florists and the public is expected.

Chas. W. Johnson, Sec'y.

LADIES' S. A. F.

Mrs. Chas. E. Critchell, president of the Ladies' S. A. F., gives notice that the date of the ladies' reception has been changed from Thursday, August 20, to Wednesday, August 19, at 8:45 p. m., at the Copley Plaza hotel.

Members of the society will find the secretary at her office in Mechanics building, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Members will please register.

A meeting of the board of directors called for Tuesday evening at the Copley Plaza by Mrs. W. N. Rudd, chairman.

Mrs. Chas. H. Maynard, Sec'y.

THE CONVENTION SPORTS.

Program for the Boston conventions arrived from Wm. R. Nicholson this issue had been made up therefore too late for publication. There is a fine lot of prizes for the list of events. Keen competition is assured when the visitors see the events in the convention hall.

BAILEY'S CYCLOPEDIA, VOL. II.

["Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture," by L. H. Bailey. Published by the Macmillan Co., New York. Volume II, containing pages 881 to 2090, fully illustrated with engravings in the text and with full page plates. To be complete in six volumes. Price per volume, cloth, $6.]

Four months ago the publication of the first volume of Professor Bailey's new cyclopedia was announced in these columns. Now the second volume is ready for its introduction to the public. The present reviewer said some emphatic words in praise of the first volume, feeling sure—absolutely sure—that he was safely within the boundaries of the truth in doing so, and the second book in the big sextette seems to be worthy of as strong commendation. The great expectations aroused in the first volume are not disappointed in the second one. The second volume, like the first one, bears unmistakable evidence, not simply of careful and scholarly revision, but of the rewriting of entire articles whenever brand-new matter was desirable.

But, while thus drawing attention to the changes that have been made in the cyclopedia, while laying stress on the differences between the old cyclopedia and the new one, it may be well also to speak of the resemblances between them, for the resemblances are as striking as are the differences. Some of the characteristics of the former edition, especially its general style of arrangement, would have been difficult to improve and therefore they remain unaltered in the new books. Hence the pages, on the whole, have the familiar appearance of old friends.

For instance, one of the features which distinguished the old edition of Bailey's cyclopedia from some other horticultural dictionaries was Bailey's manner of arranging the names of species under the name of the genus, and this method of arrangement is retained in the new edition. The different varieties in a genus or family of plants are not arranged alphabetically under the name of the genus, but are grouped according to their horticultural connection or affinity, and are quickly found by means of a separate alphabetical index which accompanies the description of each genus, except in cases where the genus is so small as not to require such an index. In other words, the names of the members of a plant family, like the names of the individuals in the successive generations of a human family, are placed in order according to their genealogy, their history, their family resemblances and other peculiarities of relationship. Users of the cyclopedia soon become accustomed to this arrangement and appreciate its advantages.

After all, Bailey's cyclopedia is not greatly in need of commendation, since there is scarcely anyone who would dispute its high standing or its practical usefulness, but there are many people who just need to be reminded that they ought to possess a first-class horticultural cyclopedia and that a new edition of such a cyclopedia is now being prepared for them. It is for sale by The Review on the same terms as are offered by the publishers.

FISH GUANO FOR CARNATIONS.

Will you please tell me, if possible, what quantity of fish guano should be used in a carnation greenhouse 24x150, containing four beds? How often should the fertilizer be used?

M. M. M.

I have had no personal experience with fish guano, but others who have used it recommend the following proportions: As a top-dressing, use one-half to one pound per hundred square feet of bench space. I would suggest that you mix it with about six times its bulk of sifted soil and let it stand a day before using. In that way you will be able to distribute it more evenly. Used as a liquid, it is recommended that you use two pounds to fifty gallons of water.

This fertilizer is rich in nitrogen and I would suggest that you use it carefully. Its tendency will be to soften the growth; so, at the least sign in that direction, you must discontinue it or at least reduce the quantity. The nature of your soil and its fertility must determine the frequency of the applications. If you think it necessary, you might apply it before benching the plants and rake it in well, but I dislike the idea of adding any fertilizer at that time if the soil is in even fairly good condition. The plants are not able to take up much food until the roots become well established in the new soil, and that takes about two months. After that it is easier to determine what the soil lacks and to add it in the shape of liquid or top-dressings. Apply top-dressings not oftener than once each month; liquid, not oftener than once each week.

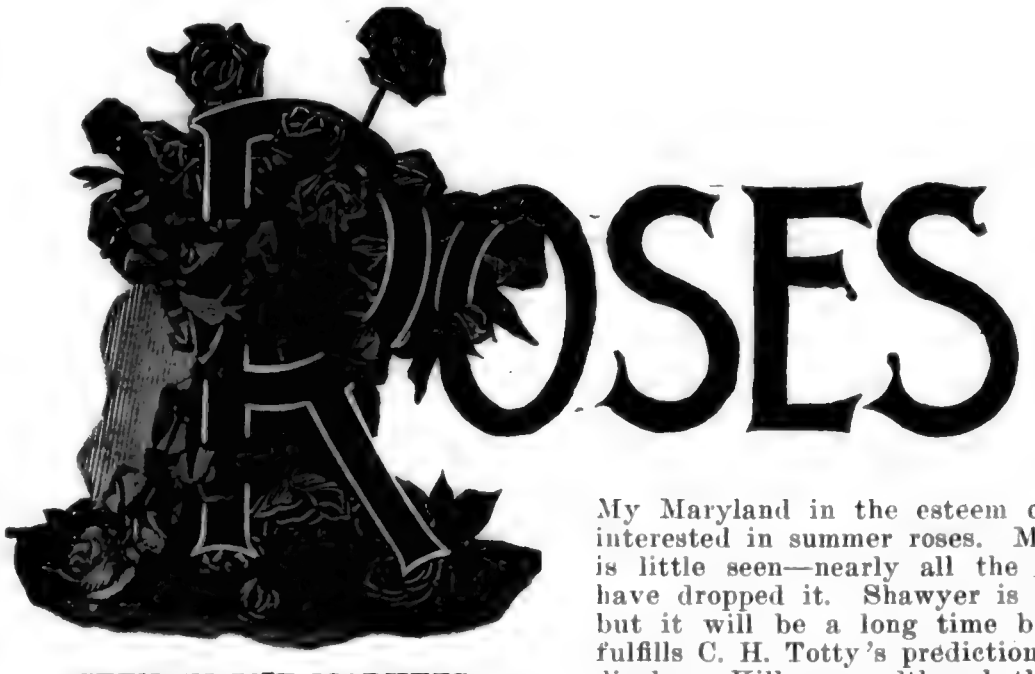
CARRYING OVER OLD PLANTS.



Are there any varieties of carnations of which you would advise carrying plants over in the benches from year to year if new plants are not available? If so, what varieties? If not, why not? I have been told that this may be done successfully, but would not care to try anything quite so speculative without your approval. C. L.

Carrying over old carnations for a second year's blooming is quite practical under certain conditions. To do this successfully, however, careful preparation must be made at the proper time. It is too late now to do anything along that line for the coming season. If you have not the plants needed for replanting your beds, the only safe thing for you to do will be to buy them. To try to carry over plants that have been allowed to grow and bloom up to this time would be to invite certain disaster.

Whether it would pay you to carry over your old plants would depend almost entirely on your market. If you conduct a retail establishment and can use what blooms your plants will give right up to July, you will do well to forget all about the two-year proposition, lest you attempt it under impossible conditions and only lose by it. On the other hand, if you can spare a part of your planting to use for this purpose after May 1, without robbing your trade of blooms that could be disposed of at profitable figures, then it might be worth your while to go into the matter.

It depends less on what variety you use than on the condition of the plants at the time you begin to prepare them for the restart in the spring. They should be absolutely free from disease or insects, and if the foliage is alive pretty well down to the bottom, all the better. We have used the following varieties in this way successfully: Pink Delight, Beacon, White Wonder, Enchantress and Gloriosa.

SEEN IN THE MARKETS.

Taking them as a whole, the Beauty growers did not take in much money during the winter, for cuts were light and quality poor during the time demand usually is at its best, between Thanksgiving and Ash Wednesday. Lately there have been heavy cuts and, in some markets, about as low prices as ever have been known. It seems questionable if Beauty growing pays the man who has no special talent for handling this crop.

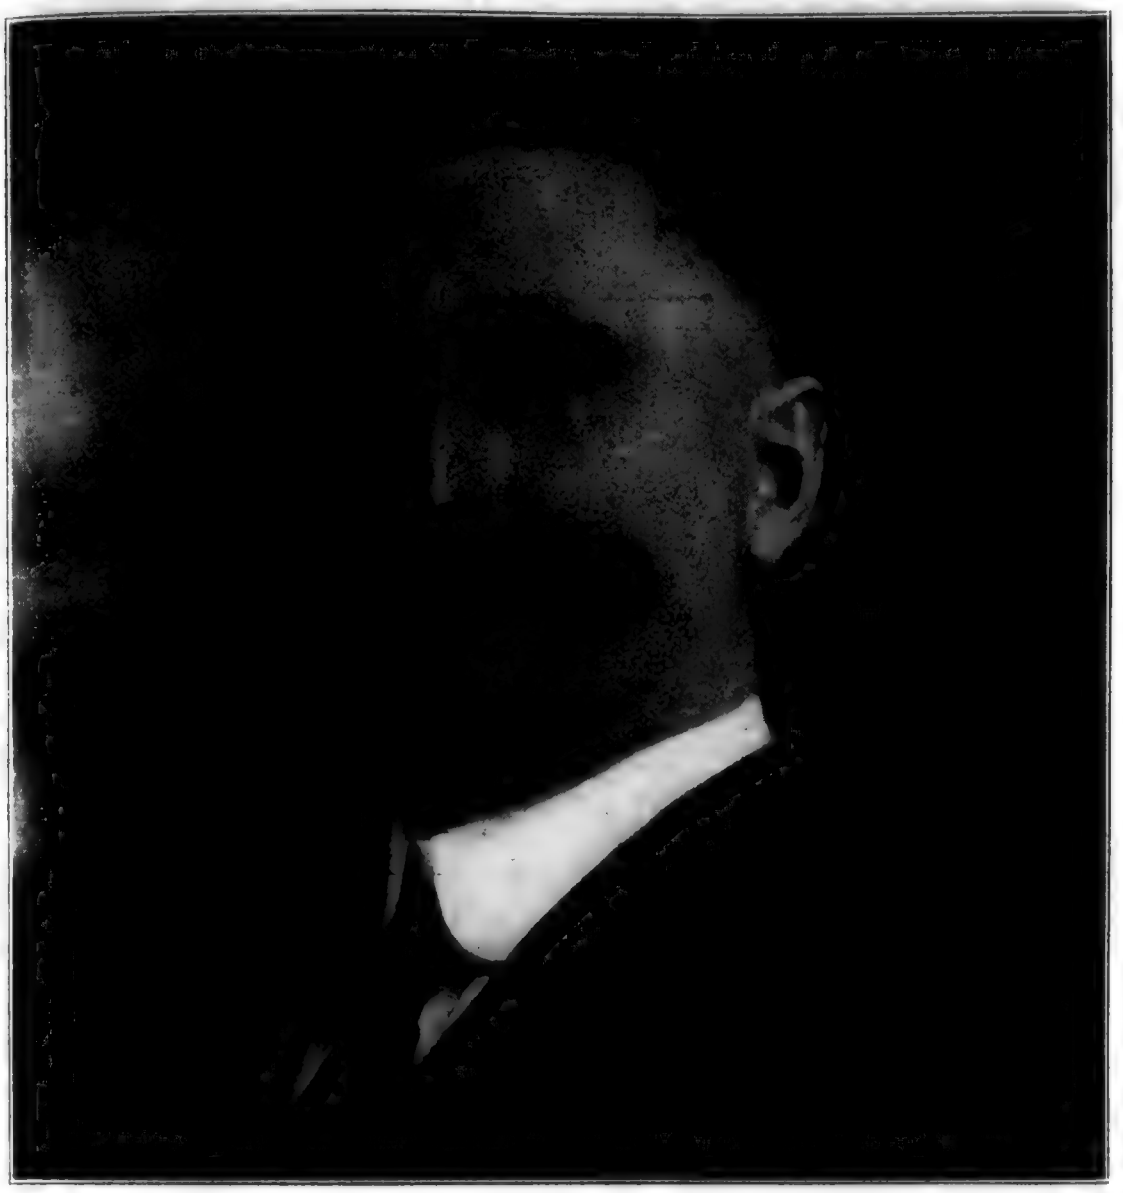
The trade generally has enthused again over Mrs. Russell rose. Last fall it was fine and most of those who bought stock of the introducer took more money out of the first crop than they had paid for the young plants. Then, in the winter, there began to be head shakings. But it appears that everybody benched about all the plants that were available. Now the rose is fine—nothing equal to it in the market—and cuts are heavy enough to make it pay handsomely for its space.

Mrs. Shawyer has taken the place of My Maryland in the esteem of those interested in summer roses. Maryland is little seen—nearly all the growers have dropped it. Shawyer is gaining, but it will be a long time before it fulfills C. H. Totty's prediction that it displaces Killarney, although the latter certainly does not compare with Shawyer at present.

If Killarney Brilliant shows Killarney's variation in color it will pass for a red rose in bright winter weather—it is as dark now as Killarney is at its best.

PRUNING OLD PLANTS.

I have a house of Killarney and Richmond roses, which I desire to keep in the house for the second winter. I gave them a rest and have pruned them back sharply. Some of them, particularly Richmond, are quite weak and yellow branched. Will you kindly tell me what to do to get them in good shape? A. H.



The directions given in the rose notes in the issue of July 9, in answer to the inquiries of C. B. and L. G. S. & F. C., will apply here. When old plants have started to make new growth they should be gone over and the small, weak

SOIL FOR PANSIES.

I have two greenhouses without benches, in which I grow pansies and other crops. I have used the soil two years and it is going off in spots. As it is a great deal of work and expense to remove the soil and replace with new, I would like to know if there is a means, chemical or otherwise, to correct the soil without moving it.

W. P. K.

It is a mistake to use the same soil year after year for pansies or any other crop. Soil needs rotation. For instance, if you followed your pansies with cucumbers, tomatoes, chrysanthemums or some other crop, this would give the necessary rotation. Soil appears to get sick of any one crop, without this change, unless you sterilize your soil each season. There is really no necessity to remove your soil, providing you adopt rotation or sterilize by steam, especially if your soil is in solid beds. If in benches, I would strongly advise changing it each season. Of course, your soil should be liberally manured and trenched over each season. The grower who wants to make money plans to have his houses idle as little as possible. For this reason I would advise a rotation, following the pansies, etc., with whatever crop you could dispose of to the best advantage. C. W. services were rewarded with a silver medal and he continued in this position until 1903, when he was appointed by the French government to lay out the French garden exhibit at the world's fair at St. Louis. He had full charge of all the work and again received a medal for his efforts. At the close of the exposition Mr. Bourdet thought highly of the opportunities in St. Louis for one of his vocation, and established the Bourdet Floral Co. As a grower of pot plants Mr. Bourdet has few equals. He has been a member of the Florists' Club for the last ten years and enjoys a wide acquaintance among the trade.

The nominee for vice-president, W. S. Wells, entered this existence in 1885 at Oxford, O., and not long after entered the florists' trade, for his father was a grower. At the death of the latter, Mr. Wells took over the business and disposed of it in 1908. He was associated with H. Schmidt & Co., in his home town, until 1911, when he went to St. Louis to take up work in the Missouri Botanical Garden. While there he was elected secretary and treasurer of the Engelmann Botanical Club and still holds these offices. In 1913 he left the Garden to establish the Wells Floral & Landscape Co. The hustling qualities which have made this undertaking a success should prove a valuable asset for an officer of the St. Louis Florists' Club.

ST. LOUIS CLUB ELECTS.

The date of this issue is the day on which the St. Louis Florists' Club celebrates its twenty-seventh anniversary, for it was in August, 1887, that this thriving organization first saw the light. It has grown to be a strong and husky stripling in the nearly three decades since its beginning, and today is known as one of the livest organizations in the country. To keep up the reputation of the club and continue as it has begun, the florists of St. Louis make a search each August for the most hustling members of the trade in their town when the annual election of the club comes due. This year the old standbys, J. J. Beneke and W. C. Smith, are expected to continue as secretary and treasurer respectively, and for the other two offices, president and vice-president, Jules Bourdet and W. S. Wells respectively have been placed in nomination.

Jules Bourdet is a native of France and dates from the year 1869. He started to learn the florists' trade when he was 15 years old and by this time has all the fine points of the business pretty well by heart. After working in various greenhouse establishments, he took up landscape work in Paris in 1895. In 1900 he undertook a share of the work in connection with the universal exposition at Paris. His

Lilium Candidum.

The war in Europe will probably delay the arrival of Lilium candidum. This is to be regretted, because, unlike all other lilies, it commences soon after the bulbs are matured to make new roots and leaves. For this reason it is to be feared that any hampers or cases which have been packed and which, due to lack of transportation facilities, are held up at the docks in France, will be seriously damaged, if not ruined entirely. The true, broad-petaled form of L. candidum comes from the north of France, usually arriving here early in September. Serious delays in arrival are a certainty, and when the bulbs do arrive it would be well to pot immediately and not blame the seedsmen for what is surely far beyond their control.

Candidums should not be grown in small pots; 8-inch and 10-inch are the best. These will contain three to six bulbs each, according to size. Just cover the bulbs with soil. Do not water unless the soil is quite dry. Stand the pots outdoors in the full sun, but protect from heavy rains. If the pots are heavily soaked at once, there is danger of many of the scales, or possibly the entire bulb, rotting. Use a bed of sand below the bulbs and fill in between the scales with the same material.

Formosa Lilies.

While the Formosa lily grows too tall in the main to be useful as a pot plant, for cutting from Christmas until Easter it is invaluable. The bulbs are due to arrive soon and should be potted at once in 5-inch and 6-inch pots according to their size. There are considerable variations in Formosa lilies. Like all seedlings, the flowers are sometimes pure white inside and out, while in other cases the outside of the trumpet is almost as dark as L. Brownii. Great points in favor of Formosa lilies are their comparative freedom from disease, the fact that they naturally flower early and the further fact that the flowers can be cut with long stems.

Lilium Speciosum.

Where a crop of Lilium speciosum is wanted from December to February, cold storage bulbs should be potted now. Do not place single bulbs in a pot, as in the case of L. longiflorum. Use 7-inch and 8-inch pots, standing the bulbs as closely as possible in the pots in a cellar or frame, where they will be shaded and comparatively cool. If the soil is at all dry, water well; then go somewhat slow on watering until the plants are in active growth. Speciosums will start to grow quickly and must be gradually inured to light as growths appear. For cutting they will be found to do well in boxes containing six inches of soil.

The speciosums potted last winter will now be flowering. The blooms may come out more rapidly than is desired. It is a good plan, therefore, to stand some in a cool, dry cellar. Pick off all pollen masses to keep the flowers clean. After all the flowers are cut the bulbs may be planted outdoors, where they will give useful cutting late next summer. Plant the bulbs a foot deep for best results.

Japanese Iris.

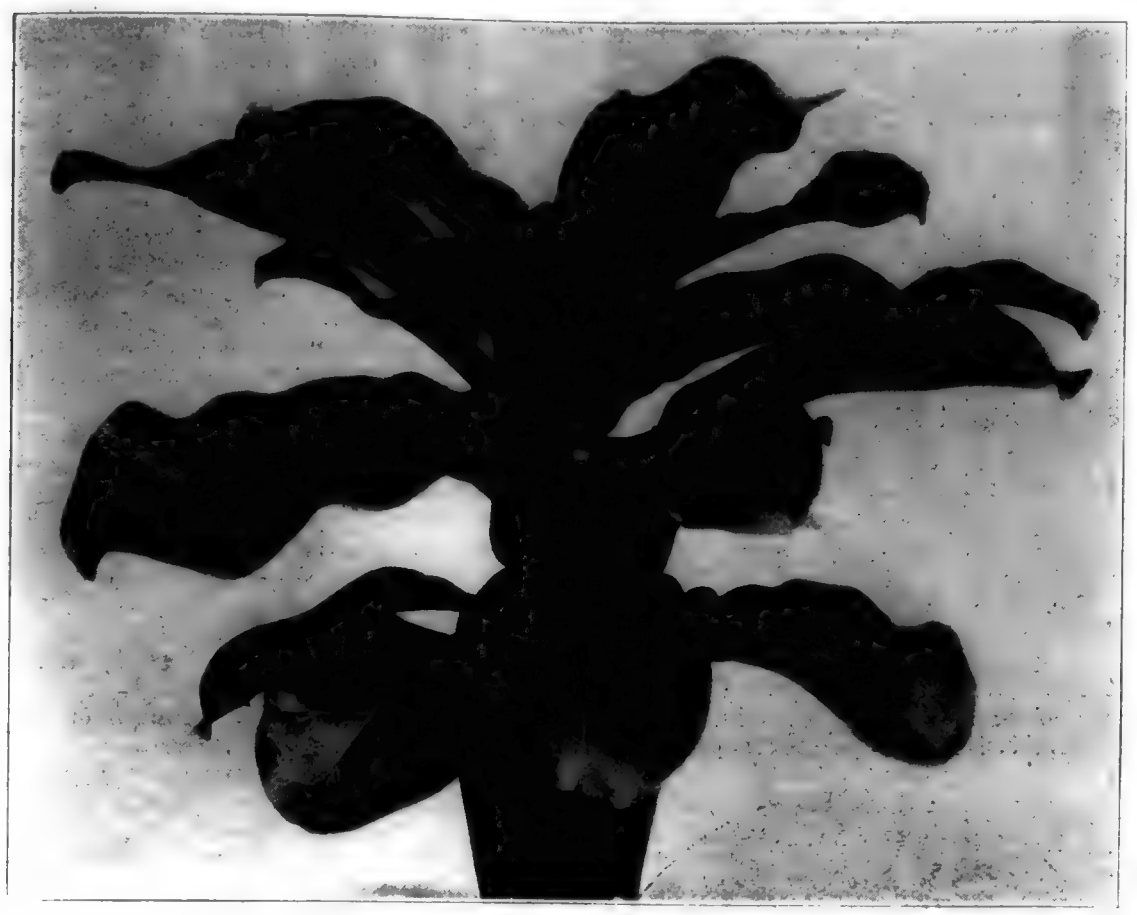
In order to have the best success with Japanese iris, they should be transplanted during the present month. They do best in well enriched soil in which they can be kept well watered, or even flooded, up to the flowering period, and in winter be kept dry at the root. The soil, therefore, should be well drained. It is dampness at the root in winter, and not cold, which kills so many Japanese iris.

Show Pelargoniums.

Show pelargoniums should now be well ripened, after a resting of some weeks on their sides in the full sun, and they can be stood up and pruned back rather hard. Do not shake out. Repot the plants at once. Water them moderately and spray freely. As soon as they start to break freely is the time to overhaul them. Shake the soil nearly clean away, and start in smaller sized pots than they have been growing in; also cut back the long roots at this time.

Mignonette.

There is no advantage in sowing mignonette earlier than the middle of August, as the plants started during so hot a period will start to flower, in spite of pinching back, at a time when the flowers have little value. Sow the seeds directly in the beds or benches a foot apart each way. Sow more seeds than are needed and thin out to two or three in each patch. The soil should be well enriched with cow or horse manure and not less than six inches deep. Solid beds are preferable to benches, as they ensure cooler conditions for the roots and a more even moisture, but good mignonette can be produced in benches. Mignonette requires a low temperature. The winter minimum should run from 40 to 45 degrees.



THE DRACÆNA AND CROTON.

The two places of the Robert Craig Co. require close attention to keep pace with the cultural ideas of the day. The stock grown there and the methods employed express the ideas of some of the brightest minds in our profession.

The dracæna is undoubtedly the plant of the day. To secure perfect dracænas of choice varieties in quantity has been a difficult task. To do this, plants of scarce varieties were taken to the tropics. The canes grown from these plants were brought here. From them young plants were produced superior to those imported from Europe, for the dracæna, though a marvelously durable plant, is restive under the enforced confinement of a trans-Atlantic voyage. It is also probable that the young plants here are cooler grown than the European stock, and therefore more durable.

Dracaena Craigii.

Ficus Utilis.

The ambition to fill two large houses with dracænas has been realized. This counts only the finished stock and not that in course of preparation. These two great houses of dracænas are wonderfully beautiful, a little in advance of anything accomplished in the past. They contain large numbers of the four leading varieties, amabilis, terminalis, Lord Wolseley and Massangeana. Besides these leading sorts, there are twenty-two others grown in quantities a little smaller. Kelleriana, the improved Godseffiana, highly prized for its beautiful markings, is one of the foremost. Stricta grandis is in the front ranks, because of its bold habit and rich coloring. An old sort, Baptistii, has been considered worthy of reintroduction, while dear little Sanderiana has been propagated with such earnestness that it makes a brave showing. There are others, all excellent, that make up a strikingly handsome collection of these satisfactory plants.

The croton is only given second place because it is a thought less novel. Possibly the order should have been reversed. A hundred crotons of a hundred choice American varieties—this is a reality. Such crotons, too! The 400 plants intended for the convention in Boston have never been equaled; form, color, variety, all were fine. The art of propagating, coloring and growing crotons has been mastered. Varieties are now given the most thought. The variety with a good shade of Christmas red, the variety with a rare tint of orange—these are eagerly sought and cultivated. The croton is offered commercially in a wide range of sizes, from the highly colored little 2-inch or 3-inch basket plants to the magnificent specimens of Queen Victoria and Norwood Beauty, of amazing height and breadth, and fully clothed with foliage to the pot rim. No houses of foliage plants have ever equaled the beauty of these croton houses, with their superb coloring.

The fern occupies a no less prominent, though a less spectacular position than the dracæna or the croton. The curious thing about the fern is that it is scarce today—rather a funny thing when you consider the care that nature bestowed on its means of multiplication; yet ferns are scarce today. Not here! No, not here. "A fern for every day in the year" has been the motto of the faithful propagators. There is a surprising stock of them in all sizes—all the standards, some novelties and one exclusive novelty. Nephrolepis, all of them. Scottii, of course; robusta, best grower of the type, and the wonderful little Teddy Junior that everybody is crazy about. So, with just a glance over the legions of other nephs., a halt is made at the house that is under lock and key. The door swings open. There are little ferns set out in benches, evidently all of one kind. It is a sport from Scottii, the best blood, of improved form and foliage, already named Nephrolepis John Wanamaker, to be introduced in 1915. It is confidently predicted that 75,000 will be required in the first fifteen months.

The et cetera includes two fine houses of Adiantum hybridum and deep, rich green Areca lutescens, well colored Pandanus Veitchii, Ficus utilis and the once more favored Ficus pandurata. There are three or four houses of cyclamen in perfect shape; also begonias—three old ones, Lorraine, Lonsdale and Cincinnati, and two new ones, Davenport and Konkurrent, both believed to be winners. Outside a field of Otaheite oranges, with a dozen to fifty on each plant, was interesting. Dieffenbachia Leoni is being grown for its striking spotted foliage, Asplenium Nidus-Avis for variety. A plant of Croton Norwood Beauty.

Citrus Limonium is a treat. It is said to be a favorite pot plant in China, where a small plant may produce many large lemons.

There is one dracæna, aptly named Dracæna Craigii, that has won much expert admiration. Its special attraction lies in the fact that it is not only colored on top of the leaf, but it is colored, brightly colored, on the under side of the leaf and also on the stem. Pink vies with green and lighter shades.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

"Wars and rumors of wars!" Nothing else is talked about these days in the New York wholesale market. There is so little business one can hardly see it with the naked eye. The demand from the retailers has vanished. No weddings; no steamer sailings; New York is abnormally healthy, so that there are few funerals; and the market is completely swamped with asters and glodioli.

The first of this week saw many a load of these surplus flowers carted off and carried away by the outgoing tide. There are plenty of roses of every variety. The outlet for Beauties and novelties has been clogged. Newport and other popular society watering places are canceling their contracts, and lawn decorations and floral demonstrations have many of them been abandoned. Ophelia, Shawyer and Hadley are among the new arrivals.

There are few carnations, and of these few are salable. Of orchids there is an oversupply, or else the demand has reached its minimum. One thing is evident: A great many of them were left unsold as the week ended, and the expected demand from Washington did not materialize. The top figure for cattleyas Saturday was $25 per hundred. But few lilies go above $3 per hundred, and valley remains at the summer quotations. If the war continues, next season will see a quite different range of prices.

A few dahlias are arriving. Rain made havoc in the sweet pea fields. From up state the news is drought, while here we have been rained on almost continuously since St. Swithin's day. So the Rochester asters are not up to recent years. Around New York there is no complaint as to quality, but prices are so low that growers are discouraged. The supply of gladioli is a revelation. Surely every grower of anything has added a field of these. Saturday fine stock was actually sold as low as 2 cents a bunch of ten, or $2 per 1,000. Even the best America did not go above $1 per hundred.

Club Meeting.

A large and enthusiastic special meeting of the Florists' Club was held August 10. In the absence of John Young, Joseph A. Manda acted as secretary. The club unanimously endorsed the nominations of C. H. Totty for president of the S. A. F., W. F. Kasting for treasurer and John Young for secretary.

F. H. Traendly announced everything progressing favorably for the boat trip to the convention, with a large number of berths engaged and a local attendance of over 200 assured.

Various Notes.

Tuesday, August 11, the annual outing of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society took place at Rye Beach, N. Y., and was largely attended. The affair was a great success.

Alfred Whiteley, lately with A. J. Guttman and formerly with Max Schling, is now a member of the force of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., at 117 West Twenty-eighth street.

Wm. H. Plumb, superintendent of floriculture of the Panama exposition, will be in Boston during the S. A. F. convention.

George Polykranas will manage the wholesale business at 111 West Twenty-eighth street, under the title of the United Cut Flower Co.

Among the distinguished visitors last week were W. A. Burpee, Robert Craig and Paul Berkowitz, of Philadelphia.

W. E. Marshall is back from his western trip.

James McHutchison has returned from his trip to Australia and Japan.

Large crowds stand in front of the windows of the Stumpp & Walter Co. all the week. The map of Europe is interestingly portrayed with grass seed and field seeds, showing each country engaged in war, with the flag of each nation displayed. Al. Rickards, of this firm's force of salesman, has been nursing during July more boils than Job ever dreamed of.

B. M. Wichers, of Gretna, La., was a visitor August 10, on his way to Boston.

Messrs. Herrmann, Reid and Hanfling were in Philadelphia August 10, attending a meeting of the leading florists' supply men of the country.

E. McKay Whiting, president of the National Florists' Board of Trade, and Mrs. Whiting left this week for a vacation in the mountains.

A big reception to George Blake, of Bonnet & Blake, Brooklyn, was tendered on the return of the bridegroom to his wholesale headquarters last week. It included a band of music, refreshments and half a hundred of his friends in and out of the trade.

The receipt of the ordered kentia seeds is problematical. Over 2,000,000 were supposed to be in transit when the war broke out in Europe. All imports are held up in florists' supplies of every kind, and the seed houses are at sea as to the filling of their orders.

Among the lecturers already engaged for the coming season of the New York Florists' Club are J. Otto Thilow, of Philadelphia, on Jamaica, W. I., and R. Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., on Scotland.

Fifth avenue florists are demonstrating as never before the value of window advertising. Special artists are being employed by some of the leading firms, and one window was decorated at a cost of $500.

Geo. M. Stumpp, F. W. Kelsey and wife, Mrs. Paul Meconi, Philip Breitmeyer and Julius Roehrs are among the Americans still in Europe, waiting patiently for opportunity to return.

Edward Brenner, of George C. Siebrecht's force, is enjoying his vacation in the mountains.

Woodrow & Marketos have the contract for the decorations for the fancy ball at Narragansett Pier this week. Mr. Woodrow says many of the contracts for big events at Newport, R. I., have been canceled since the European war began.

Ed. Ancker and Hugh Peake are enjoying their vacation together at Greenport, L. I.

Carroll Elliott is at Atlantic City, Edward Reth on Long Island, and C. E. Mohrs is at Overbrook, Pa.

Carl Bernhard, with Stumpp & Walter Co., is in Germany.

At Arthur T. Boddington's it is said a large consignment of French bulbs is on the Germania, last heard from at Lisbon. Mr. Boddington is optimistic as to the war and believes it will not be of long duration. Harry A. Bunyard has been serving his country, on jury duty.

Charles Kessler leaves August 15, with his sister and fiance, for a two weeks' vacation at Asbury Park, N. J.

L. W. Kervan attended the reunion of his regiment, the Fifth Connecticut, at Savin Rock, near New Haven, August 8.

J. K. Allen is having a new front put in his store.

The store of James McManus is receiving its annual rehabilitation.

Paul Berkowitz, of Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, has been spending his vacation at Atlantic City, but takes a run weekly to New York by way of variation.

July 26, three days after the return of Andrew Cova, treasurer of the New York Florists' Supply Co., from his European trip, Mrs. Cova presented him with twin boys, Andrew and George.

L. B. Nason is spending his week ends at Asbury Park.

Leo Rosens, head salesman for B. Rosens, is home from the Catskills.

The directors of the Cut Flower Exchange, and others, visited John Donaldson last week at his new home in Patchogue, L. I.

Martin & Brunger, landscape gardeners, successors to Dinkel & Jewell, have opened an office at 127 Main street, Irvington.

Robert E. Berry now represents the Shrewsbury Nurseries, of Eatontown, N. J.

The employees of the Julius Roehrs Co., of Rutherford, enjoyed their annual outing August 8 at the Roehrs farm at Westwood.

The Essex County Florists' Club held its first annual outing August 5 at Brunner's grove, Hilton, N. J. There was an attendance of nearly 100. Edward Jacobie is president of this organization, W. G. Muller vice-president, John Crossley secretary and A. Begerow treasurer. R. Yuell was chairman of the committee and its members were J. J. McLoughlin, R. Pludney, C. Deisler, Wm. Haas, John Phifer, John Rassback and Edward Kemp. The New York wholesalers were represented by J. K. Allen, P. J. Smith, Walter Sheridan, H. C. Riedel, W. G. Badgley, A. H. Langjahr, R. J. Irwin, E. Van Riper and J. B. Deamud. Others present were Messrs. Merton, Ramsperger, Moeller, Crossley, Strobell, McKnight, Martie, A. Muller, Haas, Dilly, Kresch, Houseman, Jacobie, Murphy, Greer, Gaullula, Meeker, Hauck, Pierson, Muller, Mingle, Connolly, Johnson, H. Leahy, E. Leahy, Berry, Van Muler, White, Shaw, and Mr. and Mrs. R. Franke, of Rutherford. The ball games and races were strenuously contested. Handsome prizes were contributed by Wertheimer Bros., of New York; Julius Roehrs Co., of Rutherford; J. G. Neidinger, M. Rice Co. and Bayersdorfer & Co., of Philadelphia.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

In accordance with the usual summer record, trade has been quite slack. The long drought caused many anxious moments, and unfortunately the rain did not come until much damage had been done. Probably nothing suffered more than the asters and gladioli. Many of the early varieties are spoiled entirely, but the later crops are quite promising. Large quantities of hardy phlox, golden glow and candytuft arrive daily. Sweet peas have also suffered and the supply is quite limited. Large quantities of gladioli are on the market.

Large shipments of Easter lilies are arriving and are cleared quite well. Valley is of good quality and is easily disposed of. Asters are not overplentiful and good ones bring good prices. Carnations are poor. The new crop looks promising. The supply of roses is good, and the quality is fair. Few blooming plants are seen just now. The supply of greens is quite enough for the present demand. Funeral and wedding orders are not at all rushing.

Various Notes.

Geo. T. Boucher had a pretty window decoration last week. It was composed of an artificial fountain, surrounded entirely by rustic stones and vines, and containing goldfish. As a background, large vases of America gladioli were arranged among large palms and ferns.

H. B. Stringer is away on a vacation, having a good time at Toronto.

Edwin P. Wilson has been away for a week visiting in Philadelphia, Scranton and other places of interest in Pennsylvania.

The wedding of Cecil Lester to Miss Wilcox took place July 22, and they have just returned from their honeymoon trip.

Miss Bishop, of J. B. Keller Sons, has just returned from her vacation, which she spent at Albany, N. Y., and Miss Huitweiller has gone for two weeks.

Chas. W. Curtis is growing some fine America gladioli, for which he finds a ready sale.

Thomann & Sons are growing an immense quantity of Rochester White gladioli. This and America are undoubtedly the two most popular varieties.

During the last week J. B. Keller Sons' store was just ablaze with Golden Glow, which was arranged in the window and the entrance of the store.

Horace J. Head, who recently underwent a serious stomach operation, is improving and is at the present time staying with friends at Hilton, N. Y.

James Vick's Sons' asters, grown at their farm at Greece, N. Y., for seed only, are making a beautiful showing now. There is, in all, about seventy-five acres of asters, which in a few weeks will all be in full bloom. James Vick's Sons invite all flower lovers who happen to be in this district to make a visit to their grounds.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Business last week was good, especially for this time of year. Practically every florist was well pleased with the amount of business done during the week. The supply of stock is plentiful, with no scarcity in any department, but everything was cleaned up by Saturday evening. The quality of the stock is much better than that handled last year, although little rain fell during July and up to the present time. The supply of Beauties is increasing and the quality is excellent. The Killarneys are doing well and there are plenty of them on the market. These are holding their color well. Carnations are not considered in the way of cut flowers at present. Asters are in the lead. Of these, there are enough good ones to supply the demand, but the small, open-centered asters are not wanted at any price. The market is loaded with gladioli and prices are low, except for some that are exceptionally good.

Judge the Tree by Its Fruit

The Classified Columns of The Review have brought us a host of good customers, so that we have no trouble selling all we can grow with our present plant; indeed, we are compelled to enlarge our facilities.—Newell & Ustler, Apopka, Fla., August 1, 1914.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club held its meeting August 3, at the store of the Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co., with an attendance of twenty-eight members. Some subjects of big importance were discussed, which would have interested every florist if he had been there to take a part. A special meeting was called August 4, to decide the date on which a florists' picnic can be held. The place decided on was Mr. Chambler's grounds in Rosedale.

T. A. Moseley was overcome by the heat August 4, but has fully recovered. He reports trade as good.

The George M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. entertained the Eagle florists while they were here at a convention. A visit was made to the Kellogg greenhouses at Pleasant Hill. The prospects at the greenhouses are good. They have a fine lot of carnations, roses and chrysanthemums planted.

Samuel Murray reports business good for this time of year. He is now at the greenhouses looking after his begonias and giving the greenhouses a general clean-up. Everything is in fine shape at present.

Arthur Newell has been busy with out-of-town funeral work. Miss Mamie Klein, bookkeeper at the store, has just returned from her vacation, and Mr. McDonald has left for his home in Ohio for a few weeks' stay.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. is cutting some fine roses, gladioli and asters. They had a heavy run of funeral work the last two weeks.

T. Noll & Co. have a large supply of Beauties, which are readily disposed of. Consignments of asters are coming in better shape. They also receive a fine lot of gladioli every day from Kansas. Their business is steadily increasing.

W. J. Barnes and A. Holtman, with their wives, left July 25 on an automobile trip to St. Paul and Minneapolis. They returned August 4, having covered 1,349 miles on that trip.

OBITUARY.

Zack Davis.

Zack Davis, aged 73, the founder of the seed concern known as the Zack Davis Co., at Delaware, O., died at his home, near that city, at midnight Sunday, August 2. Mr. Davis had been ill for two weeks, although his condition did not become critical until the day of his death. Organic heart failure and a complication of diseases are given as the causes of his death.

Mr. Davis was born in Wales and came to this country when 3 years old, having been a resident of Delaware county, O., since that time. He was a veteran of the Civil war, having served as a member of Company E, One Hundred Forty-Fifth Ohio Volunteer Infantry. His wife; two daughters, Miss Jennie and Miss Anna Davis, and two sons, John and Thomas Davis, survive him. Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon, August 4.

Springfield, O.—James Tillingham, foreman of the greenhouses of Schneider, Florist, has resigned to accept a position with F. Walker & Co., of Louisville, Ky.

Omaha, Neb.—No word has come from George Swoboda and wife, who are summering at Berlin, Germany. It is not supposed that they are in any trouble, as they are visiting Mr. Swoboda's brothers, who are among the well known and wealthy citizens of the German capital.

Thirtieth annual convention. Boston, Mass., August 18 to 21, 1914.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

AT the moment goldfish are one of the scarce items—and thousands of flower stores find goldfish and canaries profitable side lines.

EDWARD AMERPOHL, of Janesville, Wis., says the crops in his section of the country never looked so good as now. He thinks it spells a winter of prosperity for all florists there.

NEITHER the "Situation Wanted" nor the "Help Wanted" advertisements in The Review are running as heavy as they did last year at this time, indicating less than the usual degree of unrest among the workers.

ALL things considered, the florists' trade has come through the summer in excellent shape. There have been no important failures and not so many small ones as usually occur between Easter and autumn.

OUR good friend and philosopher, A. Jablonsky, has taken his pen in hand and is writing a series of letters to his son, who has left home to try the world on his own hook, the epistles being printed in the St. Louis County Herald, published at Wellston, Mo.

THE editor's desk has been adorned for several days by a vase of excellent asters, white, deep pink and lavender, sent by Fred Meyerhoefer, of Salem, O., who has been working at the trade for eight years and growing a patch of asters for market in his spare time, saving his own seed and working up his early strain until it is extra good.

ONE of the peculiar incidents of the last year is the way sentiment has swung in the matter of the Russell rose. The first crop cut last autumn brought back the money the growers had paid for the stock as a novelty. Then there began, in the winter, to be head shakings and doubts, but the wood was being used for propagating. Since the young stock has begun to bloom nothing but praise has been heard for the rose.

ANY SARCASM IN THIS?

Will you kindly help me out by solving the following? I noted in the Country Gentleman an article on the gladiolus, written by Maurice Fuld. The article told what a good market flower this is, and it also gave wholesale prices on cut flowers. The article was for all, and encouraged everyone to grow the gladiolus. In another publication for the amateur I happened on an article by Mrs. Austin, going Mr. Fuld one better, by encouraging the children to grow gladioli and telling all the little secrets. There are many such articles on other branches of our trade, such as dahlias, cornflowers, etc.

Through all this popularity I found it a hard matter to sell stock to florists, as they stated the market was overdone. Would it not be a grand opportunity for me to offer my entire stock of bulbs of thirty acres and advertise them in farm papers, magazines and newspapers at wholesale prices and sell to anyone who comes along? I think this a grand chance. Please answer through The Review. Hugo Kind.

AID EDUCATIONAL GARDEN.

The garden of Frank C. Hargett, at Frederick, Md., which is receiving wide publicity on account of the efforts of Mr. Hargett to make it an educational display, as well as on account of the reception to well known persons which is to be held there September 17, has received strong support from the members of the trade. In addition to the donations of the various departments of the government, the garden has received contributions from many eastern firms in the trade. To show the results of the work of Mr. Hargett with these gifts, a large reception will be held at the garden September 17, and on the following day they will be thrown open to the public. Among the notable people who will be present at the reception are William F. Gude, of Washington; George W. Hess, superintendent of the National Botanical Gardens, at Washington; F. L. Mulford, government landscape gardener, representing Secretary Houston, of the Department of Agriculture; Governor Goldsborough, of Maryland, and Viscount Chinda, Japanese ambassador to the United States. Among the firms which have contributed to the gardens are:

Bester, Henry, & Sons, Hagerstown, Md.
Burpee, W. Atlee, & Co., Philadelphia.
Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.
Cook, John, Baltimore, Md.
Craig, Robert, Co., Philadelphia.
Groff, David, Frederick, Md.
Gude Bros. Co., Washington, D. C.
Henderson, Peter, & Co., New York.
King, Jesse P., Mt. Airy, Md.
Michell, Henry F., Co., Philadelphia.
Pierson, A. N., Inc., Cromwell, Conn.
Vincent, R., Jr., & Sons Co., White Marsh, Md.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

While the hostilities probably are not in any great degree responsible, the first week of the European war turned out to be so decidedly dull in this market that it has led to much discussion as to the effect should the embroglio prove of considerable duration. The consensus of opinion, however, is that the poor business at the opening of August has been due to local causes more than to the unrest resulting from the upsetting of plans by the trouble

KILLARNEY BRILLIANT MILADY, MRS. RUSSELL

HERE we have three Roses that are worth the attention of all the buyers. Killarney Brilliant is the Rose that will displace Killarney, Milady the one that is ousting Richmond. Mrs. Russell is the pink Beauty. Show your trade these Roses and you will have your competitor at a disadvantage. Get the Roses of us. We have a large supply. Good quality, although mostly medium stems. Also Sunburst, Bulgarie and other popular varieties.

BEAUTIES

We shall be glad to keep you supplied with good summer Beauties—any length. We ALWAYS have large cuts of Beauties and you can get them here every day in the year. This week we have a big cut from young plants—plenty of short and medium stems.

VALLEY

We always have Valley—the famous Chicago Market Brand.

ORCHIDS

You can get here as many fine Cattleyas as you need.

FANCY LILIES

These are home-grown Lilies, true Giganteums, grown from perfectly healthy bulbs. They will reach you in excellent condition and make money for you. Can supply in quantity. Also can furnish Rubrums and Auratums of fine quality.

ASTERS

We have stock that is quite out of the ordinary. Grown under irrigation, these Asters are the best in market. White, pink, lavender. Try some. You'll want more. Of course we have short Asters, too, for work.

GLADIOLI

We do not handle the mixed stock dumped on the market by growers of bulbs. Our Glads are grown by specialists who grow for cut flowers only and who start with the right varieties, grow them right, cut them right and pack them right. Plenty of America, King and Augusta.

NEW FANCY FERNS

By ordering of us you can get all the Hardy Cut Ferns you need. Our stock is good; we never ship anything but the best on the market.

across the water. During the last few summers there has been a marked increase in the cut flower business in Chicago. The result has been a big increase in the production of stock, which has come at a time when general business has not been brisk. Probably the flower business is about as good as it ever was in July and August, but the heavy increase in supplies makes for lower prices and an appearance of a dull market.

The special feature of the week has been the difficulty of moving the gladioli. Early in the season, when it was seen how heavily the growers were buying bulbs, it was predicted that the quantity of cut flowers would exceed the needs of the market. The early part of the season did not bring in the cuts that had been anticipated and it was thought that perhaps the forebodings had been unwarranted, but now the supply is far ahead of requirements. Last week many of the commission houses instructed growers who produce nothing but gladioli to stop shipping, the idea being that consigners who have greenhouses, and are shippers all the year around, were sending in enough gladioli to equal every demand, and that they should be given the benefit. For the first time in the history of this market it was, last week, impossible to sell all the America even by letting the buyers make the price. Those who can use moderate quantities at reasonable prices have made no great impression on the daily receipts, with the result that the greater part of the gladioli were left to be cleaned out by the job-lot buyers, who are not numerous at this season of the year. Recent rains have improved the quality of the stock.

Asters are not cutting so much figure as they were a week ago. This has turned out a poor season for asters. There has been a fair demand for first-class stock, but most of the flowers have been of such low grade that it has been difficult to do anything with them. The receipts this week are much lighter than they have been and there is a corresponding improvement in the average quality. Evidently the growers have got tired sending in stock that cannot be sold.

Beauties continue in large supply. There never has been a summer during which good Beauties have been so plentiful or sold so cheaply. Much of the stock now being cut is from young plants and the stems from 24-inch down are abundant. The retail stores that can do business in summer certainly can use this stock to advantage. Practically all varieties of roses are plentiful and the stock is of excellent quality for this time of year.

Considerable quantities of outdoor carnations are seen in some of the wholesale houses, but they are of such poor quality that they do not command much respect. Giganteum lilies continue abundant. Several houses have unusually large supplies of rubrums this summer. Until recently they have sold well, but right now it is difficult to move them in quantity. They call the rubrum lily the poor man's orchid, but the aristocrat, the cattleya, has not yet come into the usual August demand. It was to be expected that the call for orchids would be slow in July, as it always is, but ordinarily the demand picks up in August.

The green goods market is quiet. There is no unusual demand for any item, but asparagus bunches are selling as well as anything on the list.

Club Meeting.

There was a well attended meeting of the Florists' Club at the Bismarck hotel August 6. Plans for the convention trip were the principal subject for discussion. As already announced, the Chicago party will leave at 8 p. m., Sunday, August 16, on the Lake Shore. There will be a stopover at Niagara Falls from 12:04 to 3:50 p. m., August 17. The fare from Chicago to Boston and return is $30, berths $5.50 or $1.40 each way. The club instructed the transportation committee to arrange for through Pullman cars, Chicago to Boston, so that it will not be necessary to transfer baggage at Niagara Falls. There will be an additional charge of 50 cents for this accommodation.

BEAUTIES

You will find your sales increase if you carry our Beauties in stock. Cut from young plants. Perfect stem and foliage. Good flowers. An abundance of short and medium stems.

Giganteum LILIES Rubrum

You can get of Randall any quantity of fine Giganteum and Rubrum Lilies. These are the big, showy flowers—good value for the money. We have a supply that is practically unlimited.

Retailers' Outing.

While the Chicago Florists' Club and the Cook County Florists' Association are at the S. A. F. convention at Boston, the Retail Florists' Association will supply diversion for the stay-at-homes by giving a boat excursion down the drainage canal and through the locks to Joliet. August 18 has been selected as the date. The committee has chartered a boat which will carry 125 persons. It will leave the Clark street bridge at 9:30 a. m. and will stop at 10 a. m. at Thirty-first street and Western avenue, proceeding thence down the canal. A stay of three and one-half to four hours will be made at Joliet, which will give time to visit the penitentiary or other places of interest in that city. There will be refreshments of all kinds, and music, on the boat. Tickets for the round trip are $1. President George Stollery anticipates a large attendance.

the recently organized Lake Shore Horticultural Society and was the principal prize-winner at its first exhibition, held August 6, at the Winnetka Community house. Of the gardeners from Lake Forest who exhibited, E. O. Orpet, gardener to H. F. McCormick, was the leader.

Miss Anna Grace Sawyer, proprietor of the Pansy Flower Shop, at 4042 West Madison street, has returned from a vacation spent at Lake Geneva. While there she attended the annual exhibition of the local gardeners' club and says it gave her fresh enthusiasm for the summer flowers.

E. E. Pieser says he never before has seen a time when the choice varieties of gladioli were not salable at a premium. He regards it as unprecedented that Niagara and others of that class should have to be sold with the mixed lots.

Frank M. Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co., left August 8 on his eastern trip, accompanied by Mrs. Johnson. This week is being spent in supply centers at Philadelphia and New York. They will be in Boston next week. Ed Galavan, who is Mr. Johnson's right-hand man, returned last week from his wedding trip to New York.

Erne & Klingel say sales are running about as usual in August, but that much more stock is handled to make the total.

Miss Thelma Vaughan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Vaughan, is visiting Miss Dorothy Lynch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Lynch, at Hatfield, Mass. The families were neighbors for many years before Mr. Lynch and Mr. Vaughan were associated in business.

A cablegram was received August 10 from A. Henderson, stating that he arrived safely at Rotterdam, Holland, but found everything in excited condition. If possible he will proceed to England, otherwise he will return, sailing August 15. A. Miller states three carloads of French bulbs have been shipped west and a shipment has been received of Chinese lilies and Bermuda-grown Purity freesia.

If every concern does as well as the McNeff-Swenson Co., whose specialty is florists' advertising matter, to swell the crowd at Boston, this will be a banner convention. The company will have an exhibit and will be represented by L. D. McNeff, H. V. Swenson, R. L. Zoll and A. F. Longren.

Harry Manheim, with Hoerber Bros., is enjoying two weeks of vacation in Indiana. F. C. Hoerber reports changes have been made in the heating system at the range whereby a considerable saving of fuel is expected this season.

John Zech spent a portion of last week in a swing around the circle, including Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland and Columbus, calling on the customers of Zech & Mann and other retail florists. He says the trade in all four cities had plenty of time to be hospitable and that he thoroughly enjoyed the trip.

An unsigned communication advises that a florists' local union has been organized to meet in Roseland the second Monday evening of each month.

Samuel Freund, sales manager for the A. A. Arnold Paper Box Co., is vacationing at Atlantic City. He will be at the Boston convention.

C. A. Alles, of the store staff of Wietor Bros., and Henry Wietor are making their annual excursion into Wisconsin, Chas. Dressler having returned from his vacation.

Wm. Wolf, of the A. Lange staff, will spend a fortnight's vacation in the east, accompanying the convention party to Boston.

Frank Ayers, right-hand man for C. W. McKellar, is away on a fortnight's vacation.

At Winterson's Seed Store John P. Degnan has the retail bulb catalogue in type, but he is holding up the proofs until he gets advices that the Dutch bulbs are afloat.

O. Johnson, of the Batavia Greenhouse Co., states that he has instructed his attorney to test out his alleged claim against a warehouse company arising from his count of peonies put in storage.

Frank Oechslin reports that three of his men who went home to Europe for a visit find themselves held and must serve in the army. Two others have received cables calling them back and will sail on the first boat.

Mike Fink is again on duty with the Chicago Flower Growers' Association. He was excused after one day's jury service.

Ernest O. Anderson, with Bassett & Washburn, is on vacation.

H. A. Philpott, of Winnipeg, is the guest of A. T. Pyfer this week. He attended the meeting of the Canadian florists at Toronto last week and will go to Boston.

The Market.

Day after day the wholesalers and retailers are face to face with the same problem, "How can we find buyers?" The answer would be in about the same words as those said to have been used by a certain fruit grower: "Sell what you can, and what you can't, you can." Quantities of all sorts of flowers find that resting place every evening. Conditions are not any worse, however, than at this time in other years. It is well for us all to be serene and to have some one of good managerial ability to attend strictly to business during this vacation season.

Flowers for memorial purposes created the only noticeable demand last week. The most conspicuous of the seasonable flowers now are gladioli. These can be bought at prices ranging from $7.50 to $15 per thousand; in smaller quantities, $2 to $4 per hundred. Asters are next in prominence; they are plentiful, but there are only a few fancy ones, on account of the extreme drought. The better grades sell at $1.50 to $3 per hundred and the ordinary ones at what they bring. This market is exceptionally fortunate in being supplied with an extra fine quality of local grown roses; these find ready sale, because of their superiority to the shipped stock. Carnations are still to be had, including quantities of really good ones. Beauties are not grown successfully in this territory, but are mostly consigned from the east. These are of good quality and reasonable in price.

Various Notes.

This is one of the hardest periods of the year for collections. "Promises, like pie crust, are made to be broken." The credit system of many of the florists is solely responsible for this. Both wholesalers and retailers are too liberal with this, the most important part of the business system. However, "Less business, but safer business," is now the slogan of many of our most successful florists.

According to E. C. Reineman's records, the following florists will go to the convention via the Baltimore and Coast Steamship Line: Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Elliott and their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Ludwig, Miss A. Fuller, William Loew, Joseph Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ludwig, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Reineman, J. F. Zimmerman, PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Business is at a low ebb. The war, the heat and the absence of flower buyers from home restricted the demand to mortuary orders and a few others. Asters and gladioli form the bulk of the supply. Asters are made up of some good and many poor. Gladioli are good indeed. Poor asters and good gladioli are about equally difficult to sell. Roses are a little less plentiful; white is short of requirements. Easter lilies are more abundant. Cattleyas are quite scarce. A few dahlias arrive daily.

Philadelphia to Boston.

It is certain that a large delegation will leave the Reading terminal at 2 p. m. Monday, August 17, for New York, there to take the Metropolitan line boat to Boston. Among those who have signified their intention of going with the main delegation are: Fred Hahman, Thomas Logan, Theo. Shober, Thos. J. Lane, John Dodds and family, Albert M. Herr and family, F. J. Michell, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Muldoon, Mrs. F. J. Michell and Miss Michell, Leo Niessen, E. L. Bender and family, Joseph Heacock, George H. Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Farenwald, John Kuhn, D. T. Connor, Charles Krueger, Emil Geschick, the Aschmann brothers, M. C. Wright, Mrs. Biester and daughter, J. W. Dudley and family, Mrs. F. Ehret and Miss Ehret, Fred Cowperthwaite, J. L. Porter, Charles Grakelow, George H. Bachman, John Walker and family.

The Picnic at Andalusia.

The third annual picnic of Michell's Seed House took place at Andalusia, August 8. It was really the first affair of its kind, because it was "just among ourselves," while the other two were for the friends of the house. The store was closed for the afternoon and the 1 o'clock train from Broad street took out practically the whole force, which, with the addition of the farm force at Andalusia, made up a happy party estimated at 150. It was a fine sight to see the girls and young men disembark at Andalusia. Philip Freud led the vanguard, forgetting for the moment the cares of business. Paul F. Richter led the center, thoughtful for everyone's comfort and watchful that the smallest detail was carried out. Fred J. Michell brought up the rear, with that jolly laugh that does a world of good to all he meets. The day, which had been overcast, cleared, bringing out the beauty of the farm in the bright August sunlight. The deep green privet hedges, the glowing beds of cannas in full bloom, the rich patches of sage and the velvety softness of Michell's Evergreen were all beautiful. To many of those present the scene was new, lending an added charm. The rose walk was much admired, as were also the great fields of hardy phloxes, gladioli and of all manner of perennials.

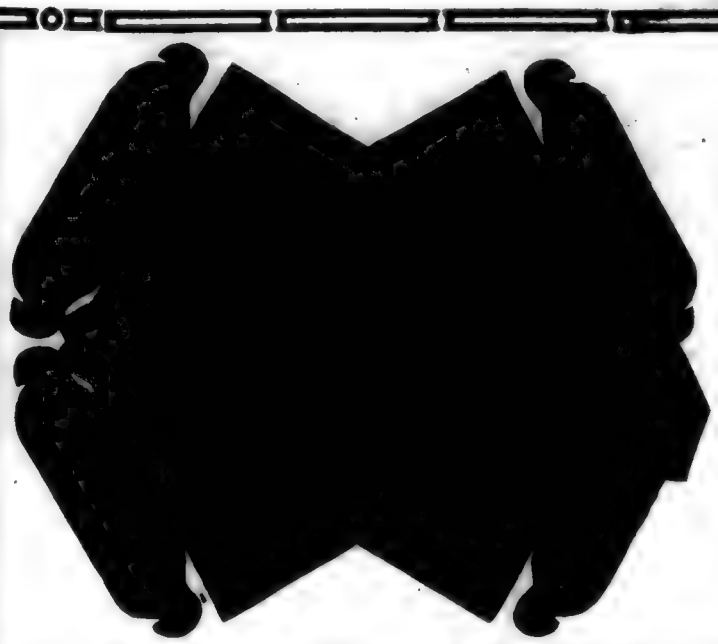
But now the girls in their pretty white frocks are taking their seats under the tent, within easy reach of the refreshment tables, while the men are gallantly helping them to the good things so bountifully provided, and later helping themselves likewise. There is much laughter, and you can hear "I should smile" and "Was he in a balloon?" the latest up-in-the-air phrases, for these young ladies are thoroughly modern in all respects. Photographers, official and unofficial, scurried about to get points of vantage, and everybody endeavored to be still. Then someone would move and be rebuked for so doing.

The sports are tremendous; the ball game more so. The order department, aided by a few choice players from the farm, defeated the office department by a score of 17 to 10 in seven innings. The features of the game were the playing of Eadon, who certainly would have made things lively for the winners had he commenced at the start, and the umpiring of Rothe, whose judgment on balls and strikes was sound. Fred Cowperthwaite kept things moving and everybody was sorry when train time arrived.

The winners were:

Wheelbarrow race—Fred Oberholzer.
Sack race—W. Whittaker.
Potato race—Fred Oberholzer.
Potato race, ladies'—Miss N. Monhan.
Fat men's race—J. Smith.
Ladies' nail driving contest—Miss Monhan.
Forty-yard dash—Miss Anna Michell.



A Political Incident.

The August meeting of the Florists' Club was devoid of special feature, save for one important incident. It is doubtful whether any of the jolly crowd who enjoyed the tenpins and the shuffleboard, the beer and lemonade, noticed what occurred, or, if they did, gave it more than a passing thought.

It was the fall of John Westcott. Historians have made even strong men shed tears with their graphic descriptions of the fall of Charles I, of Robespierre, and of Henry Clay. Surely it is a sacred duty to tell you of the fall of John Westcott!

For twenty-eight years John Westcott has ruled the Florists' Club. He generally decides who shall have the offices at the elections. He always decides how the club shall go to conventions. Everyone likes John Westcott; he is a thoroughly good fellow. The way he maltreated the transportation companies gave his friends keen delight. Of course he had enemies, as every strong man has. Charles I had enemies; so had Robespierre; so had Henry Clay, but the way John Westcott swept his foes aside in the debating battles on the clubroom floor was worth a trip over on a stormy meeting night to see.

The fall of John Westcott came about in this way: Last year his power was shaken by a far-away commotion, but his hand was again seen in the October election, with its contest for the presidency. Two months ago John Westcott was placed, as he always is, on the transportation committee for the convention. Unhappily this committee could not agree—a sure sign of waning power—and returned three different reports. The club rejected all three recommendations at the July meeting and chose a different route. John Westcott came to the August meeting, the time of his greatest triumph, sat through the routine business, where not a word of convention was spoken, and took the floor just before adjournment. He was looking remarkably well and spoke with vim and fire worthy of his best efforts. He taunted the opposition with commercialism, with lack of good-fellowship. He belittled their achievements. He praised his friends, told of what they had done for the club and, incidentally, mentioned his own age. He looks younger. Then, with a burst of rhetorical fireworks, John Westcott took his seat. The meeting instantly adjourned and the greatest political career of the Philadelphia Florists' Club passed into history.

Various Notes.

Charles H. McKubbin, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., has returned from his vacation at Atlantic City. Mr. McKubbin says his house's exhibit at the garden pier is in fine shape.

George Auegle, manager of the Philadelphia Cut Flower Co., is back from his holiday, looking well.

Nathan S. Lane is erecting greenhouses at the Norowitz establishment at Tullytown, Pa. Harry Simpson will have charge.

Recent visitors include C. B. Mills, Jacksonville, Fla.; Raymond Kester, Williamsport, Pa., and Charles Leisey, Mantua, N. J.

David Anderson, Garrettford, Pa., is planting Mrs. George Shawyer, Mrs. Charles Russell and Double White Killarney in his remodeled range.

L. K. Peacock has commenced sending dahlias to the Leo Niessen Co.

Robert Q. Shoch is back from New England.

New greenhouses are going up on Walnut street near Fifty-eighth street.

The Market.

Business during the week just passed reached the low level for this season. There is an abundance of stock of surprisingly good quality, when the unfavorable season is taken into consideration. Roses are improving in quality and are overplentiful in all colors except white, which is in good demand and of which few are coming in. Asters of the smaller grades are practically a glut, being offered at any price to dispose of them. Those of the better quality are salable, but low prices prevailed throughout the entire week on all lines of stocks. Lilies were in fair demand at average figures. Killarney roses and small asters formed the glut combination. The street merchants disposed of quantities of both at ridiculously low prices, but were able to unload only a part of the surplus. Gladioli of the better grades are plentiful and only in fair demand, despite the low price at which they can be bought. Greens of all kinds may be had in unlimited quantities cheap.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club was held August 10 at the club rooms. Vice-president Hamilton presided. The night was hot and the attendance was rather small. A committee, consisting of James Boone, Robert Halliday, William Feast, N. F. Flitton, James Hamilton and C. M. Wagner, was named to meet the delegation of Pittsburgh florists on Thursday, August 13, when they arrive in this city on their way to the convention in Boston, and to entertain them on Friday.

The matter of making a display in the parade held during the Star Spangled Banner celebration in September was brought up and the following committee appointed to take action in the matter: James Boone, F. C. Bauer, J. J. Perry, R. L. Graham, J. M. Wagner. A report will be presented at the next meeting.

Various Notes.

John McCormick had a good display of America gladioli in his store window last week.

C. E. Akehurst & Co. are cutting some of the best asters seen in the local market so far this season.

Mrs. H. J. Quick is slowly recovering from her recent operation, but it will be some time before she will be able to get around.

J. J. Perry, manager of the local branch of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., has been elected a director of the company. Mr. Perry is particularly fitted to fill this position, having been identified with the wholesale cut flower trade in this city for the last twelve years. He was formerly manager of the old Florists' Exchange and after this concern was taken over by the Pennock-Meehan Co. he continued in his old position under the new firm.

The B. G. Merritt Co., of Grange, has a fine lot of Hadley roses planted, which look good for the coming winter.

The Leo Niessen Co. is handling a fine lot of rubrum lilies, which are in good demand.

J. J. Cummings had a large grave covering to make for the funeral of Mrs. Wilson. It was sent by the Concord Club, of this city, a prominent democratic organization, and was composed of American Beauty roses and Harrisii lilies; 650 of the former and 500 of the latter were used, besides Asparagus plumosus, which formed the base, and adiantum, which was used as trimming.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. handled over 1,000 Beauties last week of unusually good quality for this season of the year.

Mrs. Mary Johnston had some orders for the Wilson funeral; among others a large cluster of seventy-five Beauties and 200 valley was worthy of mention.

T. Walter Gray is recovering from an attack of blood poisoning, caused by a splinter of stone becoming imbedded in his hand. He removed it and

The Market.

The weather was warm last week and trade was fairly good. However, funeral work made the bulk of the business. Flowers of nearly all kinds have been scarce. Gladioli are the only flowers which are at all abundant. America gladioli are excellent and bring a fair price in the retail market. There are also good varieties in red, white and pink. Roses are much improved in quality, but the supply has been meager during the last two weeks. White Killarneys are excellent. Russells, Tafts, Wards and Marylands are in fine condition. Milady is improving in color and the blooms are becoming stronger. Sweet peas are of rather poor quality and the summer crop is nearing an end with some growers. Asters are good and the supply is increasing weekly. Carnations are extremely poor and there is little demand for them. American Beauties are fairly good and bring a fancy price. Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri are plentiful; so are ferns, both fancy and dagger. There is but little demand for galax during hot weather, as magnolia leaves are used.

Various Notes.

Henry Krause is away on a fishing trip and will return about August 18.

W. Greaver, of Palmer's branch store, did an artistic casket blanket August 6 for Mrs. Krauss, of the Lenox. It was composed of pink and white roses. Miss Ruby Marks, of Palmer's, is away on her vacation.

The army worm has been ravaging lawns, trees and gardens and doing great damage. Special army worm sprayers are being sold by local dealers in large numbers.

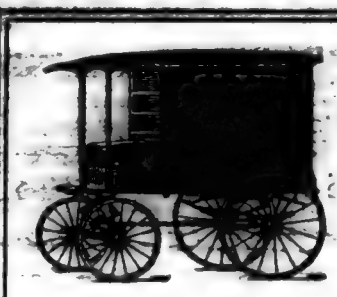
Jerry Brookins, of Orchard Park, has finished cutting his summer crop of sweet peas, which have held out late this year.

S. A. Anderson had a good window display last week, representing a country homestead on a hillside, at the foot of which was a duck pond, in which ducklings were swimming. Miniature cows and horses were seen down in the pasture lot. In the meadow to the right a flock of sheep were grazing. A miniature summer house, overrun with rambler roses, stood on the left. The country scene makes a good summer window for the hot city.

Miss Mable Hoke has returned from her vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sangster have returned from Crystal Beach, Canada.

W. C. Gloeckner, of Albany, is spending a few days in town. He says this season's business has been good in Albany.



A great deal of enthusiasm is being shown among the florists here relative to the S. A. F. convention, and Vice-president S. A. Anderson has sent out circulars urging the leading florists to attend the convention if it is possible to get away from business at that time. The Boston florists have arranged a most interesting and varied program, which should attract every florist in our city.

Miss O'Neil, of the Iroquois flower stand, is away on her vacation.

Wm. F. Kasting has been appointed one of the judges for the trade exhibition at the S. A. F. convention.

Several large floral horseshoes have been sent to the Fort Erie races recently. S. A. Anderson's force did the work.

W. A. Adams has returned after being away for two weeks, taking things easy.

There was a great deal of work for the opening of the offices of the Bankers' Trust Co., August 10. Enormous vases of American Beauties, baskets and vases of roses, gladioli, Boston ferns, palms, etc., were used.

E. C. A.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Business activities are confined almost exclusively to funeral work, asters entering largely into the make-up, taking the place of carnations, which are poor and scarce. Gladioli, which up to two or three seasons ago were rarely seen at the florists' shops, continue to increase in popularity and

WARNING TO THE TRADE!

The trade is warned against a young man who has made his appearance in the New England States, who is representing himself as "Young Mr. Dreer." In one instance, on a plausible story, he secured the loan of some money from a brother florist. There is no such person as young Mr. Dreer, and William F. Dreer is not in the country at this time.

HENRY A. DREER, Inc.

August 10, 1914. Philadelphia, Pa.

been visiting his uncle, Albert Holscher, previous to sailing for his native land.

Louis J. Reuter, of S. J. Reuter & Son, of Westerly, was a recent business visitor in New York.

Friends of Ernest Carl and Matthew Macnair, both of whom are in Europe, are anxious concerning them.

T. J. Johnston & Co. are having the store redecorated in a combination of white and blue that is extremely effective.

L. A. Jillson is making an attractive display of dahlias cut on his own farm.

William C. Pratt, Stuart G. Pratt and Charles E. Cannon have incorporated the Maplehurst Greenhouses of Longmeadow, with a capitalization of $50,000.

Alexander Cummings, Jr., of Hartford, has been taking a well-earned rest at Block Island.

Mrs. John A. Macrae is in the hospital for a serious operation.

Olney H. Williams, of Johnston, is on the invalid list as a result of a strain while lifting piping.

Willis N. Pino is making an extensive automobile trip through the west, his last letters being from Detroit.

Albert Holscher has more than 40,000 chrysanthemum plants for next season's supply.

S. J. Reuter, of Westerly, who with his wife and daughter is in Germany, where he went several months ago for his health, saw service in the Franco-Prussian war forty-four years ago.

Edmund G. Brooke, Jr., of the T. J. Johnston & Co., had a narrow escape from serious injury August 7. He attempted to pass between two electric cars that were going in opposite directions, but his car was caught and crushed to ruins. Mr. Brooke crawled uninjured from beneath the wreckage.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Gentlemen:

During the past year I paid you $18.20 for a half inch advertisement in the Retail Florists Department of The Review. I received through this small advertisement, from January 1, 1913, to December 31, 1913, orders to the amount of $566.00. They came by mail and telegraph from New York to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis. Since I allowed the senders 20%, the record is as follows:

Total value of orders	$566.00
Less 20% allowed senders.. .. .	113.20
Net value of orders..... .:.	453.80

Here is an addition of $452.80 in business which could not otherwise have been obtained and at an expense of only $18.20.

Since my advertisement appeared only in The Review it goes to show what the retail florists through the country lose if they do not use this medium of advertising It also goes to show that The Review is not only there with a big "R" but that it has three more big "R's" - Readers - Reliability - Results!

Yours respectfully,
J J Beneke

The Market.

There was a noticeable scarcity of orchids in the local market last week and this was made more pronounced by the funeral of Mrs. Wilson, wife of the President. Plenty of roses are to be had, although in the main the flowers are small. Some good American Beauty roses from the north are to be had. Lily of the valley is good and in fair demand. Easter lilies, which are rather shorter in supply than they have been, are exceptionally good for the reason that they are being shipped in the bud and there are fewer bruised flowers. Good Augusta, King and America gladioli are to be had, but the supply has slackened up somewhat. Gardenias are not overplentiful.

Club Meeting.

A display of Gladiolus Snow King, made by John Lewis Childs, of Flowerfield, N. Y., was awarded a certificate of merit by the Florists' Club at its August meeting. The main topic of the evening's discussion was the coming convention at Boston and a list of names obtained showed that fully seventy-five people from this city will make the trip. Among these will be Capt. William H. Ernest, George C. Shaffer, George Daglish, Harry Lewis, Samuel Simmons, George H. Cooke and Robert McLennan, who form the club's bowling team.

A vote of thanks was given to William F. Gude and wife for the hospitality accorded the members, their families and friends on the occasion of the July meeting, held on the lawn of their residence.

The flower show to be held early in November at the Old Masonic Temple was also brought up and the committee, composed of Fred H. Kramer, chairman, William F. Gude and R. L. Jenkins, reported on the project. Many new features are to be introduced.

The applications of C. A. Jackson, landscape gardener at the Walter Reed hospital, a government institution, and Frank H. Bailey were turned over to a special membership committee.

Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., was present and spoke on the William R. Smith memorial, his remarks being supplemented by Mr. Gude.

Various Notes.

Wesley Clark and wife spent last week here while on a vacation trip. Mr. Clark is connected with the Philadelphia house of S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co.

Local florists are wondering what they will do about their foreign stock. Those who have placed orders in Holland believe they have little chance of receiving the goods. However, one concern here which has ordered 25,000 narcissi does not seem to care whether these materialize or not, in view of the limited profit resulting last season.

The war scare has had the effect of keeping some of the Washington florists from joining with the Baltimoreans in making the trip to the convention of the S. A. F. via the boat Howard, as was originally intended. Many will go by train. Twelve Gudes will swell the numbers.

are materially improving their place and have just put up another house 21x86 feet. The other houses have been put in first-rate order and cement benches have been installed in all. They are just beginning to market some fine Queen of the Market asters.

M. J. McCabe has gone to New York city to visit relatives. From there he will go to Boston to attend the convention and will make several short trips about that city.

Henry Witt, of Silver Hill, Md., has erected a new house, 32x100 feet, fitted with concrete benches, which he will devote to sweet peas. He reports that his cyclamens, begonias and primroses, of which he makes a specialty, are coming along nicely. C. L. L.

BOSTON.

The Market.

There is no change for the better in cut flower trade, which is at an extremely low ebb. The cutting off of practically all trans-Atlantic steamers has killed what was proving to be a remunerative branch of the business. Shipping trade to holiday resorts continues away below the average, and, apart from a few weddings, there was little doing last week. Asters are arriving in larger numbers and the prices have dropped considerably. The quality is excellent. Queen of the Market is the leading variety, but a good many Comet also are seen. Gladioli from outdoors are much more plentiful, the hot weather of the last few days having pushed them along. King and America sell better than other sorts.

Roses are mostly short-stemmed and poor in quality. Whites continue most in demand. The yellow varieties are all inferior. Such carnations as still come are small, and the demand for them is light. Cornflowers sell moderately, and there is a good sale for good sweet peas. Lilies are abundant and good, with a light demand; the same holds true of valley. Of good cosmos there is now a good supply, but the sales are light. Cattleyas are shortening up, but the call for orchids is poor. Green stock meets with a slow sale.

Summer Exhibition.

The finest summer show seen here for years was that staged at Horticultural hall August 8 and 9, and it was a thousand pities that such an exhibition could not have been arranged for convention week, as it would have proved a refreshing change from the Mechanics hall trade show.

Fancy caladiums, phloxes, gladioli, asters, buddleias and herbaceous plants were the great features of the show, which filled the main and small exhibition halls, loggia and rotunda. In the gladiolus classes Chamberlain & Gage, William Sim and George Page, gardener for Mrs. Frederick Ayer, won the leading honors. Chamberlain & Gage's basket of myrtle, which won first for best hamper or basket, was a beauty. William Sim had a grand collection, showing Lilly Leaman, Hollandia, Halley and Kunderi Glory, extra fine. John Lewis Childs had a nice display. His new Whitest White received honorable mention. B. Hammond Tracy had a large collection, tastefully arranged. There were also gladiolus displays from Miss H. A. Riordan and others.

In the perennial phlox classes premiums went to F. J. Rea, T. C. Thurlow's Sons, Bay State Nurseries, Eastern Nurseries and M. Sullivan, gardener for William Whitman. The quality was unusually good. The last named exhibitor captured all the aster prizes awarded. For 100 vases of annuals Mrs. J. L. Gardner, William Thatcher, gardener, led, followed by Colonel Charles Pfaff, George Melvin, gardener, and William Whitman.

James Marlborough, superintendent for Thomas E. Proctor, of Topsfield, had a magnificent collection of fancy caladiums, hundreds of plants in over 125 varieties arranged artistically in beds to represent a garden scene. A circular bed in the center contained a pool of water, with fountains playing. Among a host of beautiful sorts, these were grandly colored: Lady Moseley, Noakesii, Araras, candidum, President de la Devansaye, Rio de Janeiro, Mons. Alfred Bleu, Baron Adolph de Rothschild, General Kuroki and Sir Julian Goldschmid. This display was awarded a gold medal, and Mr. Marlborough received a silver medal for superior culture.

The Mount Desert Nurseries received a silver medal for a grand collection of aconitums; also certificates of merit for the new astilbes, June and Silver White. They also had grand vases of A. Davidii, rutilans and Rose Perle.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co. had an extensive display of herbaceous flowers, buddleias, etc. They also had Sorbaria glabrata and quantities of Lilium Henryi. Bay State Nurseries and Eastern Nurseries each had splendid banks of herbaceous plants. G. W. Page, Mrs. E. M. Gill and others also had fine displays, and I doubt if Boston ever had a finer show of hardy perennials.

Dahlias showed up well from E. F. Dwyer & Son and J. P. Rooney. The latter received a certificate of merit for the peony dahlia, Mrs. Fred Grinnell. William Nicholson had a fine collection of forms of Buddleia variabilis. A. M. Davenport had heliotropes with mammoth flower trusses. Gustave Olson had Shasta daisies of grand quality. H. Stewart, gardener for Miss Cornelia Warren, had a display of cut orchids and other flowers; so had Mrs. E. M. Gill. Of fruits and vegetables there was a splendid show.

Convention Notes.

The hot weather of the last few days has been quite favorable for the development of the plants in the convention garden, many of which were planted late. The aquatic plants from Dreer and Tricker, in addition to being retarded by the cold weather, were raided by a flock of wild ducks, which made short work of about all the more tender leaves, and wiring has been necessary for their protection. The Japanese garden of R. & J. Farquhar & Co. is nearing completion and makes the largest and most notable display in the garden. Electric light will be freely used at night on the ponds and lagoons, and gondolas will ply on the waters and make the scene more realistic.

At the time of writing the lack of grass is the greatest want in the garden. We have had a long, severe drought here and artificial watering does not accomplish what rain would do. Considering the great obstacles encountered, the garden display is, however, encouraging and is sure to attract an immense attendance.

On the harbor trip to Fort Warren, Boston Light and Nantasket, August 21, all S. A. F. members, their wives and families will be carried free. There will be a charge of $1.50 per head for any others wishing to make the trip. An attendance of at least 1,500 is expected on this trip. For the ladies' outing to north shore resorts, August 20, about seventy-five automobiles will be used, possibly more. All ladies connected with the society, both visitors and local, will be carried free.

W. R. Nicholson is organizing a bowling team to represent Boston in the bowling contest and has a good list of sports prepared. Only S. A. F. members can compete in the events for men, but the ladies' and children's classes will be open to anyone. As only three hours are to be allotted to sports, the events will need to be pushed through with expedition.

The Baltimore delegation, due here August 17, will be taken on a sightseeing tour to places of historic interest. They will also see Boston's beautiful boulevards and parkways.

A number who hoped to attend the convention are marooned in Europe, and exhibits for the trade show, of both bulbs and sundries, are similarly held up. However, in spite of all drawbacks, we look for the best convention ever.

Visitors who may think Boston is a somewhat small city should remember that while the city proper has only 675,000 people, greater Boston has over 1,500,000, and within fifty miles of the state house we have 3,470,000 people, more by half a million than either Chicago or Philadelphia can show in a similar circuit.

A good delegation of members of the National Association of Gardeners are coming to the convention, headed by M. C. Ebel. The S. A. F. management should either change the hour they have allotted for the N. A. G. meeting or that for A. E. Thatcher's paper on "The S. A. F. and the Private Gardener." At present the two are arranged for the same hour, which makes a divided meeting a certainty.

The question of affiliation so far is not favorably received locally, but local club members are willing to hear all possible arguments for affiliation before voting "No."

Various Notes.

William R. Nicholson is planting his last house of carnations this week. He never had finer plants; some carry as many as thirty shoots each. Of the new varieties, Matchless, Philadelphia and Champion are splendid; so is Pink Delight, among the older sorts. Carnations here have been planted out on the same ground for many years, but by sowing down and plowing in humus crops in the shape of winter rye and cowpeas, the soil is kept in excellent condition.

Harry Quint is away on a vacation this week. He is doing a good business at his new stand, 199 Tremont street, and will have his store completely equipped with new showcases, etc., by September 1.

Visitors the present week include R. C. Berckmans, of Augusta, Ga.; Miss M. A. Clark, of Ellsworth, Me., and John Young, of New York.

W. R. Finley, salesman for Thomas Roland, left August 8 for his vacation, to be spent at Lake Onway, N. H.

W. E. Cahill, of the Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co., is convalescent after a three weeks' sickness with lockjaw and an abscess of the throat.

Professor C. S. Sargent, of the Arnold Arboretum, is among the large number of Americans marooned in Europe. Julius Heurlin, of the Blue Hill Nurseries, South Braintree, reached Paris just before the declaration of war. He had engaged passage home on the S. S. Amerika for next week, but that boat is now laid up in Boston and will probably stay there until the war closes.

Penn's duck farm remains as potent an attraction as ever on Bromfield street. The window is always crowded with interested spectators.

Thomas F. Galvin last week planted a fine carpet bed in the convention garden. The bed of standard and dwarf heliotropes from the W. W. Edgar Co., dotted with speciosum lilies, is charming at present. F. E. Palmer's bed is also fine.

C. B. Johnson, who bought Arthur Griffin's place at Woburn some time ago, has most of his carnations housed. His two new houses will largely increase his output for the coming season.

The windows of Wax Bros., on Tremont street, are always refreshing to look upon. They are now using gladioli, salpiglossis, aquatics and lilies to good advantage. About half of their staff are now away on vacations.

The asters and Shasta daisies now coming in from Gustave Olson, of Woburn, are equal to the best seen in the market.

Andrew Christensen, of Stoneham, still brings in a goodly number of carnations. He carries his plants late, and, by putting on a big force, gets his houses emptied, refilled and planted in a comparatively short time. He will plant several thousand Matchless this season.

Norris F. Comley secured first and second prizes for cucumbers at the exhibition in Horticultural hall August 8 and 9. He showed the new cucumber,

The Market.

Business is nothing extra just now; still, there is a little to do, especially of funeral work. Flowers are scarce and of rather poor quality. Roses are small and asters are scarce. Gladioli are good. Of carnations there are none. Our long drought has just been broken by a good shower.

Various Notes.

The Wm. Blackman Floral Co. has the roses, carnations and mums all in and growing well. They are cutting some nice Kaiserin and My Maryland. The two new houses are finished and planted. One house is planted to roses and the other to smilax, Sprengeri, etc.

Julius Niednagel & Sons' roses are coming along finely. They have the carnations all planted. Their mums are in fine condition. Emil Niednagel, John Niednagel and C. L. Niednagel motored to Vincennes, Ind., Sunday, August 2, on a pleasure trip.

C. L. Niednagel has his roses in good shape. He has been marketing a good crop of tomatoes from his field.

J. C. Elspermann and wife have returned from their trip to Chicago. Dave Elspermann also went to Chicago and has returned, reporting a nice trip. E. L. F.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Lester L. Morse, San Francisco, Cal.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O. Thirty-third annual convention, San Francisco, Cal., June, 1915.

THE Harris Bros. Seed Co., of Mt. Pleasant, Mich., has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $25,000.

REPORT of the death of Zack Davis, head of the Zack Davis Co., at Delaware, O., appears in this week's obituary column.

THE crop of French Romans appears to have exceeded somebody's calculations, as quantities already have reached American jobbers shipped on consignment.

BECAUSE of the war scare, there is special demand for Paper Whites and Romans, orders coming from growers who fear their Dutch bulbs may not arrive.

ARTICLES of incorporation have been filed by the L. Teweles Seed Co., of Milwaukee, Wis., with a capitalization of $250,000. The incorporators are Ludwig Teweles, Hugo Teweles and Max Teweles.

A BRANCH office for the northwest has been opened by Carter's Tested Seeds, Inc., of London, England, and Boston, Mass., in the Arcade building, at Seattle, Wash. The office will be in the charge of Dean D. Ballard.

INCORPORATION papers have been issued to the Oklahoma Seed Co., of Muskogee, Okla. The capital stock is fixed at $5,000 and the incorporators are Jennie W. Koepke, Charles J. Koepke and Samuel J. Ward, of Muskogee.

PLANS already are on foot to make next year's seed trade convention and international congress of seedsmen the best ever. As Secretary Kendel puts it, "We intend to have a world's seed trade convention, not just 'American.'"

THE J. C. Smith Seed Co., of Columbus, Ga., celebrated its first anniversary August 1. Since opening up in Columbus a year ago the company has developed a good-sized wholesale and retail seed business, and is gradually increasing its territory.

CADWELL & JONES, seedsmen at Hartford, Conn., will erect a 6-story brick building on the site of the firm's present offices, at 1082 and 1084 Main street. The entire building will be occupied by the concern. The Cadwell & Jones business was started in 1842, and is now conducted by W. Frank Jones, who has been associated with the concern for nearly fifty years; Marion B. Denison and Everett P. Jones.

DUTCH BULBS WILL COME.

Two cables from Rotterdam this week indicate that the Dutch bulbs not on imports from abroad will be more serious in some lines than others. That there will be considerable delay in deliveries no one doubts. This delay may be serious to a grower of bulbs, especially if he wants flowers at any particular time.

Many trans-Pacific steamers have been withdrawn from the service, and on account of this disturbance in shipping, it may be advisable for you to put in a few extra cases of Lilium Formosum this year.

You can get good bulbs from us at our usual prices—if you order them now. Sizes in stock are 7 to 9, 8 to 9, 8 to 10 and 9 to 10.

Good, healthy, dependable bulbs. Well ripened and ready for immediate delivery.

only will come but that they will not be greatly delayed. There is, then, the probability that America will be called on to use, late in the season, some portion of the crop ordinarily used in Germany, England, France and Russia.

A cable from the Holland-America line at Rotterdam states that in the cargo of the Nieuw Amsterdam, which sailed August 8, is a large quantity of bulbs and American officers of the line reiterate their statement that they expect to maintain their weekly sailings and to handle the bulbs as usual.

August Bontoux, president of the International Forwarding Co., Chicago, states that he has advices that three carloads of bulbs consigned to his company, are on the Nieuw Amsterdam. He also has the assurance of his agents at Rotterdam that later shipments will come along as usual.

SOME DUTCH BULBS HERE.

Although the present condition of ocean transportation makes the time and amount of future receipts of Dutch bulbs a matter of conjecture, there are a few already here. The number of cases so far received is, however, exceedingly small, as the season has scarcely opened. As reported in last week's issue of The Review, six cases from Rotterdam arrived at New York July 31, the first shipment of the season. A few additional consignments arrived on the steamer Rotterdam, from the port of Rotterdam, which reached New York August 4; they were as follows:

ONION SETS.

The prospect is that, with normal demand, the onion set supply will fall short of the demand in the spring of 1915. The harvest is practically complete. At the big producing center, Chicago, an excellent crop has been harvested, so far as quality goes, but ex-

Sweet Peas of C. W. Curtis, Irondequoit, N. Y.
Raised from Boddington's Quality Seed.

BODDINGTON'S "QUALITY" CHRISTMAS-FLOWERING

Sweet Peas

WE ARE SUPER-HEADQUARTERS

All true stocks of Winter-flowering Sweet Peas will again be scarce this season. The winter-flowering Spencer types are almost a total failure, owing to the exceptional season in California this spring, and through the ravages of Aphis we regret that we are unable to offer any seed, with the following exceptions. Our advice to intending planters is to order at once. Note revised prices.

The Sensational Australian Spencer Winter-flowering Sweet Pea, Yarrawa

We have been fortunate enough to secure a small quantity of this wonderful new Spencer Winter-flowering Sweet Pea from the raiser, Arthur Yates, of Sidney, and now offer it for the first time in America. It is far superior to the prevailing Spencer types—the flowers being exceptionally large and well fluted and waved; in color it is almost a duplicate of Countess Spencer, a delightful light soft rose, which lights up beautifully at night. We offer this original stock till sold, for trial, at $1.00 per trade pkt.; 3 trade pkts. for $2.75.

ROSE QUEEN "ROSE QUEEN" is Orchid-flowering, borne on long stems, extremely free and early and of pink color most attractive; is a decided acquisition, and, like all meritorious novelties, is sure to be in demand wherever grown. Prices: Trade pkt., $1.00; 3 trade pkts. for $2.75; 1 oz., $12.00.

ANITA WEHRMAN A fine, clear lavender, with three to four flowers to stem, and has been grown with 20-inch stems, holding the length longer than is usual with any other winter-flowering variety. Prices: Trade pkt., $1.00; 3 trade pkts. for $2.75; 1 oz., $12.00.

perts estimate that the quantity will not exceed that of last year, while at other points there is the usual reduction in the crop. The harvest at Louisville, once a leading producing point, this year does not greatly exceed 40,000 bushels, as compared with 100,000 bushels last year. One operator speaks of the crop there as "deplorable." The southern Ohio territory does not produce anything like the old-time quantity of sets and there has been no increase in Pennsylvania or the west to compensate in any large part for the reduced production in the valley of the Ohio. As a result, owners of sets have taken a firm attitude.

PRINCESS

20—The New Upright Pansy

This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing, and extremely weather-proof, enduring many storms without damage to its flower. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy velvety texture, on heavy stems carried well above the foliage. Attractive by the brilliancy of its colors.

500 seeds, 25c; 1000, 50c; ¼ oz., $2.50; 1 oz., $10.00.

84—Bronze—Brown and copper shades mixed.
86—Fancy—Rich colors, mostly margined.
88—Mme. Perret—Red and wine shades.
40—Zebra—Fine striped mixture.
42—Adonis—Light blue, white center.
44—Black—Almost coal black.
46—Black with bronze center.
48—Lord Beaconsfield—Purple shaded white.
50—Bronze—Beautiful bronze.
52—Bronze with yellow center.

The KENILWORTH Giant Pansy

seeds are all grown by myself and are offered in the following mixtures and separate colors:

22—KENILWORTH STRAIN—The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are from 3½ to 4 inches; it is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings, rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, mahogany and many others too numerous to mention. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures.

24—KENILWORTH SHOW—An extra fine strain of large flowers; the immense flowers are of circular form and great substance; a beautiful collection of colors and markings.

26—KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE—Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower or for exhibition purposes, for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 7 or 8 inches long, in the most graceful manner, and stand the hot, dry weather well.

28—MASTERPIECE—A remarkable type; the curled, wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance, large flowers of great substance, on long, strong stems.

30—GIANT THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED PANSIES—A superb mixture. Flowers large and of circular form and of great substance. The display of coloring is unsurpassed. A combination of almost every shade of rich velvety colors, reds are particularly conspicuous; the petals being distinctly marked with three or five large dark blotches.

NEW SEED NOW READY

All sorts and mixtures, except the new Pansy Princess, are $5.00 per oz.; $1.25 per ¼-oz.; 5000 seeds, $1.00; trade packet of 1000 seeds, 25c; any 5 pkts., $1.00. Please order by number.

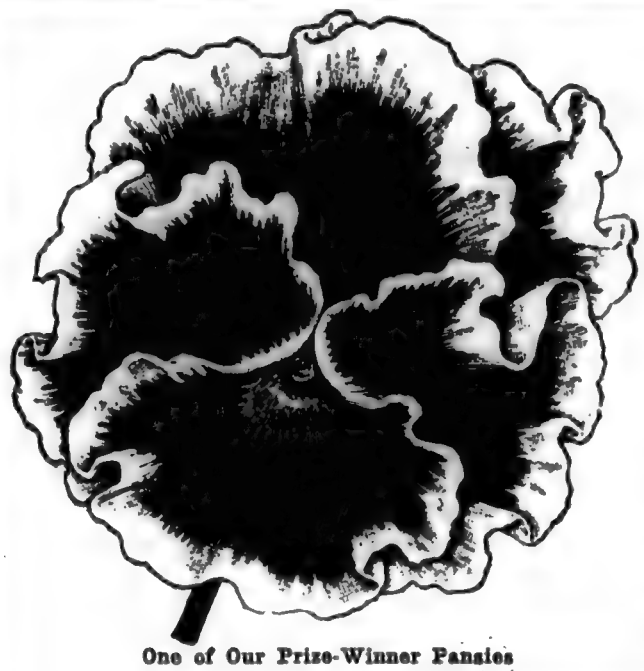
though smaller lots will doubtless follow for a number of weeks, and considerable additional quantities may come if the countries at war do not take their usual number of Romans and Paper Whites, which naturally will then be consigned to this country for sale.

ROCKY FORD RECOVERS.



The blow administered to seed crops at Rocky Ford, Colo., which were cut down by hail, appears to have come early enough in the season so that replanting saved the day. A. W. Creager, president of the Ebbert Seed Co., said, August 10:

"The seed crops in this locality have recovered extremely well from the damage received by hail. Having had favorable growing weather, with plenty of moisture, the seed crop harvested will be close to normal."

THE EUROPEAN SEEDS.

Conditions arising out of the war in Europe do not appear, this week, so alarming as they did a few days ago. Probably the change is more a state of mind than anything else, for hostilities have not developed anything of a decisive nature and means of communication are so fully occupied with military affairs that efforts to get in touch by cable usually are fruitless. But anxiety gradually is being allayed. A taking of stock shows that the prompt arrival of the new crop is not so urgent as was at first thought. More and more each year, it seems, the trade depends on yearling seeds, the new crop not making its way through the somewhat devious commercial channels in season to meet the needs of the early planters. Also, it seems probable that the English, French and Holland seeds will come dribbling along, not on time but none the less surely. Cable advices to the daily press indicate that the English government is looking to the conservation of all agricultural resources and that general business is settling down to something approaching normal. Shipping is moving in the North sea. In France a much larger part of the population than in England has been called to arms and the railroads have thus far been used solely for the moving of men and equipment. France is, apparently, undertaking the war with greater enthusiasm than any of the other nations. The German fleet seems to be fully occupied in protecting the ports of that country and it is probable that shipping between England, France and America soon will proceed much as usual. Holland remains neutral, although its army has mobilized, and the Rotterdam boats are running. The sailings have been delayed by the general upsetting of railroad transportation. The Holland-America line says it will bring to this country promptly anything that the seed and bulb growers are able to deliver to the dock. The view obtains that a larger part of the Dutch bulb crop than usual will find its way to America this season unless Holland is forced to abandon its neutrality.

Germany, of course, is for the moment cut off from communication. Nobody can more than guess what is going on there. But it seems probable that the major part of the seed crops will be saved and that they will be available to America next season, when

MR. CUTHBERTSON TALKS.

Frank Cuthbertson, son of a well-known Edinburgh seedsman, after a term in California, has gone home for a visit, combining business and pleasure. A trade paper has had a talk with him and a part of what it says will be interesting reading for the trade here:

"A trifle over three years ago Mr. Cuthbertson left for New York with a view to discovering whether there was an opening for such as he in the land of the free. Sweet pea growing was his forte, and therefore on his arrival in the States, he offered his services to a Californian firm. He was put in charge of a small gang in the sweet pea fields, with the promise of three months' work. He is still with the firm, and is now what one may term managing foreman of thousands of acres. Apart from the business he has in hand, Mr. Cuthbertson is also acting as a delegate for the great exposition which opens next February at San Francisco.

"The greatest specialty of C. C. Morse & Co. is onions; 600 acres come under Mr. Cuthbertson's eye. The system of growing is much the same as at home. Of lettuce, the firm grows 400 acres, the seed being sown from February to May. The resultant plants are thinned out in due course, and beyond the necessity of cutting open the large headed types, the crop is usually pretty certain. This season, however, the total Californian lettuce crop, or rather those crops in the San Juan valley, were threatened with extinction by a caterpillar or worm which gave a considerable amount of trouble before it was suppressed. Carrots do well on the Morse ranches, and an immense area is devoted to them. Beets, mangels and all forms of the brassica cannot be grown, as the seed produced invariably bolts when sown elsewhere.

"Flower seed crops are almost entirely grown on contract, the exception being sweet peas, of which the firm grows 400 acres, just about double the entire area grown on this side of the water. When Mr. Cuthbertson arrived on the Morse ranches, it was not long before his superiors discovered that he knew more about sweet peas than they dreamed of. As a matter of fact, he holds the view even now, that few seedsmen or seed growers in all the United States actually know the difference between Spencer and grandiflora sweet peas. C. C. Morse & Co. are going to make things hum at the great exposition at San Francisco. Mr. Cuthbertson has been experimenting during the last two seasons and has discovered how giant show blooms can be produced in California, and as no

A DISCOVERY

We have discovered that it is as hard to get people to believe the truth as it is a lie. There is so much "guff" about new and old things that folks must actually be shown before they swallow any kind of bait. Long, long ago we told you that a better plant of snapdragon could be grown from SEED than from cuttings; that it would develop more quickly and be free from disease; that a seedling Silver Pink would net two dollars to one from cuttings, and that you were wasting time and money if you were not using seedlings of this wonderful snapdragon.

AUGUST SOWING BRINGS DOLLARS

TURN ABOUT TODAY

and if you are the least bit skeptical try one packet of seed. If you will take our word, buy more and utilize all of the space that you can. The snapdragon is down for a winner. Get in line for some of the easy money. Sow seed today, and don't let August go by without having a lot of seedling S. P. Snaps. They will prove the greatest money-making thing on your place.

New crop seed, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00; postpaid for cash. New cultural directions free.

Will have 60,000 plants ready in October. Figure your need and send order early.

A WAR TIP—In the event of a scarcity of bulbs due to the existing European war, are you prepared with a substitute? My seedling S. P. Snap is the most available thing on the market. Better sow a few packets of seed and be ready for any emergency. It will profitably tide you over a serious difficulty. Act today.

BODDINGTON'S GIGANTIC PANSIES

Can be produced only from the giant strains. Our CHALLENGE PANSY seed contains only the giant self-colors, the giant striped and variegated and the giant blotched, etc., all carefully mixed in proportion. You could not buy better seed if you paid $100 per ounce. Our Challenge Pansy seed during the past season gave unprecedented satisfaction, and every order booked last year was duplicated and increased this year. All the testimonials received mentioned specially the high grade of flowers—color, form and size of the individual blossoms. This year, by adding improved types, intending customers can absolutely rely on a duplication of this season's success with increased satisfaction. Our "mark" for this strain is "Challenge," and it is all the word denotes.

Pansy—Boddington's "Challenge"—All Giants

This mixture contains all the finest Giant strains—of the leading Pansy Specialists in the world—the Giant self-colors, the Giant striped and margined, and the Giant blotched, etc., all carefully mixed in proportion—the finest that money can buy—the finest your money can buy. one there has grown samples of bloom such as are grown in this country, he is confident of giving everyone an eye-opener. The American public and the seedsmen generally do not really know to what perfection modern Spencer varieties can be grown, and while enormous quantities of sweet pea seeds are sown by gardeners and amateurs in America, Mr. Cuthbertson is convinced that the business would have been far greater had the seedsmen given this flower the attention it deserves.

"Aphis has entirely ruined many crops in California this season, despite spraying, while some of those remaining are exceedingly short in growth, and cannot therefore produce much of a crop. A proportion of the Morse crop was sprayed with nicotine, but Mr. Cuthbertson believes they might have saved those thousands of dollars, for the unsprayed lots are not materially worse. Why the aphis plague should have been unknown until two years ago is past all understanding, but its recurrence each season makes it plain that aphis has to be faced, and the loss it entails will assuredly drive many out of the sweet pea growing business.

"The labor on such a ranch as that of Morse & Co. is a pretty problem. All that can be done by machinery is so handled. Some crops, such as onions, are harvested by hand, but sweet peas are mowed by machinery and thrashed in the field by electric power. The total number of hands employed on the Morse ranch during the busy time is about 250, and a more cosmopolitan assembly, says Mr. Cuthbertson, can scarcely be imagined. Italy, Holland, northern Europe, Greece, etc., are represented. Most of the field workers, however, are Chinamen, but these for the most part are getting on in years, and as no fresh additions are allowed to enter the United States, the labor problem in California will be acute in the near future. Mr. Cuthbertson has no British assistants, and he and the ranch manager, Thomas Landrum, who is an American, are thus living among a motley crowd. It is a life of work and sleep.''

OLDS DOING WELL.

At the meeting of the stockholders of the L. L. Olds Seed Co., Madison, Wis., held at the office of the company August 3, the following directors were reëlected: E. F. Riley, W. D. Curtis, Chas. N. Brown, Dr. C. S. Sheldon, T. S. Morris, L. L. Olds and S. A. Wilson. On the adjournment of the stockholders' meeting a directors' meeting was called, when L. L. Olds was reëlected president, W. D. Curtis vice-president, S. A. Wilson secretary, and E. F. Riley treasurer. Mr. Olds continues as general manager and S. A. Wilson as assistant manager. The company has been six years in Madison and during that time, according to Mr. Wilson, the business has doubled itself twice.

MELON MEN INDICTED.

Twenty-eight men and seven firms or corporations, members of the alleged national melon trust, were indicted August 7 by a federal grand jury. They will be prosecuted under the Sherman anti-trust act.

The government contends that the Western Cantaloupe Exchange, which the indicted men are said to have organized in 1912, not only regulated the shipment of melons but allowed the fruit to rot on the vines in order to hold prices up.

Prominent commission merchants in half a dozen cities were accused by the grand jury. The corporations or firms indicted are: Western Cantaloupe Exchange of Chicago and Brawley, Cal.; Lyon Bros. Co., New York city; Miller-Cummings Co., New York city; Lyon-Coggins Co., Pittsburgh; M. O. Coggins Co., Pittsburgh; Mutual Distributing Co. and United Marketing Co., Los Angeles. The Chicagoans are: Frank E. and William L. Wagner, of G. M. H. Wagner & Son; Charles H. and Charles A. Weaver, L. Bernard Kilbourne, William F. Morpf and Ira Dodge Hale, all identified with C. H. Weaver & Co., and Joseph Friedheim, president of J. Friedheim & Co. The other individuals named are: James Stapleton Crutchfield, Clifford A. Coggins, C. Swift Bollens, Robert B. Woolfolk and Samuel Y. Free, all of Pittsburgh; Adolph Levy, Arthur M. Klein and Louis Spiegl, San Francisco; Alexander Strachan, Charles E. Virden, Duncan Campbell and A. W. ...THE...

Chrysanthemum

By Arthur Herrington

Formerly president Chrysanthemum Society of America.

The most complete and comprehensive work on the cultivation of the chrysanthemum that has yet been published in America. Its scope and character may be gleaned from the list of contents, which comprises chapters on composts; planting; benches, boxes or pots; general cultural details; crown and terminal buds; feeding, its object and application; care of the buds; exhibition and judging; specimen plants, plants in pots; raising from seed and hybridizing; sports; hardy chrysanthemums; chrysanthemums for south and west; insect pests and diseases; classification and selection of varieties for special purposes; history of the chrysanthemum, etc. The book will be welcomed for the lucid, comprehensive, as well as the practical character of its contents. Handsomely illustrated. 168 pages, 5x7 inches. Price 50c postpaid.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Portland, Ore.—L. C. Shearer, formerly at Rockford, Ill., is starting a new establishment here. He has two houses of half-iron construction. He is now busy benching chrysanthemums.

Spokane, Wash.—C. T. Kipp, president of the Spokane Florist Co., has taken a 3-year lease on the store at the Sprague avenue entrance to the new Davenport hotel. He plans to operate this as a branch of the Riverside store.

Portage, Wash.—A fire, one-half mile wide, in the brush near here was the cause of alarm at the greenhouses of F. W. Bibbins recently. The blaze was headed for his establishment and required the efforts of fire fighters day and night to head it off.

Tacoma, Wash.—The Hayden-Watson flower store was opened August 1 at 938 South C street. This concern represents the union of the two retail stores conducted separately by the two members of the new firm. The store is up to the minute in style and furnishings, and is one of the best in this section.

Seattle, Wash.—The first annual show of the Pacific Coast Dahlia Society will be held in the National Guard armory September 18 and 19. Preparations are extensive and members of the society, most of whom are amateurs, are enthusiastic over the outlook. Among the judges for the show is Thomas Wylie.

SPRAY FOR TARNISH BUG.

Growers who have tried every formula suggested to rid their plants of the tarnish bug, without success, will welcome the news that a florist of Portland, Ore., has a spray which will clean out this pest in a short time. A. Hallett, who has a range at Seventy-ninth street and Forty-fifth avenue, declares it beats anything he has ever tried in his forty years' experience as a grower. His aster and chrysanthemum plants were thickly infested with the tarnish bug and leaf-miner until he tried this remedy, which destroyed them at once. Later experiments proved its success with red spider and black aphis as well.

The spray, which is the result of many experiments in this line on the part of Mr. Hallett, consists of cyanide of potassium, brown sugar and water. Earthen vessels should be used for mixing and keeping the insecticide. Three heaping teaspoonfuls of cyanide of potassium and one pound of brown sugar are placed in a bowl, and over them is poured a quart of boiling water. When these are thoroughly mixed, enough cold water is added to make two gallons of spray. This will cover a solid bed of asters 50x50 feet. One pound of cyanide of potassium and thirty pounds of brown sugar will make sixty gallons of insecticide.

In order to get the best results from this spray, the plants should be as dry as possible; if they are in a wilted condition, so much the better, for they will then absorb the liquid so much the better and take more poison into the plant, to the ultimate fatal detriment of the tarnish bug and other pests. Mr. Hallett states that when he began the use of the spray there were thousands of grasshoppers among his plants, but that two days afterward he could not see any. For the tarnish bug it is necessary to spray several times to get rid of the pest and continue the use of the insecticide about once a week to keep the bugs away, as they come from other sources, which cannot be controlled.

The poison is absorbed by the plants with the sweet liquid, and when the tarnish bug pierces the stems it draws out the poison—and expires. It should be remembered that inasmuch as cyanide of potassium is so deadly a poison it should not be used on vegetables or any crop that may be used as food, for the leaves will contain enough poison to cause the death of the consumer.

I sold over 35,000 chrysanthemum plants this season on my 1-inch ad in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. Of course that paid me well and I am very pleased. You will hear from me again as soon as I can work up stock.—Frank Wilhelm, R. F. D. No. 6, Los Angeles, Cal., June 13, '14.

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

Nothing unusual has occurred in the market during the last week. Were it not for funeral work, all hands might as well have taken vacations. In funeral work, however, there has been considerable activity. Roses are extremely scarce and are of poor quality. Carnations have been about equal to the demand, with occasional shortages in some localities. Asters are coming more freely and are improved in quality. Customers are gladly turning to asters, as the small summer carnations are not satisfactory. Sweet peas continue good and are to be had in abundance.

Various Notes.

The Spokane Greenhouses, Inc., say that, from all appearances, they will be cutting a good crop of roses in a few weeks. Several benches of carnations which were cut back and are being carried over are now throwing a good crop of flowers of fine quality and color. The firm's gloxinias have been exceptionally good. They had a big batch of azaleas left from last winter and these are being carried over in fine shape. They are expecting that the probable shortage of azaleas from Belgium, occasioned by the European war, will make these as valuable as a small gold mine.

At the annual sweet pea show, conducted under the auspices of the ladies of the First Universalist church, a handsome display of flowers was shown. A. J. Burt, Carl T. Kipp and Henry E. Reimers, who judged the show, pronounced the exhibit, as regards variety, quality and artistic arrangement, of extraordinary excellence. Mr. Burt said it was one of the finest displays of sweet peas grown by amateurs that he had ever seen. He calls the vicinity about Spokane an ideal country for sweet peas, asters and dahlias.

The Market.

A large quantity of the cheaper grades of flowers has been used this week in funeral work, but this sums up the business. The weather is delightful for all kinds of outdoor recreation, but this does not make good business for the florists. The only scarce item has been lily of the valley, and this not on account of the amount used, but owing to the fact that most of the growers have cut it out for the summer. Outdoor roses remain good and the old La Detroit is splendid.

Various Notes.

G. Rolleri, of the California Evergreen Co., has just returned from a two weeks' trip to San Francisco and other northern points, where he has been looking up stock for fall and Christmas trade. He has made large reservations of all kinds of greens, Christmas trees and berried stock, which will take care of the increasing business of the firm.

At the Los Angeles Flower Market everyone was busy getting ready wreathing for a wedding decoration. Funeral work was also plentiful.

NEW SWEET PEA
MONROVIA

For several years this has been the best seller on the Los Angeles and other local markets, and I have decided to offer it to the trade as long as the stock lasts at $5.00 per ounce.

Monrovia begins to flower when only about one foot high and continues to bloom profusely until it reaches 8 feet high outdoors. It will make a splendid greenhouse variety, as the buds do not drop under any conditions The color is a deep purple outside, inside heliotrope, and it is unquestionably the finest winter-blooming purple in existence. The seed has been carefully reselected from large pods only. It was gathered in April and May in the foothill section, and is consequently mature and of high germinating power. It is an exceptionally stout grower and throws long stemmed flowers all through the season, four to six flowers to the stem. This offer will be withdrawn as soon as present stock is exhausted.

vacation and G. Newman leaves this week for San Diego for his. The removal of the office from the front of the store to the center makes it quieter and gives much additional room.

A 7-year-old nephew of H. N. Gage met with a sudden death at Long Beach. The little fellow had been bathing and went to the roof to hang out his suit. An air shaft with a defective cover was the cause of his death; he fell four stories. Mr. Gage has gone to Texas with the boy's mother for the funeral. The boy was one of twins.

Frank Walter, who is well known as a gatherer of choice native and other seeds, has left San Diego and now lives in Los Angeles. He has a most interesting folio of photos of all kinds of trees and shrubs, as well as dried specimens.

Among the funeral pieces at Morris Goldenson's this week was a fine pall of pink sweet peas and Silver Pink snapdragons, a pretty combination.

A week or two away from the rose growing establishment of H. W. Turner shows a wonderful difference in the young stock. It has probably never been cleaner or made a better growth than this season and it certainly has never been more interesting, owing to the number of novelties being grown. The lovely pink sport of Prima Donna easily outshines them all, though, and September Morn, as Mr. Turner has named it, will surely be a world beater. It is the most exquisitely tinted pink ever sent out, while its petalage is, if anything, better than that of its parent. The petals have also the beautiful serrated edge of those of Prima Donna. The older propagating houses have now been removed to make way for various other buildings.

It is rumored that R. W. Saakes is leaving his Main street location, where he has been so many years, for one on Broadway, opposite Hamburger's store.

The subject at the August meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society, held in Kruckeberg's hall, August 4, was "Growing Gladioli," by C. E. Houdyschell, of Lordsburg. Mr. Houdyschell has been raising seedling gladioli, irises and other plants for some years and has a pleasant manner of speaking. He took his audience through all the phases of the work of growing and storing the bulbs, besides giving the history of many crosses, and was awarded a rising vote of thanks at the end of his speech. Bills for the picnic were presented and ordered paid. In the absence of Secretary Kruckeberg, Mrs. Miller, our only lady member at present, read the minutes and carried out the duties of secretary.

The drowning at Bimini baths of the son of Fire-chief Eley, of this city, was a sad event, but the respect in which Mr. Eley is held was shown by the enormous quantity of funeral pieces made.

J. M. Grant, the newly appointed county forester for Orange county, is already winning golden opinions from the board of forestry and the inhabitants. He has already over 20,000 young stock planted out in the nursery and many more thousands ready to plant. All his Los Angeles friends wish him well. H. R. Richards.

We are all sold out. The Review did the work and we want to thank you for it.—W. Bezdek, Cedar Rapids, Ia.

FORCING SPIRÆAS.

Please tell me when to force spiræas imported from Holland in order to have them in for Christmas, also for Easter.

F. & L.

Spiræas are rarely seen at Christmas. If cold storage roots are procurable, they will flower in eight to nine weeks. Allow Gladstone and astilboides eight weeks, and Queen Alexandra and Peach Blossom eight to ten days longer for Easter in a temperature of 60 degrees.

C. W.

HYDRANGEAS FOR NEXT JUNE.

I have some hydrangeas which I forced last spring. I want to force them next year, to be in flower about June 1. When should they be dried off, and how? About what time should I start them and what should be their general treatment to have them in flower at the desired time? F. L.

Hydrangeas to flower as late as June 1 will need no special preparation and drying off, as would plants for early forcing. Keep the plants outdoors until frost threatens. The plants will not be injured by a light freezing, but do not let them be exposed sufficiently to blacken the leaves. Store them in coldframes where they can be protected on frosty nights, and later store them in a cool, frost-proof pit or cellar. The plants need not be started before the middle of March, to flower by June 1.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

NOTICE has been filed of the dissolution of the Indianapolis Forest & Nursery Co., of Indianapolis.

F. W. KELSEY, head of the F. W. Kelsey Nursery Co., New York city, and his wife are among the Americans stranded in Europe.

AT the annual meeting of the Texas State Horticultural Society, at College Station, Tex., J. H. Arbenz, of Sarita, was reëlected president.

THE Phœnix Nursery Co., at Delavan, Wis., has been purchased by W. J. Moxley. William Moore, for years the foreman at the nurseries, will retain his position under the new ownership. A large greenhouse will probably be built soon and some other improvements made.

THE nurserymen's representative on the committee which is to memorialize the Texas state legislature for the purpose of obtaining a state arboretum and botanical garden is F. T. Ramsey, of Austin. The other members of the committee, which was chosen at the conference at College Station, Tex., July 28, are the state commissioner of agriculture; I. M. Lewis, of the University of Texas; E. J. Kyle, of the Agricultural and Mechanical College, and B. Youngblood, director of experiment stations.

LLOYD C. STARK, vice-president and general manager of the Stark Bros. Nurseries & Orchards Co., of Louisiana, Mo., is being championed in the House of Representatives by Speaker Clark in his efforts to reënter the navy with the rank of lieutenant of junior grade. When Mr. Stark left the navy several years ago on account of the ill health of his father and the death of his uncle, State Senator Eugene Stark, to take charge of the business, he had attained the rank of ensign. His record in the service and at Annapolis was an excellent one, and the only bar to his reëntrance to the navy as lieutenant is the objection of Representative Mann, the minority leader, who believes a law should cover all such cases.

ORNAMENTAL GROWERS MEET.

The Ornamental Growers' Association held its annual meeting at Boston, August 4 to 6, with headquarters at the Hotel Bellevue. About forty members of the association were in attendance. The greater part of the time was given over to tours of inspection of the nurseries in the neighborhood of Boston. On the first day the Bay State Nurseries, at North Abington, was, among others, visited. The following day an automobile trip through Lexington, Concord and Framingham was made. The grounds of the Breck-Robinson Nursery Co., at Lexington; the New England Nurseries, at Bedford, and the Framingham Nurseries, at South Framingham, were inspected, and the party dined at the Russell House, in Lexington, as the guests of the Breck-Robinson Nursery Co.

The officers of the association are: President, R. C. Berckmans, of Augusta, Ga.; vice-president, William Pitkin, of Rochester, N. Y., and secretary-treasurer, C. J. Maloy, of Rochester, N. Y. Among the local members of the association who were responsible for the enjoyable entertainment provided were: W. H. Wyman, of the Bay State Nurseries; A. E. Robinson, of the Breck-Robinson Nursery Co.; Harlan P. Kelsey, of the Highlands Nursery, and John Kirkegaard, of the New England Nurseries. The next meeting place will be New York city.

JONES TO MEET OBLIGATIONS.

Owing to the complete breakdown of Hiram T. Jones, proprietor of the Union County Nurseries, at Elizabeth, N. J., following nearly a year of ill health, his wife, Mrs. Rachel R. W. Jones, is taking charge, in the expectation of straightening out his affairs and, after the obligations have been met, of closing out the business, as Mr. Jones is not likely to be able to conduct it again himself. Creditors are, therefore, being asked for two years' time; notes are to be given for fifty per cent of the indebtedness for one year with interest, and for the remainder notes for two years with interest will be given. By this means time will be given to sell the nursery stock of the concern at normal prices through the regular market. This will be sufficient to meet all the obligations, as the debts amount to about $28,000, while the stock is appraised at about $34,000. Equity in the real estate amounts to approximately $13,500, and personal property raises the total of Mr. Jones' assets to $51,000. By caring for the nursery stock for the next two years and disposing of it in the regular channels and by providing for carrying on the business from her own resources, Mrs. Jones expects, with the agreement of the creditors to her plan, to satisfy them all and close out the business. Elmer Runyan, president of the Elizabeth Nursery Co., of the same city, is assisting Mrs. Jones in her endeavor.

WOOLLY APHIS ON MAPLES.

I have a double row of fairly large maples that are in the condition of the specimen sent under separate cover. Can you tell me how to clean them up?

The stems and foliage are covered with woolly aphis. To destroy this, spray thoroughly with kerosene emulsion, whale oil soap, nicotine, or any one of the various soap, oil or other sprays advertised. Use at advertised strength, but it would do no harm to make the mixture thirty-three to fifty per cent stronger at this time, when foliage is well ripened. Use a fine, misty spray nozzle and wet every portion of wood and foliage. Choose a clear, warm day for the operation. C. W.

PERMANENT PROFITS.

The nurseryman who is looking towards building up a business that is solid financially is concerned today not so much with the question of production as with that of marketing. An irresponsible class that is present in every line of business has made the ears of the public familiar with such phrases as "cut prices" and "bargains," and the din of these words has to a large extent drowned out those nurserymen whose first consideration has

I solicit an opportunity to figure on contracts for

CALIFORNIA PRIVET HEDGING

For the coming Autumn and next Spring's sales

I have to offer over a half million California Privet, consisting of two years old in 1½ to 2 feet, 2 to 3 feet and 3 to 4 feet; three years in 3 to 4 feet, and one year in 12 to 18 inches and 1½ to 2 feet grades. The two and three year grades were carefully cut back the past Spring, are well branched and strictly first-class.

I am prepared to offer exceedingly attractive prices, especially in carload lots.

Being the introducer of the California Privet as a hedge plant away back in the early seventies, it is perhaps not claiming too much to say I am headquarters for it.

been of quality and reliability, rather than of price. But in spite of P. T. Barnum's celebrated assertion that the public likes to be humbugged, people wake up sooner or later to the fact that low prices mean low quality in the end; they do not like to be humbugged along the same line all the time. It is not hard to convince buyers whose previous purchases of stock have not come up to their expectations that the expenditure of a little more money would have proved a greater saving in the end. The way to put the business on a permanently profitable basis is, therefore, to educate the buying public to an appreciation of the value, financial and otherwise, of first-rate quality and of reliability. The buyers must be made to forget the phrases of the irresponsible sellers whose sole idea was to get money while they had the chance, without a thought to the good of their business or their fellow-tradesmen's business in after years. Make quality the first consideration of the public, not price.

Various steps have been taken in this direction and one of the best is the use of the reading columns of the various agricultural papers throughout the country. An article entitled "First-class Nursery Stock," by J. W. Stubenrauch, the nurseryman of Mexia, Tex., which appeared in Farm and Ranch, an agricultural journal of Texas, for July 25, was an effort along this line. The opening statement, that " 'strictly first-class' trees could not be produced and sold at current prices of nowadays and leave the nurseryman any profit whatever," serves as a text for a sermon

Mr. Wintzer and I will be there to show and tell you about the truly wonderful Cannas of the Conard & Jones development.

All our exhibit at Minneapolis last year we sold to one man.

Somebody will get them this year. They are the very cream of our stock.

Every one a top-notcher. If you want them, speak right up, for the first man that speaks gets them.

Here are some of the ones in our exhibit collection:

Wintzer's Colossal, Wm. Saunders, Rosea Gigantea, Loveliness, Kate F. Deemer, Meteor, Olympic, Mrs. A. F. Conard, Panama, Beacon and Wyoming.

on the gospel of "quality first." By explaining the difference in the methods of growing really good stock and those of producing stuff that will sell under the same name as the good stock, the article impresses on the reader the fact that "the best is none too good," nor, at the same time, any too expensive. Once let the public be made thoroughly familiar with this idea, by the means here mentioned or any other, and the day of the "bargain" will be over and the nursery business a more profitable one.

TO KILL TREE BORERS.

My fruit, pin oak and ash trees are severely attacked by borers. Will you oblige me by telling the best method of destroying them or driving them away? T. J.

Run a piece of galvanized wire up the holes until you reach and kill the borers. You can also suffocate them by injecting a little carbon bisulphide into the holes and plugging up the holes at once with putty. Do not pile manure around the trunks of your fruit trees, as this makes an excellent harbor for the pests. Keep, if possible, a ring of cultivated ground around each tree and keep this well stirred. Encourage insectivorous birds, which will destroy quantities of these pests. C. W.

PESTS COLLECTED IN JUNE.

June was the off month of the year with the federal horticultural inspectors, judging from the horticultural board's report of pests collected from incoming consignments of stock during that month. The total number of infested shipments found during the month was barely over 200, and these included not only shipments of nursery stock but of every other conceivable representative of the plant kingdom that is listed in our country's imports. Belgium's shipments brought the largest number of pests of any one country, seventy-nine, and practically every one on palms and bay trees. Considering the extent of this country's exports of these two stocks, this number is not surprising. Second in number of pests was Colombia, but all of the cases from this country were on orchids. The District of Columbia was the busiest spot for the inspectors, and sixty-five cases are reported in that district. New York, New Jersey and California stood next in line, with twenty-five, twenty-two and twenty respectively.

The Market.

Business during the last week has been as good as could be expected. Roses and carnations are selling clean. Sweet peas are plentiful, but the quality might be better. Asters are coming in well and the supply is equal to the demand. All outdoor flowers are in good supply. Gladiolus America is coming in especially fine and finds a ready market.

Various Notes.

Ernest Knoth, one of the delivery boys of the Park Floral Co., won third place in an amateur bicycle race held Colorado day, August 1. He is now proudly showing two new bicycles, which were among the prizes he won.

Lewis Malone, of the Colorado Seed & Nursery Co., was the lucky winner of a $1,600 touring car in a drawing held by the Elks during their convention held here in July.

Fred Maier recently bought a Ford touring car.

J. A. Valentine is back in the city after spending a few days in the mountains.

Albert Hamburger has the sympathy of the trade in the death of his 6-months-old daughter.

E. P. Neiman is spending his vacation in the mountains.

Fred Jacobson, of the Denver Wholesale Florist Co., and Harry Harlowe, of the Elitch-Long Gardens, spent a few days in Colorado Springs recently.

S. O. Johnson has added two Moninger greenhouses to his range this summer.

Visitors during the last week were: G. A. Kaupp, of Nevada, Mo.; Harry Bailey, of Los Angeles, Cal.; Mrs. M. E. Cristy, of Glenwood Springs, Colo.; Charles F. Fawcett, of Boulder, Colo., and Carl A. Espelin, of Fort Collins, Colo.

The Market.

Business is, on the whole, decidedly slow. About every so often, during the last week, there were good spurts, but they were of short duration and did not do much to bring up the total for the week. The supply is large and prices low. On some of the shipments, the wholesalers were fortunate if the cost of express could be obtained. The best quality, of course, yielded fair returns. Gladioli and asters continue in large supply. Giganteum lilies are abundant. The rose cut continues large and includes many blooms of really good quality. These, however, find a slow market. The supply of Beauties is sufficient for all demands. Good auratum and rubrum lilies are offered. The few carnations that come in meet with an indifferent call. Hardy hydrangeas are excellent, but the demand varies. The green goods supply is sufficient to meet all demands.

Various Notes.

The effect of the European war on the staple lines in European-made goods and supplies is not worrying C. E. Critchell, for with his policy of always keeping stock up-to-date, he has sufficient quantities to last for some time.

E. G. Gillett reports that the public is beginning to realize what a good summer rose Shawyer is. Mr. Gillett receives this variety from F. Benthey & Co., New Castle, Ind.

Frank & Sons, of Portland, Ind., are shipping some fine Maryland to L. H. Kyrk.

Mrs. P. J. Olinger, after a long stay in the hospital, expects to return home August 15. Congratulations upon her recovery are in order, as Mrs. Olinger put up a long fight against big odds.

The engagement of Clarence Peterson to Miss Mary Critchell has been announced. It is said the ceremony will take place shortly.

J. F. Keller, of Lexington, Ky., was in the city last week. C. H. H.

Easthampton, Mass.—George McIntyre is building a third greenhouse, seventy feet long, at his range on Stonepath lane.

WE PAY THE EXPRESS

The reason that our plants reach you in better condition than plants from other greenhouses is because of our scientific packing; also the fact of their being raised at a high altitude, 5721 ft. above sea level, which gives them lots of fibrous roots. They start quickly. They are not soft.

LEXINGTON, KY.

The Market.

The usual dull season is upon us. But for a fair demand for funeral work a great deal of stock would find its way to the waste heaps. Outdoor stock is looking better since the recent rains, and some good asters, gladioli and snapdragons are coming in. Roses and lilies constitute the greater part of the indoor flowers. Lilium rubrum and auratum are plentiful. No more carnations are seen in this market.

Various Notes.

A visit to Honaker's greenhouses found the place in fine shape. Several houses of roses and carnations are well advanced. A fine lot of carnation plants under irrigation looks fine. Good lots of cyclamens in frames were also seen.

Some fine roses are being cut at the greenhouses of the John A. Keller Co., and some good lilies, asters and gladioli. The range is being painted, which will add greatly to the appearance of the place. Chrysanthemums are looking well here.

Miss Fannie White has just returned from a trip to Chicago. While there she placed an order for a new house for roses, 28x110 feet, with the Foley Mfg. Co. Miss White reports business quite good.

J. F. Keller, president of the John A. Keller Co., has left for a ten days' trip to Chicago, Detroit, Toledo and Cleveland. Some rebuilding is to be done next spring, and plans will be gone into.

Keller, the Florist, has been kept busy during the last week with an unusual run of funeral work. Transient trade is slow.

Michler Bros. Co. has torn down an old plant house to make room for a display house, 21x85 feet, with 7-foot side walls. Lord & Burnham Co. has the contract. A cellar of concrete for cut flowers, bulbs, etc., is also being built.

At Kelley & Current's stock looks well, especially the roses and mums. Outdoor stock is in good shape.

Recent visitors included Frank Farney, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia; Julius Dilloff, of Lion & Co., New York; H. S. Crossfield, of Lawrenceburg, Ky.; Harry Jones, of the Jones-Russell Co., Cleveland, O.; S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia, and John Bubach, of the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh.

GERANIUMS

We have a splendid lot of good 3-inch pot plants ready for immediate shipment, in a fine assortment of colors for winter blooming, $3.00 per 100, $25.00 per 1000.

As noted in the trade papers a short time ago, there is a growing demand for a greater variety of colors. We have the best assortment in the country. Our standard list of doubles and semi-doubles contains 45 distinct and different varieties. Then we have a good list of standard single sorts, besides the newer kinds and novelties.

We are booking orders for next season's delivery at $2.00 per 100, $18.50 per 1000, for 2-inch stock of the standard kinds.

Everybody who grows Geraniums should have our catalogue. Ask for it.

Greenhouse Heating.

Subscribers are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

THE COAL MARKET.

Although it is generally agreed that the European war, if it continues as long as is expected, will sooner or later create a heavy demand for American coal and even open entirely new markets for it, the present effects of the war are the reverse of beneficial, on account of the disturbance or complete interruption of transportation. "Regardless of improved prospects," says a leading authority in the coal trade, "our export trade has been completely demoralized. At one eastern port 200,000 tons of coal have accumulated and other coal is in transit. Carrying capacity sufficient to take this coal is en route to these ports, but vessels are under instructions to tie up until greater safety of navigation is assured."

On the other hand, it is stated that South America "is sending inquiries for enough coal to tide it over the period of the European war. A volume of business estimated at more than 5,000,000 tons per year is definitely headed toward this country. Purchasers who have an option of buying either from the United States or from Australia and Japan are electing to buy in the United States. If they bought from Australia or Japan the coal would be subject to seizure, because both are allied with England. It is said that ships will start at once from Rio de Janeiro for the United States to carry back coal."

Speaking particularly of the florists' staple fuel, smokeless coal, a Chicago writer for a prominent coal journal says: "Interest in the war has centered in the smokeless coal field. West Virginia has a large percentage of foreign workers, most of whom have but recently arrived. If transportation conditions are restored to anything like normal, a considerable percentage of these workers will leave for Europe. There is grave doubt, however, that transportation facilities will be available to carry these men home. On the other hand, there has been a likelihood of the sale of smokeless coal to foreign navies. Some inquiries have been received in the east, but the absence of transportation prevented sales. This latter situation is naturally expected to be overcome before long. Meanwhile there is uncertainty in the western territory as to how much coal will be available. It might easily happen

GIBLIN Standard Greenhouse Boiler

How Much of Your Good Money Goes up in Smoke?

The Boiler that Lets the Florist Sleep

A WELL KNOWN FLORIST (name given on request) saved $445.00 per annum on 10,000 square feet of glass. This is a saving of 4½ cents per foot of glass. It is estimated there are 105,000,000 square feet of glass in use in greenhouses in the United States, and a similar loss on this glass total would equal the enormous sum of $4,725,000. How much of this loss do you contribute every year? The saving was actual and positive. What one man can do every man can do. Let us show you how to do it. When 30 below zero, in March last, 33 well pleased florists wired us their satisfaction with the working of our boilers. Let us send you copy of their telegrams.

WRITE FOR CATALOGUE AND SPECIAL OFFER

that a curtailment of production due to the departure of workers and an increased sale abroad would limit the supply of coal available to the west. Some foresighted retailers have bought a little additional coal. The situation has been enough to confirm the new circular price of $1.40.''

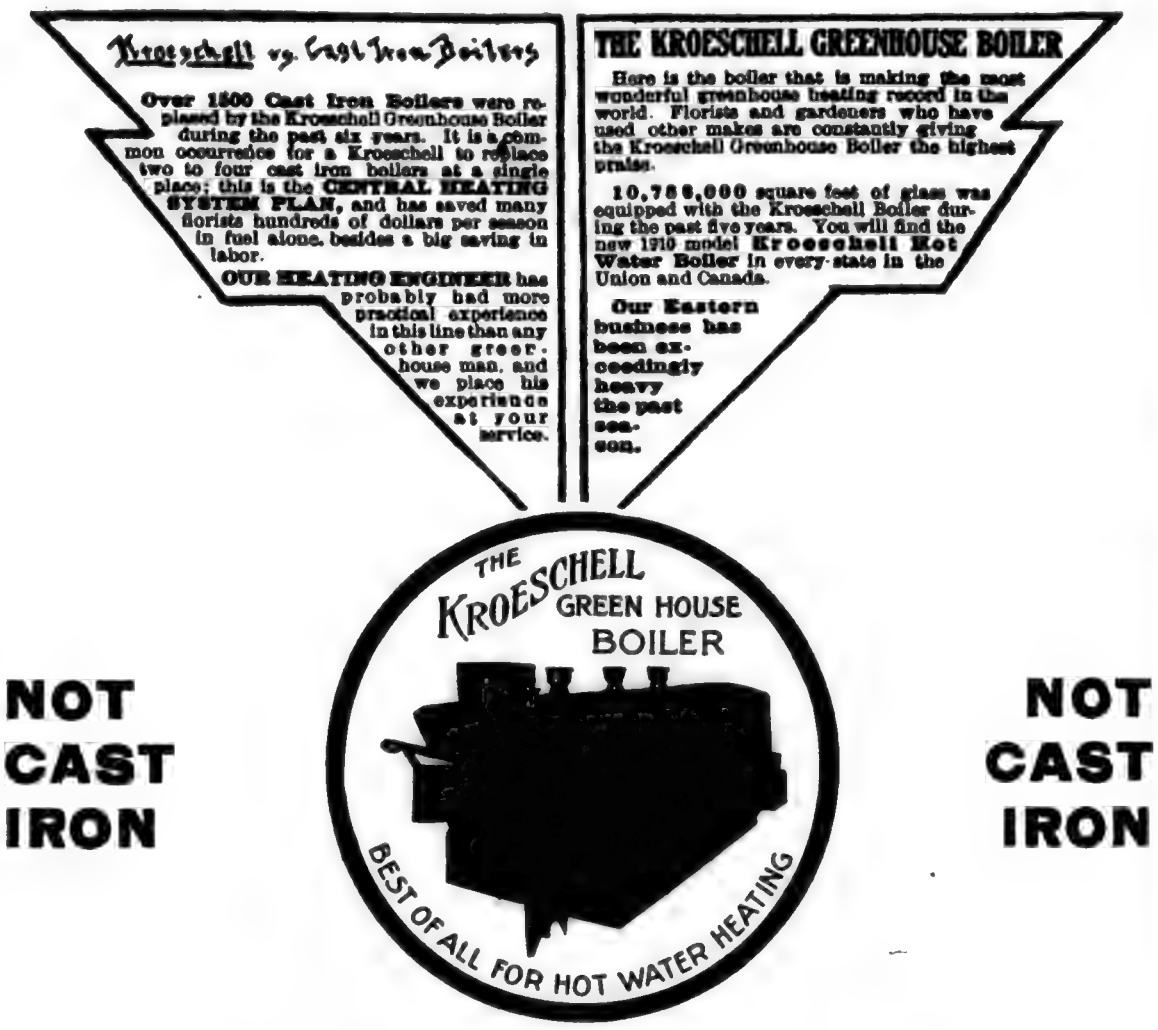
QUANTITY OF FUEL.

I have four houses, each 20x150, with 3-foot sides and glass gables. The houses are well built and tight. With a good hot water system, what should be the temperature of the water at the boiler to keep the houses at a temperature of 48 degrees, with the thermometer registering 20 degrees outside and no wind? Under such weather conditions, about how many pounds of coal should be required to keep the water at the desired temperature during the night, using good coal? About how many pounds of coal and what temperature of water would be necessary to secure the same results on a night when the outside temperature is 10 degrees above zero? I am located in Delaware. C. O.

It is not possible to give a definite answer to the questions asked, as it would depend upon various conditions, such as the size of the boiler, the number and size of the flow and return pipes and the character of the firing. Thus, with a large boiler with a few medium sized pipes, and an elevated expansion tank or a closed system, the water might be kept above 212 degrees by heavy firing, while with a small boiler and a large area of large pipes, the temperature might be 100 degrees or less, especially if the fires were not pushed.

If the radiation and boiler are properly adjusted to the size of the houses, the boiler should have a rating of about 5,000 square feet, and each house should be heated by three 2½-inch flow pipes and six 2-inch returns, except the one with glass in the side wall, which should have an additional return. Piped in this way, there should be no difficulty in keeping the water in the flow pipes above 180 degrees and in the returns above 140 degrees, with an open tank system.

To maintain a temperature of 48 degrees, with the thermometer registering 20 degrees above zero outside, would require from 500 to 800 pounds of coal, according to its quality, and with an outside temperature of 10 degrees about twenty per cent more would be needed. F. R.



HEAT FROM EXHAUST STEAM.

I should like to get some information in regard to heating greenhouses with exhaust steam. A new power plant has been built at a distance of two blocks from my greenhouses. Would heating in this way be satisfactory, and what would be the cost of piping the steam from the power plant to the houses? I mean the cost per lineal foot. The houses are now piped for hot water. They are located in Illinois. The range consists of two houses 25x60, a lean-to 10x44, an office and a boiler shed. I should like to have the piping large enough to care for double the present area of glass. Please state the size of the pipe and the depth at which it should be laid. G. F. P.

Do you want true heating values for your money? Many florists, to their sorrow, have made the mistake of buying cast iron boilers, which, because of their ratings, appeared to be cheaper than the Kroeschell boiler.

The extravagant ratings of cast iron boilers are misleading, and have been the cause of much disappointment and serious trouble to many growers. The fuel waste is enormous when cast iron boilers are used for commercial purposes, such as greenhouse heating.

Cast Iron Boilers Cause Freeze-out—Kroeschell Boilers No Worry

I bought a No 2 boiler in 1902. Takes care of 7000 sq ft. of glass—would take care of 2000 more. I have had a cast iron boiler, but it broke down twice in four years, always in the coldest weather. It broke down Dec. 29, 1901, and I lost all my stock in consequence. I have now two No. 2 and one No. 6 Kroeschell boilers, and do not worry about their breaking down.

Cast Iron Boiler Cracked in Two Years

We have a No. 4 Kroeschell Boiler. It takes care of 7000 sq. ft. of glass; it would take care of twice that amount.

I first had a new cast iron boiler which lasted two years, when it cracked to pieces. The second was a second-hand boiler.

I consider your boiler the best paying investment I ever made.

You can refer anyone to us.

Cast Iron Boilers Crack

I want to thank you for your promptness in shipping the boiler I ordered of you on January 13. I had a breakdown, one of a battery of two cast iron boilers cracked so it was impossible to use same, so I got you on the telephone at 8:30 a. m., January 13, and ordered one of your hot water boilers. Same was put in my boiler room in the afternoon of January 15, after which we built foundation and connected up. Since that time the boiler has taken care of same glass as the two cast iron boilers and does it easier and better in every way. Signed, ANDREW BATHER, Clinton, Iowa.

Do not make a mistake when selecting your new boiler; get a Kroeschell and you will never be disappointed.

Lifting the Lid From the Burnham

WE TALK a lot about the Burnham's long fire travel making a short coal bill, but to make plain exactly how the Burnham fire travels, has always been a bit difficult. Not that it's a complicated travel, but that it's hard to picture to another what the inside of a boiler is, even with the help of interior views.

So to show you exactly how it is, we finally concluded that the best way was to lift the lid right off like this. Now you can see that the hottest parts of the flames in the combustion chamber (or lower story) strike in the space (or fire channels) between each section, and are led each side to the side flue openings, and up into the upper story, or where the fire travel begins.

By starting at this upper story, outside division or flue, you see that the hot gases pass from the front to the back, and then front and back again, before reaching the smoke box. A three times back and forth travel.

Passing on their travels, between water filled passages or flues, it is plain to see that by the time the gases reach the chimney there can be very little heat left in them.

Now to go back to the lower story again, you can see that because the hottest flames, in coming in direct contact with the water bounded channels, between each section, and then drawn to the side openings into the upper story, that an equal amount of heat comes in contact with every one of the sections. It is this that makes each Burnham section equally efficient.

Mainly because of this and the long fire travel, the Burnham greenhouse boiler makes the shortest coal bill.

Order now and we will hold and ship the very day you send us word.

glass a 4-inch main should be used, and if it is possible and desirable to return the drip water a 2-inch pipe will be required for that purpose.

A depth of two feet will answer as the covering for the pipe, and even less than this might be used. The heating pipe should be covered with asbestos packing and should either be enclosed in a cement conduit or in sewer pipe. If the former is used it should be twelve inches wide and ten inches high inside if two pipes are used, or ten inches square for the flow pipe only. An 8-inch sewer pipe will be required for the feed pipe and a 6-inch one for the return. The wall of the concrete conduit should be about three inches thick and cement slabs two inches thick can be made for covering it. If near the surface, where teams will pass over them, the slabs should be somewhat thicker. The exact depth at which the pipes are laid will make little difference, but the grade should be such that the pipes will drain.

Just how much such a conduit will cost will depend upon the depth at which the pipe is laid, as well as the cost of pipe, cement, labor, etc., at the place where it is to be used. If the connecting system is properly put in, the results should be satisfactory and a great saving of labor, as well as a considerable saving in the cost of heating.

St. LOUIS.

The Market.

The wholesale market last week was in line to furnish almost anything the season afforded, but the demand was far from encouraging. The retailers report that if it were not for the funeral work, business would be at a standstill. So far, this summer has proved an exceptionally dull one. The great bulk of stock coming to this market is roses. These are of good quality, but the majority have short stems. Russell, Ward and Killarney Brilliant are among the best. Gladioli are holding full sway, but only the choice ones bring any kind of price. The common varieties have little sale. There is a large supply of asters of the ordinary grades in white, pink and purple and these hardly bring over $10 per thousand. The light pink stock of Enchantress shade sells best; white also sells well. Easter lilies also were abundant last week. These were sold at 8 cents in small lots and 6 cents in hundred lots. Single tuberose stalks are coming in, but are somewhat scarce on account of the dry weather.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association held an interesting meeting August 5 at the Eleven Mile House. President F. Vennemann presided over the meeting, which was well attended. A good deal of important business was transacted.

W. C. Smith, head of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., says that while business always is slow during the summer months, trade for July has been satisfactory.

A. P. Geranios, secretary of the St. Louis Retail Florists' Association, says they will start holding monthly meetings again next month and continue to do so for the fall and winter. Notices will be sent to the members as to time and place.

Albert Gumz, secretary of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., has returned from his vacation trip. On his return he found quite a number of improvements had been made in his absence. Frank Windler, head of the concern, will leave August 15 for an eastern trip.

Frank Fillmore has his place in fine shape. Two of his houses are planted with carnations. Mrs. Fillmore, who has charge of the cut flower department, celebrated her sixty-third birthday last week. Frank Fillmore, Jr., who is out west, is expected to return home this fall.

George Angermueller says that he has had good shipping trade in store and greenhouse supplies this summer. Fred Alves and Harry Schlechter, who have charge of the cut flower department, have finished the alterations and

The most economical type of boiler for Greenhouse heating. Highly recommended by well known florists

Johnston Heating Co.

131 E. 26th St., NEW YORK

On An Even Basis

With the installation of the Morehead System on your steam lines the condensation is returned to the boiler—placed above ground—pure and hot. Thus you dispense with the antiquated "boiler-in-a-pit" method of steam line drainage.

Morehead Back-to-Boiler SYSTEM

Furthermore you are assured of perfect circulation—constant, even temperature—a saving of time, fuel, labor and heat. These are things worth your careful consideration—they decide between heating economy or heating waste, good or poor stock.

Mr. H. W. Pierce says:

"Very satisfactory. Have saved me fully 25 per cent in fuel. Besides they save cost of handling ashes and require very little attention."

are ready for the opening of the fall season.

George Waldbart, Ludwig Zimmer and Adolph Brix, who usually make a summer trip to their old homes in Germany, are glad they did not make the trip this summer, on account of the war.

All the St. Louis county growers are busy preparing for the housing of carnations. Planting has been going on for the last week. Those who grow roses say their young stock is in excellent condition, giving promise of good crops in the fall and winter.

The seed houses have had dull business during the last two months, but are keeping the working forces busy in preparing for the fall season. August Hummert, vice-president of the St. Louis Seed Co., will go with the St. Louis party to the Boston convention.

At Fred Bruenig's place in Columbia, Ill., all hands are busy housing a big field of carnations. All outdoor stock has suffered greatly this summer from the drought, which still is with us.

The agitation in favor of plant window boxes, begun a few weeks ago by the St. Louis Republic, seems to have fallen through, as nothing as yet has come of it at any of the Olive street residences, where a start was to have been made. Postmaster Selph has placed a few boxes on the government building on Olive street.

Lechner Bros., representatives of Holland bulb growers, with offices and storerooms at Webster Groves, say they are well pleased with business in both local and shipping demand.

A. Jablonsky and John Steidle, both of Olivette, have all their young stock planted and it is in excellent condition. C. E. De Wever, of the same place, has many thousands of gladioli in his field ready to cut.

It is rumored that the famous Barr store will open a flower department this fall. Since their competitors, the Grand Leader and Vandervoort's, have had a successful season, they feel that they also can make a success in this line.

Henry Ostertag, head of the firm of Ostertag Bros., was defeated for the nomination as committeeman at the primary election last week. Mr. Ostertag says this will not keep him from hustling for the successful candidate from now on until the election in November.

Visitors last week were: James W. Heacock, of Joseph Heacock Co., Philadelphia; Frank Farney, representing M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, and Guy Reburn, of A. Henderson & Co., Chicago.

The Market.

There has been little change in market conditions here during the last week. Stock in general is inferior in quality, and this makes it hard at times to fill shipping orders satisfactorily. While some carnations are still being seen on the market, they are poor, and despite the fact that they are cleaning up, the prices realized are not so high as they should be. Asters are arriving in larger quantities and are selling well. The quality might be better than it is, and this fact retards the sale of this stock to some extent.

Roses are plentiful and the stock is extra fine. While short-stemmed stock predominates, some exceptionally fine long-stemmed stock is being cut. It is really surprising the hold Mrs. Chas. Russell roses have taken on the flower-buying public. The daily call for this stock is steadily increasing and a bright future is predicted for this rose.

Some fine lilies and valley are on the market at this time, but the sale is light. With the war going on in Europe, it is difficult to say what we will have in bulb stock and anything that is imported, next year.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Holton, who, accompanied by their daughter, Ruth, are sojourning in the east, left Montreal, Canada, Friday, August 7. They will spend about a week in Vermont, where Mr. Holton has a number of relatives and where he spent his boyhood days. From Vermont they will go to Boston to attend the convention of the S. A. F.

Mrs. Seaman, with Currie Bros. Co., left Saturday, August 8, to spend a week in Chicago. Later she will visit various lakes in Wisconsin, where she can get a well earned rest.

Wm. Currie entertained the Quoiters' Club at his place at Amery lake, Saturday, August 8. This lake is one of Wisconsin's beauty spots.

Miss Flora Schneider, with the Holton & Hunkel Co., left for a two weeks' vacation August 8.

Wm. Currie and his son, Roy, are leaving to attend the S. A. F. convention in Boston. They will visit Mr. Currie's daughter, who resides in Boston, and after the convention will visit places of interest in the east.

CROPS TO FOLLOW MUMS.

Could I follow chrysanthemums with sweet peas and sweet peas with tall snapdragons, to have the latter in bloom about June and July? What time should the snapdragon seed be sown? Would the sweet peas be out of the way by the time the snapdragons should be benched? F. L.

Yes, sweet peas make a good crop with which to follow chrysanthemums. If you grow main crop and late mums, these will not be out of the way before December and sweet peas sown at that time will not flower until spring. The flowering season would last until Memorial day. If you want tall snapdragons in June and July, you should have plants in 3-inch pots ready to set out by the middle of April. Seed for this purpose should be sown in February. Seedling snapdragons may vary a little more in color than those obtained from cuttings, but they possess greater vigor and are less subject to disease. If you had snapdragons ready to plant when your mums were cleared, they would commence to flower in March and would persist until July. Seed for this purpose should be sown by the end of August. C. W.

SCALE ON PANDANUS.

I have some fine pandanus, but I noticed scale collecting on them. What shall I do to get rid of it? J. S.

If there is only a small amount of scale, it might be removed by sponging, although pandanus leaves, especially those on P. utilis, are not pleasant to handle. If the scale is fairly well scattered, it will be best treated with Fir Tree Oil or Aphine, at the strength recommended for scale. This should be applied when the plants are all quite dry. Be sure to damp all parts of the leaves. After a few hours, go over the plants with a fine, misty spray nozzle attached to the hose and most of the scale will have been so loosened by the soap or oil spray that it will be washed off. Repeat this occasionally to keep the plants clean. C. W.

The Market.

Trade is quiet and has been for the last two weeks. There is practically no funeral work, which is about all that there is to do at this season of the year. Stock is in good supply, but there is no demand. Plenty of first-class Easter lilies are to be had at $8 to $10 per hundred. Fine asters are coming in at $2 to $3 per hundred. Gladioli are plentiful, America bringing $2 to $3 per hundred, and the ones off color are finding no sale. Some first-class short Beauties are to be had at $6 to $8 per hundred. Carnations are a thing of the past. Some first-class Shasta daisies are still available.

Various Notes.

Herman Junge and family and Carl Sonnenschmidt are motoring in northern Indiana. They expect to spend considerable time fishing at Dry lake. Mr. Junge is an enthusiastic fisherman, and he has invented a bait which, if successful on this trip, he expects to have patented.

Wm. Roepke is building a new greenhouse at his East Washington street place. He reports business satisfactory.

Wm. Smith, formerly with Ernest Rieman, has severed his connection with that firm.

Clarence Thomas, with Bertermann Bros. Co., has been spending his vacation in Iowa. He is one of our florist chicken fanciers, and while in Iowa gave considerable time to studying a method of raising full-grown fries in eight weeks.

Fred Kiel, with the Smith & Young Co., recently invested in a Maxwell automobile. He expects to tour the state in the near future during his vacation. H. L. W.

AUSTIN, TEX.

The Austin Florists' Club held its regular monthly meeting August 3 at the home of E. Frederichs, and after a discussion of native eustoma, a splendid pale blue flower of excellent keeping quality, now much in demand, when dry weather makes flowers scarce, it was decided to hold an autumn flower show, with premiums for amateurs only; the florists are to stage the show, but not to compete for prizes. The next meeting will be held at the home of Olaf Olsen. H. B. B.

Springfield, O.—Burglars paid a visit to the shop of Miss H. N. Van Meters, on South Spring street, August 3, but got only $3 in change from the cash drawer.

The Market.

Trade has been quiet here for the last two or three weeks, with stock of good quality scarce. Aside from funeral work, there is hardly anything doing. Roses are of rather poor quality, but will do in a pinch. Beauties are not plentiful, and the demand is light. Carnations are scarce. Those on the market are quite small, and the demand is rather light on account of the low quality. Asters are a little more plentiful and help out nicely instead of carnations, but the supply here is going to be light. Gladioli have been quite plentiful and the demand has been good. Some really good valley is coming in, but the demand is light on them. The supply of lilies is about equal to the demand, which is not heavy.

The demand for good potted ferns keeps up and it is hard to get any ferns in this market. There have been a few shipped in that will relieve the situation somewhat.

Various Notes.

The Munk Floral Co. reports business slow, with good stock scarce. They are handling a great many gladioli at the present time.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. reports the new house planted to roses looking fine and all the carnations housed and taking hold nicely. There is a good deal of uneasiness felt here in regard to the bulb shipments. Few have been reported in, and it looks now as if there would be little chance of stock coming from across the water. J. M.

Dallas Tex.—The Lang Floral & Nursery Co. deeded to the city August 3 six lots fronting on Bryan street, to be added to the Exall park tract. The price was $17,500.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—R. Yonker has completed the erection of his 1914 iron frame addition to his range and is now installing another No. 15 Kroeschell boiler and threaded tube piping system. Nicholas Longstreet, another florist, is also busy installing a No. 6 Kroeschell boiler.

About That Z-Bar Eave Plate

This Z-Bar Plate is our Angle Iron Eave Plate combined with an angle drip gutter.

The drip gutter is riveted to the eave plate, and the whole thing galvanized.

This Z-Bar plate can be erected just as quickly as if there were no drip gutter attached.

Forming a direct part of the eave, the way it does, there is no erection bother such as is the case with separate drip gutters hung below the plate.

Another important thing is its freedom from water pockets, which result in spill-overs.

The drip lead-off pipes really do lead off the drip.

We patented this plate several years ago, but the growers did not begin adopting it extensively until within the last three years.

Now, we seldom sell a house without it.

You will find it fully illustrated and described in both our Supply Book and Commercial Greenhouse Catalogue. We want you to have them both.

Strong Display and Enthusiastic Attendance mark Thirtieth Annual Convention of National Organization, at Boston this week

THE Society of American Florists was 30 years old this week, and it returned to Boston to celebrate the anniversary, after an absence of a quarter of a century. Under the circumstances it was natural that something out of the ordinary should be expected and up to a couple of weeks ago it was confidently predicted that the Boston convention of 1914 not only would set a new record for all phases of the society's activity, but would carry the banner so high that it would take years to equal the showing made here. The members of the Boston Gardeners' and Florists' Club and the local trade committees, under the leadership of Vice-president Patrick Welch, set out with this idea in view and it is not due to any neglect of opportunity or sparing of effort that the result has fallen in some measure short of the high ideals they had before them. Unforeseen obstacles arose and the convention has been held at a difficult time. The conditions were unfavorable, but such as no one could influence.

The Attendance.

The war in Europe no doubt cut down the attendance just as it did the trades' display. Boston is the business center of one of the richest and most populous sections of the country. Practically all the New England trade attended, and there were splendid delegations from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, while Pittsburgh and vicinity sent a representation of about thirty, counting the ladies, but from farther west the attendance was limited. It has been many years since the territory west of Buffalo and Pittsburgh has been so slimly represented at an eastern convention. Boston has many trade establishments wonderfully well worth a visit and the city is full of points of historical interest, a combination usually effective in bringing out a large attendance of both men and women from the corn belt and the grain states. That they did not respond in the usual number this year can be due only to the widespread general unrest resulting from too much poster type on the front pages of the daily newspapers; the invitation to Boston certainly lacked nothing in whole-souled heartiness and never has a more attractive program of entertainment features been provided. That this was appreciated through New England was shown by the large attendance from that section, to which is due the really great success of the convention.

Patrick Welch.
(President-elect of the Society of American Florists.)

The Garden.

Instead of being daunted by the splendid success of the outdoor display at Minneapolis last year, the Boston gentlemen were encouraged by it—they thought they could go it one better. The conditions proved not so good at Boston. At Minneapolis the garden was right next door to the hall; at Boston it could be located no nearer than several blocks away. It was to have been expected that after the splendid advertising obtained at Minneapolis the trade exhibitors would respond much more readily at Boston, where the possibilities of reaching the public are greater in proportion as the population is greater; this proved not to be the case, for the exhibitors at a distance did not seem to appreciate the opportunity; they did not come in so strongly or so numerously as was expected. Then, too, the task was a big Practically all the New England trade attended, and there were splendid delegations from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, while Pittsburgh and vicinity sent a representation of not thirty, counting the ladies, but no farther west attendance was noted. It has been many years since the territory west of Buffalo and Pittsburgh has been so slimly represented at an eastern convention. Boston has many trade establishments wonderfully well worth a visit and the city is full of points of historical interest, a combination usually effective in bringing out a large attendance of both men and women from the corn belt and the grain states. That they did not respond in the usual number this year can be due only to the widespread general unrest resulting from too much poster type on the front pages of the daily newspapers; the invitation to Boston certainly lacked nothing in whole-souled heartiness and never has a more attractive program of entertainment features been provided. That this was appreciated through New England was shown by the large attendance from that section, to which is due the really great success of the convention.

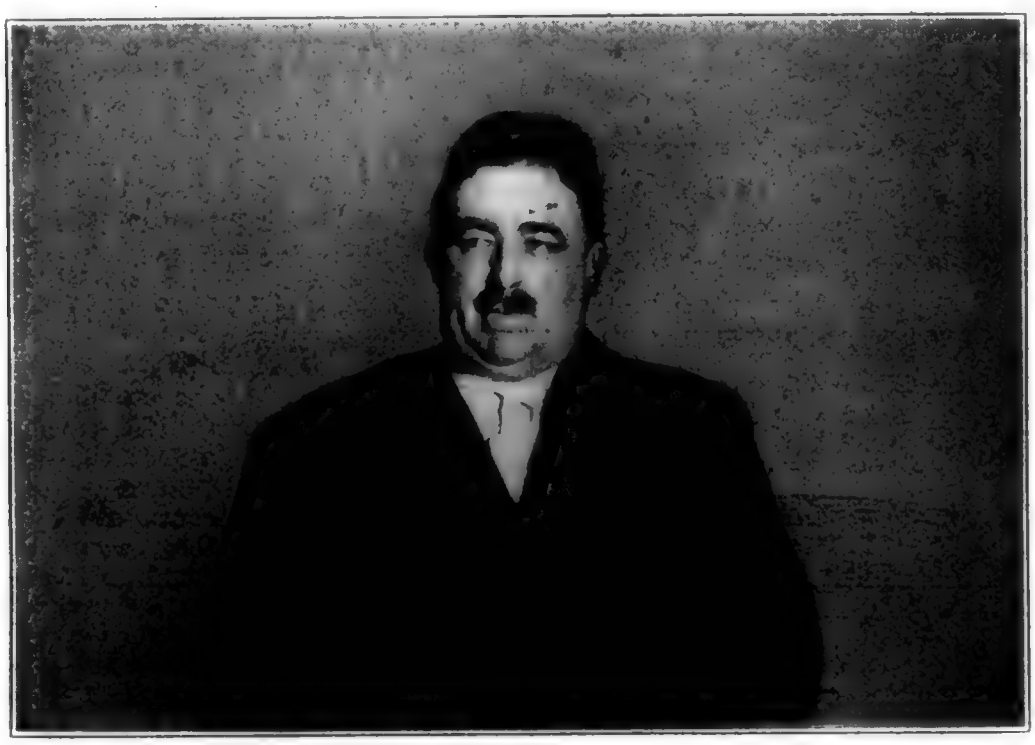
Patrick Welch.
(President-elect of the Society of American Florists.)



The Garden.

Instead of being daunted by the splendid success of the outdoor display at Minneapolis last year, the Boston gentlemen were encouraged by it—they thought they could go it one better. The conditions proved not so good at Boston. At Minneapolis the garden was right next door to the hall; at Boston it could be located no nearer than several blocks away. It was to have been expected that after the splendid advertising obtained at Minneapolis the trade exhibitors would respond much more readily at Boston, where the possibilities of reaching the public are greater in proportion as the population is greater; this proved not to be the case, for the exhibitors at a distance did not seem to appreciate the opportunity; they did not come in so strongly or so numerously as was expected. Then, too, the task was a big one, for the ground was almost a marsh in the spring and had to be filled in, the season was late in opening, delaying planting, and growth has been slow. It is the consensus of opinion that, considering the handicaps imposed on them by factors beyond control, the Boston convention garden is a wonderful accomplishment and deserving of the highest praise. It cost an immense amount of effort and a large sum of money beyond what the exhibitors paid for the care of their stock, far more than the average visitor realized, and, should the balance of the season prove favorable, it will make a showing that will delight the people of Boston and in a measure repay the park department and the Boston florists for the months of work they have lavished on it.

The Opening.

The convention really opened in the garden this year, instead of indoors. There is an arbor with a platform in the center of the garden and here the visitors assembled at 11 a. m., August 18, to listen to the welcome and formal dedication of the garden by Mayor Curley, the young chief executive, whose aid had made the garden possible. The Mayor was introduced by James B. Shea and delivered a characteristic address, telling how pleased Boston is to have the convention and telling of the many things of interest within the visitors' range of vision as they stood in the garden. He was followed by Park Superintendent Dillon, who spoke for the horticultural interests of the city and who said the people of Boston would long remember the convention because of the beautiful new garden it had been the means of creating. President Theodore Wirth closed with a few words of thanks on behalf of the society, saying that when the first convention garden was planned at Minneapolis the trade there realized that something of large possibilities was being started, but that to him it was a surprise to find that the idea had grown so amazingly in the short span of a single year.

Daniel MacRorie.

(Vice-president-elect of the Society of American Florists.)

The Routine Business.

The real opening of the convention occurred at 2 p. m., the Mayor having been a guest at a luncheon given by the Boston convention committee. P. Welch called the society to order in Paul Revere hall and, after a few words of welcome as from the Boston florists, again introduced the city executive, who made an even better speech of welcome than he had done at the opening of the garden in the morning. The Mayor is proud of Boston and does not care who knows it. The Mayor was responded to by Frank R. Pierson, who expressed the visitors' appreciation of the cordiality with which the convention has been received in Boston. Mr. Welch then introduced President Wirth, who took the chair and read the annual address, which is printed in full on another page of this issue. On motion it was referred to a committee consisting of George Asmus, J. J. Hess, F. R. Pierson, A. Farenwald and C. E. Critchell, to report on the recommendations.

For some reason the society finds it necessary to dispose of its driest business at the opening session, when there invariably is the best crowd. The minutes of the board of directors and the reports of the secretary and treasurer are extremely important matters and should be printed, but they are too full of figures and detailed matter to be either interesting or comprehensible when read off as rapidly as possible and in a hot hall. These lengthy matters being disposed of, W. F. Gude presented reports as Washington representative, as chairman of the committee on tariff and legislation, as chairman on rose garden at the capital, and as chairman of the Smith memorial fund. For the latter he reported that $1,400 has been paid in to the committee and over $1,000 additional pledged.

R. C. Kerr, who came as the representative of the Texas State Florists' Association, read a paper telling of the objects of that organization and concluding with the statement that Texas hopes soon to entertain the S. A. F.

W. J. Stewart read a letter from Ex-president John N. May, who is now only able to be about on crutches after an illness of six months, and on motion of E. G. Hill the secretary was instructed to send a message of good cheer.

Irwin Bertermann reported the accidental drowning, August 16, of Mrs. E. A. Fetters, of Detroit, wife of a member, and herself a member of the Ladies' S. A. F. Flowers were ordered sent to the funeral in the name of the society.

Mr. Bertermann also brought out that the F. T. D. has already been the means of adding eighty-four new members to the S. A. F.

San Francisco Next.

When the time arrived for selecting the next meeting place, Dan MacRorie, on behalf of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, the exposition management and the trade, and for himself personally, renewed the invitation to meet in San Francisco in 1915. S. A. Anderson, speaking for the Florists' Club of his city, invited the society to meet in Buffalo. As was to have been expected, this resulted in a warm interchange of ideas on the part of the champions of the two places. For San Francisco, H. Plath, B. Hammond, M. C. Ebel and E. G. Hill spoke strongly. W. F. Kasting, W. A. Manda, Charles Lenker and George Asmus opposed taking the society so far west as San Francisco, favoring Buffalo. It was necessary to limit debate, as the hour was growing late. It was decided on motion to have the polls open for two hours, from 7 to 9, in the secretary's office instead of at the president's reception, as announced on the program. J. G. Esler was named as chairman of a board of judges and the ballot taken, the privilege of voting being accorded only to those who had paid 1914 dues. The count stood:

Buffalo	127
San Francisco	128
Cleveland	1

The vote was announced at the morning session August 19, and was received with applause, a motion to make it unanimous being carried with a cheer. A telegram was read, announcing the acquisition of ten new members in Oregon this week.

National Flower Show.

George Asmus, chairman of the national flower show committee, reported progress on the exhibition to be given in Philadelphia in the spring of 1916. He stated that all preliminary matters have developed satisfactorily and that the society may look forward with confidence to a large and successful exhibition, the interest being good both locally and nationally. It is too early, he said, to know if the conditions in Europe will be a factor.

Nomination of Officers.

When President Wirth asked for nominations of candidates for next year's officers, W. F. Kasting named Patrick Welch, of Boston, for president, seconded by Robert Craig and P. O'Mara. Frank H. Traendly proposed the name of Charles H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., seconded by E. G. Hill and M. C. Ebel. Daniel MacRorie, of San Francisco, was named as the only candidate for vice-president, and Secretary John Young and Treasurer William F. Kasting were nominated to succeed themselves, without contest.

The speeches carried the usual eulogies. Polls were open for two hours Thursday morning for the election.

The proposition of affiliation was the special order of business for the morning session of August 19. At the Minneapolis convention a plan was proposed and recommended to the board of directors. It was based on the theory of permitting members of local clubs to join in a body on the payment of a reduced rate of annual dues. This the directors, after voluminous correspondence and wide discussion, decided to be not feasible. A substitute plan therefore was worked out and presented in the program, which appeared in The Review early in July. It proposed the amendment of paragraph (b) of section 2 of article II, to accomplish the following results:

1. That clubs, societies or kindred organizations of professional florists, gardeners and horticulturists, having a paid-up membership of 100 or more members in the S. A. F., shall be entitled to one representative on the board of directors of the S. A. F.
2. Such representative shall be the president of such organization and must be a member of the S. A. F.
3. Any elective officer or appointed director of the S. A. F. shall not be eligible as a representative of such organization.
4. When the president of any such organization is already a director, the vice-president shall be eligible for the office.
5. Any organization applying for representation shall submit to the secretary of the S. A. F. a complete list of its membership. It shall be the secretary's duty to confirm same and submit it to the president for final confirmation. Such a list shall be in the hands of the secretary by December 1 of each year. Announcement of such director shall be made by the president-elect on January 1 of each year.

This subproposition, differing radically from the one discussed last winter by so many local florists' clubs, seemed to have had little consideration, as nearly an hour was spent in questioning George Asmus and W. F. Kasting, members of the directors' committee that prepared the plan. The opposition that was apparent at the opening of the debate faded away as the directors made clear the meaning of the proposition, with the result that when Thomas Roland moved that it be the sense of the meeting that the amendments should be concurred in, the motion was carried almost unanimously. The amendments themselves were on the ballot for the annual election, in accordance with the rules.

Governor Walsh Speaks.

During the morning session, August 19, Patrick Welch introduced Governor Walsh, who made a tremendous hit with a patriotic speech that got the members on their feet cheering the governor's sentiments. So many wanted to shake hands that the executive gave an impromptu reception, the visitors being introduced by W. J. Kennedy, president of the Boston Gardeners' and Florists' Club. Robert Craig spoke in response to the governor.

For the Private Gardener.

The afternoon session of August 19 was held in conjunction with the meeting of the National Gardeners' Association, the special order of business being a paper by Arthur E. Thatcher, on "What Should the S. A. F. Do for the Private Gardener?" Mr. Thatcher was called away just before the meeting opened, so that the paper was read by Secretary Young. It was followed by a discussion, which also included a general consideration of the training of gardeners to meet the steadily increasing demand for first-rate young men.

The Closing Session.

The miscellaneous business was cleaned up at the closing session, on the afternoon of August 20, when the results of the elections were announced. The reports of several committees were received and a paper on "Adaptation of Plants to Soil" was read by Prof. George S. Stone, of Amherst, Mass.

The friendly contest between the supporters of the two popular candidates for the presidency resulted in the largest vote in the history of the Society of American Florists. The result was: For president, C. H. Totty, 160; P. Welch, 240. All other officers were elected unanimously and the affiliation amendments were carried.

LADIES' BOWLING.

Two games were rolled in the annual tournament of the lady bowlers August 19, the prizes being won in the following order: Mrs. F. C. Bauer, Mrs. G C. Shaffer, Mrs. G. W. Smith, Mrs. Golsner, Mrs. Traendly, Mrs. J. Manda, Miss Matilda Meinhardt, Mrs. Cook and Mrs. C. E. Critchell. Mrs. Bauer had the high game, Mrs. Golsner the most strikes and Mrs. Smith the most spares.

In the candlepin contest the prizes were won in the following order: Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Shaffer, Miss B. Meinhardt, Miss L. Palmer and Mrs. George Asmus.

DIRECTORS' MEETING.

At a meeting of the board of directors, August 20, the matter of the action to be taken in the cases of the exhibitors who had contracted for space in the trades' display and then found themselves unable to use it was considered. It was decided to retain the twenty-five per cent payment made at the time of applying for space and to remit the balance due.

In the cases of individual exhibitors, this meant a remission of as much as $300, and to the society it meant the loss of over $1,000 in revenue. The directors also decided that it is undesirable to take the annual Lenten meeting of the board to San Francisco and recommended that the president and secretary only make the trip, the meeting of the full board to be held at Chicago or some other central city.

REPORT OF THE JUDGES.

At S. A. F. conventions the judges do not pass on the trades' display as a whole, but only on such novelties as have been brought to their attention by the exhibitors in writing.

On plants and cut flowers the judges were M. A. Patten, J. R. Fotheringham and William Sim. They awarded a certificate of merit to the Robert Craig Co. for Nephrolepis John Wanamaker, high commendation to Carl Hagenburger for Nephrolepis Mentorii, and honorable mention to Arthur Cowee for demonstration of the uses of gladioli.

O. J. Olson, W. F. Gude and G. E. M. Stumpp, judges of florists' supplies, awarded high commendation to Schloss Bros. for their exhibit as a whole and for beaded corsage novelties, rainbow effect chiffon and fancy ribbon novelties, also honorable mention for gold and silver ribbon.

The judges of the garden exhibits were Robert Cameron, John N. Champion, John F. Huss and G. X. Amrhyn. Their awards were as follows:

Arthur Cowee, honorable mention for Gladiolus Peace.

John Lewis Childs, certificate of merit for display of gladioli.

Vaughan's Seed Store, certificate of merit for Canna Firebird.

Peter Henderson & Co., honorable mention for Geranium General Funston and Alternanthera Jewel.

F. W. Fletcher & Co., certificate of merit for bed of Antirrhinum Nelrose.

Eastern Nurseries, certificate of merit for display of evergreens.

Farquhar & Co., silver medal for general display; certificates of merit for Canna Firebird, Lilium Myriophyllum and Lilium Sargentiæ.

Thomas F. Galvin, Inc., certificate of merit for formal bed.

William Tricker, certificate of merit for display of aquatics.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., silver medal for display of aquatics.

W. A. Manda, silver medal for general display. Salvia Greggii was highly recommended as a bedding and greenhouse plant and Cuphea Llavea as a bedding plant.

F. E. Palmer, honorable mention for bed of petunias and verbenas.

Carter's Tested Seeds, certificate of merit for bedding and grass.

R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., honorable mention for beds of geraniums.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., silver medal for general display of bedding plants.

Conard & Jones Co., silver medal for general display of cannas, with special mention of Mr. Wintzer's newer varieties.

Mount Desert Nurseries, honorable mention for hardy perennials and conifers.

William Sim, certificate of merit for Antirrhinum Pride of Cliftondale.

Formal Bed of Thos. F. Galvin, Inc., in the Convention Garden at Boston.

W. W. Edgar Co., certificate of merit for bed of heliotrope carpeted with vinca.

Robert Craig Co., silver medal for beds of crotons.

Arthur T. Boddington, silver medal for bed of Begonia Gloire de Chatelaine.

A. H. Hews & Co., honorable mention for garden pottery.

Boston parks system, a special diploma and commendation to J. B. Shea.

PRESIDENT'S RECEPTION.

The society never before has had so fine an indoor setting for the annual function at which the members greet the president, his cabinet and their ladies. The ballroom of the Copley Plaza is one of the newest and most up-to-date and was well filled in spite of the drizzling rain that no doubt kept many away. It seems to rain every day in Boston this year. In the receiving line were J. J. Hess and Mrs. Hess, of Omaha; J. E. Evans and Mrs. Evans, of Richmond, Ind.; President Wirth and Mrs. Wirth, of Minneapolis; Vice- president Welch and Mrs. Welch, of Boston; W. J. Stewart and Mrs. Stewart, of Boston; R. Vincent, Jr., and Mrs. Vincent, of White Marsh, Md., Frank R. Pierson and M. H. Norton. After the long line of members and ladies had wound its way past the receiving party, dancing followed and refreshments were served. It was a late hour before the affair came to a close.

LUNCH TO VISITORS.

A lunch was tendered to some of the prominent local workers, visitors and members of the press at the Parker House, Tuesday afternoon. About sixty gentlemen were present. J. J. Cassidy, who recently took over Doyle's Beacon street store, acted as toastmaster, and several gentlemen made short addresses. Mayor Curley made an eloquent speech. He pleased his hearers when he announced that since the opening of the convention garden he had been offered $50,000 by a prominent local lady to assist in its development, and he assured his hearers that the garden would soon be made one of the great beauty spots of Boston's park system.

Other speakers included Commissioner of Parks John H. Dillon, W. F. Kasting, Judge C. A. Holt, Commissioner Charles Gibson, Theodore Wirth, and others.

AT HORTICULTURAL HALL.

In honor of the visit of the S. A. F., the prize and exhibition committee of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society got up, at three days' notice, a fine exhibition which filled Horticultural hall, although no prizes or even honorary awards were made.

William Sim staged a magnificent lot of gladioli, filling 175 large vases, which filled half the lecture hall. He had 5,000 spikes in all. His best sorts were: America, Canary Bird, Mrs. King, Europa, Independence, Kunderdi Glory, Halley, Panama, Hollandia, Scribe, Cynosure, Baron Hulot, Sunburst, Dazzler, Aline, Mayor, Niagara and Wild Rose.

B. Hammond Tracy staged a large and imposing bank of gladioli well arranged. C. W. Brown, of Ashland, had a good collection of named varieties. W. N. Craig showed twenty-five varieties of Wilhelm Pfitzer's newer introductions; some of the finest were Schwaben, Charlotte Pfitzer and Aprikose. John Lewis Childs had a fine collection of gladioli. The Boston Cut Flower Co. had a fine decoration of palms and large baskets of gladioli. H. R. Comley had a similar display. William Nicholson showed a fine lot of buddleias, and Mrs. E. M. Gill, in addition to a collection of dahlias, had some fine dipladenias and allamandas. E. F. Dwyer & Sons had a large and representative collection of dahlias. M. Sullivan, gardener to W. Whitman, had two large tables of gladioli, annuals and perennials

Mount Desert Nurseries had a splendid bank of aconitums. The Eastern Nurseries and T. C. Thurlow's Sons had imposing collections of hardy perennials, also tables of phloxes; F. J. Rea also had a large collection of the latter. R. & J. Farquhar & Co. showed hardy perennials in quantity; also Lilium myriophyllum, Sargentiæ and Henryi, a group of fancy caladiums and a large table of exhibition quality vegetables.

The W. W. Edgar Co. had a fine circular group of palms and other foliage plants, gladioli, gloxinias, etc. Jackson Dawson had a collection of Calluna vulgaris, or Scotch heather, in variety. Mrs. Frank Merriam had large specimen zonale geraniums. This exhibition attracted a large attendance, both of convention members and the general public.

REPORT OF TARIFF COMMITTEE.

[The following is the report of Wm. F. Gude, chairman of the tariff and legislative committee, presented at the Boston convention, August 19, 1914.]

With the one exception of a reference for the adjustment of a certain classification of freight rates, the committee has had nothing before it.

In this case, after a visit to the Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington, the matter was transferred to New York. There the commission heard R. M. Ward, of our committee, and then took the matter under advisement.

In the event the classification is reduced, it will make considerable difference in the service rendered, as the goods will not go forward as promptly as first-class freight.

Paducah, Ky.—John Van Aart, formerly of Newtown, Pa., who bought the entire plant of C. L. Brunson & Co. here about two years ago, has lately purchased the business of Robt. E. Rudolph, of Paducah. Mr. Van Aart will run both ranges in connection with his store. All his stock is in fine condition and he looks for a good fall trade.

THE OUTDOOR EXHIBITS

THE part of the Fenway used for the convention garden is charmingly located as regards environment. The setting of trees and majestic buildings, which rise on two sides of the garden, is splendid. The other sides, while well screened with trees, present a more secluded appearance. The chain of ponds and lagoons, running irregularly the whole length of the garden, crossed at either end by picturesque stone bridges, adds to the beauty of the scene. Possibly the only criticism is that the land occupied by the garden is somewhat monotonously flat, not a solitary tree breaking up the entire 10-acre stretch.

The making of a convention garden is no easy task. Had the S. A. F. to provide the necessary funds for making one, its treasury would be empty. The city of Boston spent about $20,000 for loam and manure for the garden. The S. A. F. guaranteed $1,500 for the garden's upkeep. Receipts from those who planted beds will aggregate about $1,000 over this amount, but the $1,500 would not begin to pay for the labor of preparing, planting and caring for the various exhibits.

Weather Conditions a Hindrance.

Owing to a change of administration, necessary funds for pushing on the garden work were much delayed. Then a late and wet spring placed additional handicaps, as did the lukewarmness of many of the large exhibitors. It was the middle of May before any planting could be done, but, in spite of all drawbacks, the garden is a reality and one of which the society may well be proud. The lack of sufficient grass is one of the weak features; a few more humid days would have remedied this defect. The growth on nymphæas, cannas and other heat-loving subjects was somewhat disappointing, owing to the low temperatures prevailing in Boston practically all summer.

Great praise is due James B. Shea, superintendent of parks and of the convention garden, for his achievements under adverse conditions. Kenneth Finlayson planted most of the beds, in a first-class manner, and John F. Murphy did a great deal of really hard work. J. K. M. L. Farquhar and all others connected with the garden deserve words of commendation.

Coming to the individual exhibitors, we find some names missing, but it is encouraging to note that those who are not represented are feeling now they made a big blunder in underestimating the importance of the Boston garden.

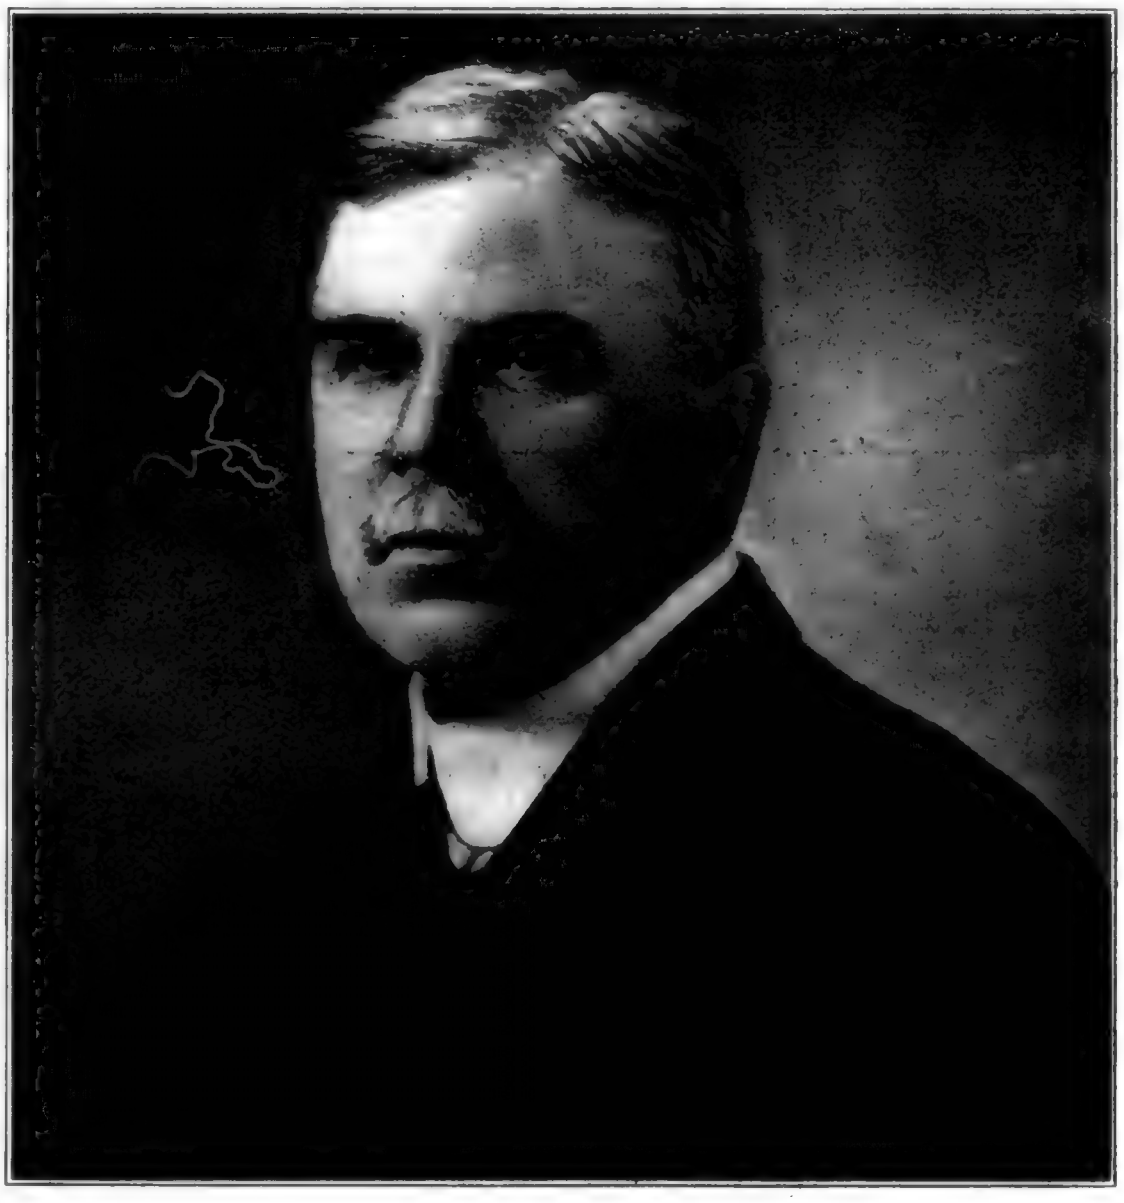
Strong Canna Displays.

Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa., had a fine showing of cannas, filling half a dozen large beds. Noteworthy among them were: Wyoming, Beacon, a splendid scarlet; Miss Kate Deemer, a fine yellow; Olympic; Mrs. W. F. Conard, striking; Meteor, scarlet; Mr. Saunders; Rosea Gigantea, the best rose variety in the garden; Panama, a splendid bedder, and Wintzer's Colossal, a robust grower with mammoth light red flowers. This exhibit was an extremely imposing one.

A. T. Boddington, New York, had a splendid bed of Hyacinthus (Galtonia) candicans, a large square bed of Gladiolus America, which will be at its best a week after the convention, and a superb bed of Canna Panama. A bed of Germania montbretia was planted, but the bulbs rotted, owing to the wet condition of the ground early in the season.

A. N. Pierson's Large Exhibit.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., was a large exhibitor. In one bed Paul Crampel geranium showed itself to be a fine single scarlet bedder. There were two circular beds of dwarf polyantha roses, such as Triomphe d'Orleans, Marie Pavie, white, and Ellen Poulson. One large bed contained the best grown lot of herbaceous perennials seen in the garden, including stokesias, delphiniums, astilbes and many other varieties. One large bed had acalyphas in the center, followed by Abutilon Savitzii, and bordered with Alternanthera Jewel.



Knight & Struck Co., New York, had a nicely flowered bed of Buddleia variabilis grandiflora, and another containing the firm's Heatherhome strain of midsummer cosmos, which had been in flower since early in June, with flowers equaling those of Lady Lenox in size.

W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., was a large exhibitor, showing a wide variety of stock. He had several dahlia beds not much in flower, each edged with Festuca glauca. Two beds were devoted to boxes in a variety of shapes and types. Choice conifers filled another bed. In another I noted Begonia Christmas Red, and a border of Antheriicum Mandaianum. Roses, Cuphea platycentra, hibiscus, Plumbago Capensis, golden privet and many other plants were noted in the dozen or more beds planted by Mr. Manda.

The Mount Desert Nurseries, Bar Harbor, Me., showed a large bed of coniferous evergreens and several beds of hardy herbaceous perennials, among which Astilbe Davidii, Senecio clivorum and aconitums were the most noteworthy.

Davenport Shows Euonymus.

A. M. Davenport, Watertown, Mass., filled two beds with green and variegated shrubby evergreen euonymus, in which he specializes. He also had a nice bed of the large and handsome Coleus Brilliancy.

F. E. Palmer, Brookline, Mass., filled a bed eighty-five feet in length with the rich dark blue Petunia Veilchenblau, bordered with Marigold Legion of Honor, with an edging of white verbena, a charming combination.

Eastern Nurseries, Holliston, Mass., filled a large, irregular bed with taxus and other evergreens, with a groundwork of Pachysandra terminalis. They also had a perennial bed filled with pink and white phloxes, with Viola cornuta as a groundwork.

William Tricker, Arlington, N. J., had the largest collection of aquatics in the garden. Unfortunately, owing to the coldness of the water, the nymphæas had made but little growth. He had a nice bed of pennisetums; P. macroatrum in the center, followed by P. Japonicum, then P. Ruppellianum, and a border of bulbosum. Another bed, of Perry's variety of Lythrum roseum, was good, with a border of Vinca minor aurea.

A. F. Coolidge, Cambridge, Mass., filled a large bed with geraniums of the best commercial varieties, all well flowered.

Edward MacMulkin, Boston, showed a large bed with a central block of Physostegia Virginiana, dotted with Dracæna australis. Lobelias, geraniums, begonias and other plants filled the rest of the bed.

Dreer's Aquatics.

H. A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, had a large collection of nymphæas and other aquatics. The water lilies showed the lack of warm weather in their growth. Some of the best sorts noted were: N. Bissetti, Gladstoniana, Aurora, odorata rosea, rubra rosea, odorata sulphurea, Marliacea candida, Marliacea rosea, Mrs. C. W. Ward, Devoniensis, Frank Trelease, Zanzibariensis, O'Marana, Wm. Stone, pulcherrima and dentata.

R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., White Marsh, Md., had a circular bed with a central mass of the brilliant double scarlet geranium, Maryland, with a double row of Scarlet Bedder, and a border of the salmon-colored Miss Lawrence.

Carter's Tested Seeds, Inc., Boston, had a large, circular raised bed of the concern's special lawn seed. This lawn, seeded June 11 and first mowed June 25, was as nearly perfect as could be; entirely clear of weeds. The bed was marked off with lines of achyranthes to represent a clock, the hour figures being done in alternantheras. A figure of Mercury in bronze stood in the center of the bed. The same firm had in another part of the garden a pleasing bed of white speciosum lilies, tuberous and fibrous-rooted begonias, and Alternanthera brilliantissima.

Peter Henderson & Co., New York, had a circular bed planted with the new deep salmon geranium, General Funston, a pleasing color, and bordered with Alternanthera Jewel.

F. W. Fletcher & Co., Auburndale, Mass., had a large bed of Antirrhinum Nelrose, dwarf in habit outdoors and floriferous.

Vaughan's Seed Store, New York and Chicago, had a bed of the brilliant scarlet canna, Firebird.

Axel Magnuson, Manchester, Mass., showed a bed of a new maroon-colored salvia, as yet but little open. The bed was bordered with double white petunias.

Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y., had a bed of Gladiolus Peace not yet in flower.

H. R. Comley, Boston, had a small circular bed of cosmos, Marguerite Mrs. Sander, and coleus.

S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., filled a bed with the bright pink begonia, Gloire de Chatelaine, easily the finest bedding begonia seen in the garden.

Craig's Crotons.

Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia, had a large bed of the firm's newer and choice crotons, with a groundwork of freshly seeded lawn, which made them show up their brilliant colors well. These were not planted until August 14.

John Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, N. Y., contributed a large bed of choice gladioli, which were all well in flower. Some of the best varieties were: Meyerfurst, Winsome, Gleam, Rose Spray, Sulphur King, Scribe, Snow King, Attraction, Charmer, Radiance, Sunburst, Lydia and various primulinus hybrids.

E. E. Stewart, Brooklyn, Mich., showed a nice bed of gladioli, in eighteen varieties. These include some new and choice kinds.

William Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., filled a circular bed with pink antirrhinum, bordered with alternanthera.

W. W. Edgar Co., Waverley, Mass., had a splendid bed of standard and dwarf heliotropes, bordered with variegated vinca. The bed was dotted with white speciosum lilies; the latter were added August 15.

B. Hammond Tracy, Wenham, Mass., showed a large bed of gladioli, with a groundwork of sweet alyssum. None of the gladioli were open for the convention.

Galvin Shows Shield.

Thomas F. Galvin, Inc., Boston and New York, planted a fine carpet bed, on which the lettering stood up boldly. The wording was "Thomas F. Galvin, Inc., 1847-1914, Boston and New York." Echeverias, alternantheras and blue lobelias were chiefly used.

Bidwell & Fobes, Kinsman, O., had a well flowered bed of gladioli. The best varieties seen were: Mrs. J. Lancashire, Panama, Niagara, E. E. Stewart, Purity and Chicago White.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston, contributed what was the largest and most imposing feature of the garden, in the form of a Japanese garden, tastefully planted. A pergola opened upon a rustic winding bridge about 110 feet in length, which led to a charming rustic tea house, with central table, settees, and even window boxes filled with growing plants, in the center of the lagoon. The shores of the waterway were tastefully planted with water-loving subjects. Choice evergreens were used in profusion in the shore plantings, and tan bark was used instead of stone or gravel for the walks. The firm's name was well done in alternantheras facing the entrance to this fine exhibit. Among other plants noted here were numerous clumps of the new Lilium myriophyllum, L. Sargentiæ, buddleias and a host of hardy perennials and tender plants. This firm also had beds of Buddleia superba, magnifica and Veitchiana in other parts of the garden, bordered with hypericums.

A. H. Hews & Co., North Cambridge, Mass., contributed a number of large fancy pots and vases, which were filled with palms by the Boston city greenhouses.

W. C. Rust, Brookline, Mass., sent a large specimen Cycas revoluta and numerous large Hydrangea Otaksa.

The Boston department of public grounds filled several large beds with crotons, pandanus and other foliage plants. One large carpet bed at the entrance to the garden showed the seal of the city of Boston, alternantheras, echeverias, golden euonymus and similar plants being used. These were the best finished beds on the grounds and greatly helped out the general appearance. W. N. C.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

[The following is the report of John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., presented at the Boston convention, August 18, 1914.]

As to our trade exhibits at this convention, it is most unfortunate that early August found our plans greatly affected through the European war, now waging. Our exhibition has suffered greatly, in that many of our exhibitors have found it necessary to cancel or reduce orders for exhibition space. Particularly has this curtailment been felt in the florists' supply department, where samples of goods ordered for the season are exhibited, goods which are produced mainly in Europe and whose delivery none of us can guarantee.

Many of our exhibitors of bulbs, too, are affected, and the improbability of the arrival of much stock ordered for distribution is reflected in the scarcity of exhibits in some of our usually well filled departments.

Membership.

A general increase in the membership may be reported. The maximum membership is 2,004. By this is meant the inclusion of all members who have, at the time of making this report, qualified for 1914, and those who have not resigned but have been continued on the membership roll through expectation that they will make good their obligations. In this connection I might state that the delinquents' list is highly satisfactory in point of quality. Our life membership also shows a gratifying addition to the roll. With the members in good standing, and those whose dues are accounted collectible, our total membership may be considered as 2,004, of which 357 are life members and twenty-six pioneers, exempt from dues.

From these figures, it will be seen that our society is advancing in membership and that it is becoming more and more the representative body of the trade. It must be understood, however, that these figures are available only several days before the convention opens. As is usual, a considerable increase in the list of new members will no doubt be observable at the convention.

The following have sent in one or more names for membership since the last convention:

S. J. Goddard	4	E. T. Mische	2
Florists' Tel. Del.	15	H. F. Greve	2
E. Danker	1	Geo. Morrison	1
Mr. Farquhar	1	W. R. Nicholson	50

We have lost through death the following members: In 1913—Geo. P. Whitmore, February 25; G. R. Oliver, September 25; W. H. Grimes, October 5; Albert Dirwanger, November 3; Geo. A. Heinl, November 5. In 1914—W. A. Daggett, February 9; Ernst W. Mack, March 13; C. M. Newman, March 13; Geo. M. Garland, June 12; Thomas Mansfield, July 24.

Plant Registration.

The following plants have been registered since the last convention:

Oct. 7, 1913, by Henry Krinke & Son, St. Paul, Minn.: Fern, Pteris Krinkii.

Oct. 15, 1913, by R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., White Marsh, Md., the following cannas: Jessica, Benivolia, Horatio, La Few, Gonzabo and Mercutio.

Oct. 27, 1913, by Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa., the following cannas: Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Golden Gate, Wintzer's Colossal, Jane Adams and San Diego.

Nov. 4, 1913, the Montgomery Co., Inc., Hadley, Mass.: Rose Hadley.

Nov. 8, 1913, by Frederick Lagerstam, Belle Haven, Greenwich, Conn.: Chrysanthemum Mary Ellen.

Nov. 8, 1913, by Chas. L. Baum, Knoxville, Tenn.: Chrysanthemum Lena Baum.

Nov. 26, 1913, by Alfred M. Davenport, Watertown, Mass.: Begonia Florence Davenport.

Dec. 2, 1913, by F. H. De Witt & Co., Wooster,, O.: Geranium John G. Meyer.

Dec. 2, 1913, by F. H. De Witt & Co., Wooster, O.: Pelargonium Eastern Star.

Dec. 17, 1913, by Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J.: Rose Mrs. F. F. Thompson.

Dec. 15, 1913, by Dieterich & Turner, Montebello, Cal.: Rose September Morn.

Jan. 24, 1914, by J. A. Peterson & Sons, Cincinnati, O.: Begonia Melior.

Feb. 16, 1914, by Geo. J. Giatras, West Hoboken, N. J.: Nephrolepis New York.

Mar. 14, 1914, by Chas. Rathjen, Janesville, O.: Antirrhinum Janesville.

Mar. 28, 1914, by Chas. L. Baum, Knoxville, Tenn.: Carnation Dr. Sam.

May 8, 1914, by Mrs. B. B. Tuttle, Naugatuck, Conn.: Hybrid Orchid Lælio-cattleya Tuttleæ.

May 28, 1914, by Peter Henderson & Co., New York; Geranium General Funston.

May 23, 1914, by the United States Nursery Co., Roseacres, Miss.: Rose Climbing Pink American Beauty.

July 24, 1914, by Vaughan's Seed Store, New York and Chicago: Sweet Pea Selma Swenson.

The society's bronze medal was awarded in January to S. S. Skidelsky for Carnation Philadelphia, exhibited at the annual exhibition of that society.

REPORT ON SCHOOL GARDENS.

[The following is the report of Benjamin Hammond, chairman of the S. A. F. committee on school gardens, presented at the Boston convention August 19, 1914.]

Within twenty years the idea of school gardening has spread from Boston to the Pacific ocean and to the Philippine islands under United States control.

The economic value of this work, as is realized today, is of much importance in every town where it takes root. The value of a taste cultivated by making things grow in a small way lies in the fact that it tends at once to improve the appearance of a neighborhood. The florist's shop never is a detriment to a neighborhood, but is the example of what will make the homes of a community look better.

During the last year the committee on school gardens has followed up its limited work of suggestion to school trustees and others in every city, town or village where a member of the Society of American Florists is located, by mailing to each official school body a well illustrated circular letter calling attention to this work, and appreciation of this call is acknowledged by many.

One of the manufacturing towns which was built on the sand dunes or waste places at the south end of Lake Michigan is Gary, Ind., and the leading men of the cosmopolitan city of New York have been out there and come back home to tell, among other things, what school gardening and flower growing does to break up the old-time barrenness of a manufacturing city. This work over the country, especially in the larger cities, such as Cincinnati, St. Louis, Cleveland, Chicago, Los Angeles, Bellingham, Worcester, Toronto, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Syracuse, Minneapolis, Atlanta, Louisville, Indianapolis, Grand Rapids and Kalamazoo, gives merely an idea of what is being done in centers of large population. The work is aided by seedsmen in many places. Roses, dahlias, asters, gladioli, cannas, coleus, geraniums, sweet peas, etc., are evidence of the increasing appreciation by the mass of American families of flowering plants in the odd corners and waste places. Example and training are the effective ways in which to lead and elevate home taste. The development in the use and growth of flowers is nowhere more apparent than on the roofs of the great tenement buildings or apartment houses on Manhattan island; the boxes of flowers tell their own story of the yearning in human hearts for pretty things, and the florists and seedsmen of the world are the trades that help uplift humanity.

Your committee's advice to all the people is: Keep right on the job.

THE TRADE'S DISPLAY

THE UNCERTAINTIES caused by the European war are largely responsible for the fact that this year's trades' display fell behind the record. It had been expected that at Boston the society would have a business show second only to the record set at Chicago two years ago if, indeed, it did not raise the mark made at that time. This happy result might possibly have been attained had not the European imbroglio developed just as it did. In the first place, the war resulted in the withdrawal of all the Philadelphia and New York dealers in florists' supplies, whose importations are tied up and who do not know when they will be able to proceed with business again on the usual lines. At 40 cents per foot this meant the cancellation of orders for space that would have brought the society some $1,500, and some half dozen exhibitors a great many times that amount. The hole cut in the show was as appreciable as the one made in the society's cash receipts and served to emphasize the important place the supplies exhibits have come to hold in the annual trade show. It was a real case of being conspicuous by absence, and sadly missed.

In addition to the loss of the supplies exhibits, the war no doubt was felt in a decrease in the number of exhibitors, which approximated the number at Minneapolis last year but which did not exceed two-thirds the number who showed at Chicago or at Baltimore in the two years preceding. Probably had it not been for the unrest occasioned by the fighting, there would have been other exhibitors. It may have been due to any one or a combination of three factors that there was a general tendency to cut down the space used this year. While a few regular exhibitors took more space than usual, most of them took less than heretofore, which had the result of making a number of displays appear crowded while the hall as a whole was scarcely well filled. The war may have had something to do with this, or the slow business that generally has been experienced in the last two months, or it may be that the society is charging too much for the space and, with plenty of room, would secure better results and better feeling by returning to the old rates, which prevailed for some years prior to the raise two years ago to 40 cents per foot. At any rate there has been some discussion of this point and it will come up at the next meeting of the board of directors.

Although there was little in the way of outstanding novelty, taking it all together, it made a thoroughly good exhibition and one that would have been considered excellent a few years ago. Mechanics building, where the affair was staged, affords worlds of space, so that the show was all in one section of the main floor, but it is not well adapted to the purpose of obtaining an impressive general effect. The great room is triangular in shape, cut up by scores of posts and with so low a ceiling that the men who have recently been exhibiting full sized sections of big iron-frame greenhouses had this year to think up other ideas. Secretary Young has been handling these affairs so many years that his arrangements are excellent and there is nothing but praise for the way the show is handled. It is far better than in the days when a new local man was placed in charge each year and forced to tackle the job without experience.

The staging of the exhibits in general was better this year than it ever has been before. Each convention sees an advance in the character of the booths and the effective display of the exhibits. Those who showed at Boston were:

Advance Co., Richmond, Ind.

The Advance ventilating machine was shown in two styles, nickel plated for exhibition purposes. The Big Advance machine was demonstrated in connection with the new truss arm and the Little Wonder machine was shown for use in conservatories, etc. The exhibit included patent pipe shaft couplings, a new rack and pinion arm to be used in connection with a new worm gear machine soon to be put on the market, shelf brackets, pipe carriers, split tees, column brackets and a split V fitting that is new. J. E. Jones and R. E. Jones, father and son, were in charge of the exhibit. They had fans, nail files and a variety of knives as souvenirs.

S. A. Anderson, Buffalo.

Begonia Gloire de Lorraine years ago was found so at home at the Anderson place, where stock is grown for the use of the retail store, that quantities were produced for wholesaling—about the only item this retailer sells to the trade. Excellent plants were shown in several sizes. Mr. Anderson was in charge.

Aphine Mfg. Co., Madison, N. J.

This line of insecticides and fungicides included Nikotiana, Aphine, Fungine, Vermine and Scaline, all attractively displayed in glass jars. M. C. Ebel was in charge.

A. A. Arnold Paper Box Co., Chicago.

S. Freund, salesmanager of the florists' boxes department of the Arnold Box Co., was on hand with the only exclusive display of boxes, the line including all the ordinary green and glazed corner lock folding boxes for cut flowers, designs and corsage bouquets, but featuring novelty boxes for Christmas and St. Valentine's day. The Christmas boxes included holly, poinsettia and wreath decorations, while the St. Valentine's boxes of course carried red hearts. These were all in the corner lock style. The line was strong on wreath and spray boxes, Mr. Freund stating that the popularity of the wreath as a funeral design has created a large demand for a special box for the safe delivery of wreaths.

Charles D. Ball, Holmesburg, Pa.

There were some Phœnix Roebelenii in this exhibit, but for which it would have consisted entirely of kentias, single and made-up plants in a variety of sizes. This grower has specialized on kentias these many years and does them well. The plants shown this year were not so large as sometimes have been shown, but they all were well finished. Charles D. Ball and Charles D. Ball, Jr., were on the ground.

Lemuel Ball Estate, Wissinoming, Pa.

This exhibit included kentias in sizes from 2½-inch pots to 12-inch tubs; Pandanus Veitchii and P. utilis, Dracæna terminalis made up three to a pot, 6-inch terminalis, Ficus pandurata, Nephrolepis Scholzeli; Cocos Weddelliana, Dracæna Sanderiana and Areca lutescens in sizes for growing on. James W. Wade was in charge, as for many years.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia.

Bayersdorfer & Co., at a cost of over $400 for space, had arranged for one of the largest exhibits the firm has ever made. H. Bayersdorfer spent several weeks in Europe, principally in Germany, last spring, planning novelties with the makers, and Sydney Bayersdorfer is there now to watch the manufacture and shipment, but with communication cut off it appeared that trouble would be avoided by booking no more orders for this stock until the situation clears. The result was that the exhibit was withdrawn and a portion of the space used for desk and reception purposes only. Martin Reukauf, Stephen Greene and I. Bayersdorfer were present to talk over matters with those interested.

Bon Arbor Chemical Co., Paterson, N. J.

This exhibit contained a complete line of agricultural chemicals, including Bon Arbor prepared plant food, weed killer, Radix worm eradicator, and other proprietary articles. In charge of Edward Earnshaw, head of the concern.

L. B. Brague & Son, Hinsdale, Mass.

A table of hardy cut ferns constituted the exhibit in charge of L. H. Brague.

Joseph Breck & Sons Co., Boston.

The Breck corporation showed plants of Nelrose snapdragon and the Fleteo paper pots, for which it is agent; also bulbs of Freesia Purity and some nice boxwoods from its nursery at Lexington. John L. Russell was in charge.

Brookland Gardens, Woburn, Mass.

There were about fifty varieties of gladioli in this display, which included many of the newer varieties and the best of the standard sorts. While the showing was by no means so large as some of the others, it was excellent stock throughout and well staged. S. E. Spencer was in charge.

John Lewis Childs, Floral Park, N. Y.

I. S. Hendrickson and S. C. Parnell

staged the Childs exhibit of about 100 varieties of gladiolus. The collection included the varieties originated by the exhibitor and the best European and American sorts selected by careful test. It was strong in reds, but the tendency of late has been toward light colors, and these predominated. Aline, white, sent out a few seasons ago, still showed up strongly, but Snow King, to go out this fall, is expected to assume a leading place among whites. Childs was the disseminator of America, the variety that really gave the gladiolus its start as a florists' flower, and every exhibit by Childs of course makes a feature of America.

Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y.

This was one of the largest displays of cut gladiolus blooms ever made at an S. A. F. convention, there being 170 of the usual vases and a large number of baskets arranged for effect. F. A. Kuen, a decorator from Newark, N. J., had charge of this part of the exhibit, which was extremely effective. A feature of the display was a collection of about 100 primulinus hybrids in dainty colors, principally yellow with cream throats and cream with yellow throats. Two new reds were shown, Dominion, scarlet, which Mr. Cowee calls an earlier War, and Mrs. H. Reeves, which Mr. Cowee entered in the Gladiolus Society's class for best red not before exhibited. Papilio Rose, which is rose and white, attracted an unusual amount of attention. A white seedling under number also showed progress. London is pinkish lavender. Among the older sorts shown were Peace, Dawn, War, Laluna and many other Cowee varieties now widely distributed. Mr. Cowee was, as in other years, assisted by the Misses Aleda and Bessie Chandler.

Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia.

One of the few exhibitors to take extra space this year was the Robert Craig Co., and no exhibit attracted more attention, as the crotons, with their bright colors, were strongly in the foreground. The plants shown numbered possibly 100, representing a stock of 100,000 in 400 varieties. Many pieces were pointed out as the best thus far grown in those varieties and the entire lot was fine. A feature was made of a set of seven seedlings just christened with the names of prominent florists, as follows: F. R. Pierson, W. F. Gude, P. Welch, John Farquhar, Thomas Roland, Philip Breitmeyer and Mrs. E. A. Williams. These were shown for the first time. Next to the crotons in importance and effect were the dracænas in some forty varieties. Among them were such excellent new sorts as Craigii, Garnet and Striata, with some good old sorts like Shepardii, Stricta Grandis, Amabilis and Warneckii, not often seen because the average grower finds them difficult to do well. Massangeana and terminalis, of course, were there and Kelleriana was shown as an improved Godseffiana. Among some fifteen varieties of nephrolepis was the new fern, John Wanamaker, of which great things are expected. It is a sport from Elegantissima Improved. Several made-up baskets of croton combinations were shown. Pteris Parkeri was held up as a house fern of promise. Ficus utilis was shown in fine shape and F. pandurata also was there. Areca lutescens was the only palm in the display, large made-up plants. Among the miscellaneous stock shown were oranges in fruit, begonias, cyclamens and French hydrangeas. The display was in charge of Wm. P. Craig, Duncan Macaw and Leonard J. Seiger, but Robert Craig and Robert A. Craig were present.

Crowl Fern Co., Millington, Mass.

This exhibit included hardy cut ferns, laurel festooning, galax leaves, bouquet green, and a variety of other decorative evergreens, some of them made up as for Christmas use. The display was, as always, in charge of E. W. Vineca.

Detroit Flower Pot M'f'y, Detroit.

This exhibit consisted of samples of red pots in the largely sold trade sizes, including the round bottom pattern. Harry Balsley was in charge.

Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia.

The display of plants staged by Henry A. Dreer was larger than usual, but the showing of bulbs and greenhouse and garden supplies frequently seen from this house was omitted. Palms were a special feature, including a large number of big specimen plants of kentias, arecas, single and made up; Phœnix Roebelenii and Cocos Weddelliana. There was a large collection of crotons and another of dracænas. Other items shown included Cibotium Schiedei, the variegated pineapple, Pteris Parkeri, Boston and other ferns, Pandanus Veitchii and P. utilis, araucarias in many sizes, adiantum, asplenium, fittonia, sansevieria, ficus, asparagus, ferns for dishes, trained ivies, etc. J. J. Karins and J. J. Goudy were in charge.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston.

This display consisted of a round table of French and Dutch bulbs of the larger sizes.

Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago.

P. J. Foley staged, for his company, a table of detail parts and photographs showing ranges recently built, notably the one for the florists' experiment station at the University of Illinois. He had a neat little pocket mirror as a souvenir.

C. S. Ford, Philadelphia.

As agents for a number of specialty houses, C. S. Ford showed wax and metal wreaths, letters, clock dials, society emblems, prepared foliages and a number of other items of staple florists' supplies.

Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co., Boston.

This was another of the exhibits that was small because of the war. It had been intended to show a large line of Dutch bulbs, and the samples arrived in time, but because of the uncertainty as to the time of delivery of the stock for shipment it was thought best not to show the samples. The booth therefore was decorated with cut blooms of gladioli and the display consisted principally of French bulbs, with Harrisii and freesia. W. E. Cahill was in charge.

Carl Hagenburger, Mentor, O.

A new and unheralded crested fern appeared from Ohio, Mr. Hagenburger's display consisting of about fifty plants, from 2-inch to 8-inch, of an unnamed sport of Whitmani. It is lighter in growth and has a stiff midrib that holds the fronds more erect than in Whitmani. Mr. Hagenburger thinks it a distinct improvement and has worked up a stock of about 2,000 plants. Unless he receives too tempting an offer for the novelty, he intends to fill his whole place with it and introduce it to the trade.

Benj. Hammond, Beacon, N. Y.

Hammond's Paint and Slug Shot Works showed its usual line of insecticides, greenhouse paints and putty, featuring Slug Shot, which has been in unusually heavy demand this season because of the depredations of the army worm. Twemlow's Old English putty also had a prominent place in the exhibit, which was in charge of Walter Mott and Harold La Due.

Harrison & Sons, Berlin, Md.

J. G. Harrison & Sons sent an exhibit consisting of boxwoods in several sizes, evergreens in tubs and deciduous nursery stock dug in full leaf.

Joseph Heacock Co., Wyncote, Pa.

This display was made up of kentias, arecas, cibotiums, phœnix and cocos and the claim is made that none of the stock has ever been sea-sick. The kentias included sizes from 10 cents each up to specimens ten feet high. All the stock was in first-class shape and the large cibotiums attracted especial attention for the splendid spread of the big fronds. Joseph Heacock was present, but the display was in charge of James Heacock and Theo. Shober.

A. H. Hews & Co., Cambridge, Mass.

This pottery, established in 1765, was represented by a sample of every piece in its line of standard, lily, fern, bulb, orchid and azalea pots, cut flower vases and glazed earthenware specialties. The pots range in size from 1-inch to 24-inch and it is said 20,000,000 pieces per year are turned out. The clay was shown in two degrees of fineness, also the pots in the natural state, before burning. The display was in charge of J. B. Hall, manager of the company, assisted by L. D. Bryant and T. J. Benwell.

Hitchings & Co., New York.

Within a latticed booth Hitchings & Co. showed a large number of especially fine photographs of work they have done for customers large and small. A new style square sectional boiler occupied one side, showing enlarged combustion chamber and sectional rocking grates. A feature of the exhibit was a section of the wide iron-frame house showing a solid post bent at the eave, embodying the Z-bar eave plate with cast foot and sill for concrete wall. Another section showed the connection of rafters and the I-beam columns. A new tell-tale was shown in connection with ventilating apparatus, by means of which the operator can tell exactly how much air he has on without looking at the sash, which, in a big house, is too far away to be seen distinctly. The completely enclosed self-oiling ventilating apparatus also was shown. Many features of the concern's construction were shown in position for close examination by means of details grouped on the walls of the booth. John McArthur was in charge, assisted by J. N. Keeler, manager of the Boston office.

Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y.

The feature of this display was especially timely because of the war scare, as it consisted of American-grown forcing stock. There were four varieties of lilacs, home-grown in pots, American-grown Deutzia gracilis, the French hydrangeas and Otaksa and field-grown roses for forcing. The display of shrubs included Hydrangea paniculata grandiflora, Spiræa Van Houttei and Berberis Thunbergii. G. C. Perkins was in charge.

C. Keur & Sons, Hillegom, Holland.

This display included a full line of tulips, hyacinths, crocus and narcissi, an interesting feature of which was that they reached New York only a week ago, having been shipped from Rotterdam after the outbreak of the war. Stanley T. Coggan was in charge.

King Construction Co., N. Tonawanda, N. Y.

A full sized section of a flat rafter truss greenhouse was set up by the King representatives and fitted up complete to show the house just as it would stand ready for planting. A number of other styles of construction were shown by detail parts and by photographs and drawings. R. O. King was in charge, assisted by F. J. Tighe, from the home office, and T. J. Nolan, from Scranton, Pa.

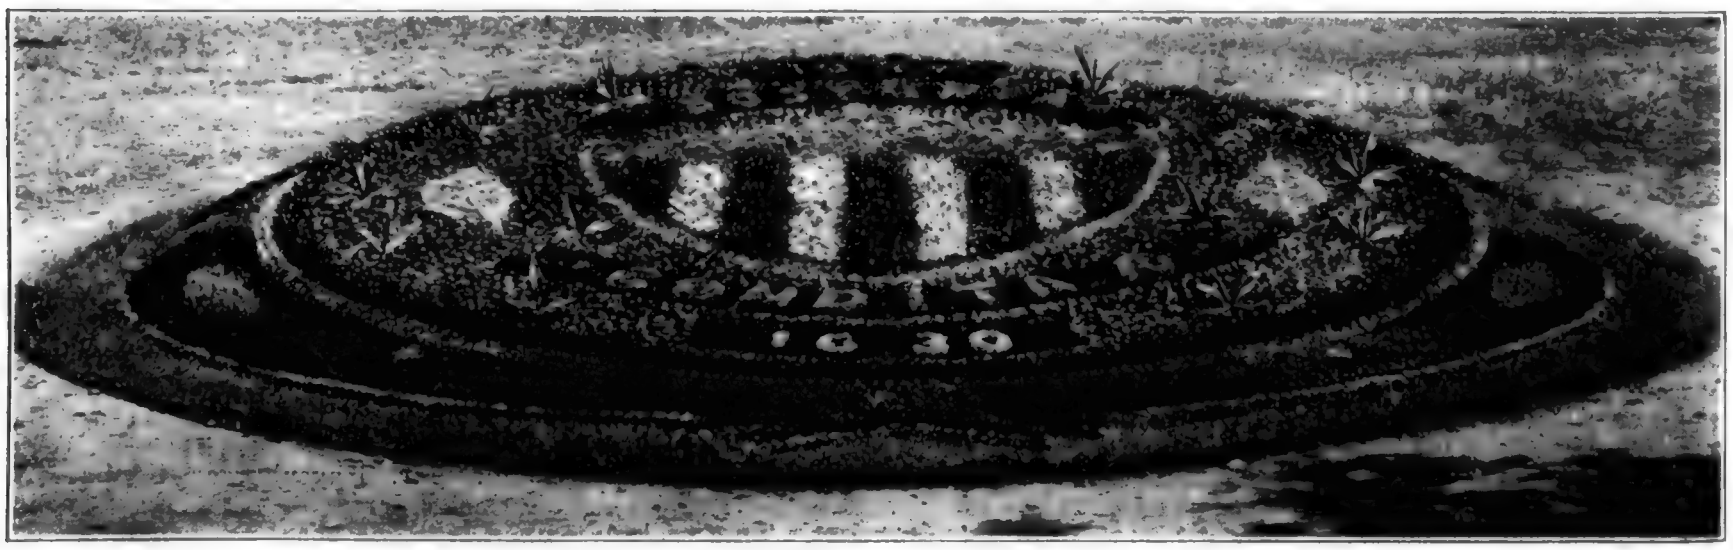
Knight & Struck Co., New York.

The exhibit of which Thomas Knight had charge contained a few orchid plants, etc., but consisted principally of the hard-wooded plants on which the company has specialized from the date of its organization. Among the acacias were pulchella, longifolia and cordata. The ericas were melanthera, Edward VII, cupressina, Globularia major, regerminans, Mediterranea, regerminans ovata and persoluta alba. Chorizema cordata splendens also was included in the display.

Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago.

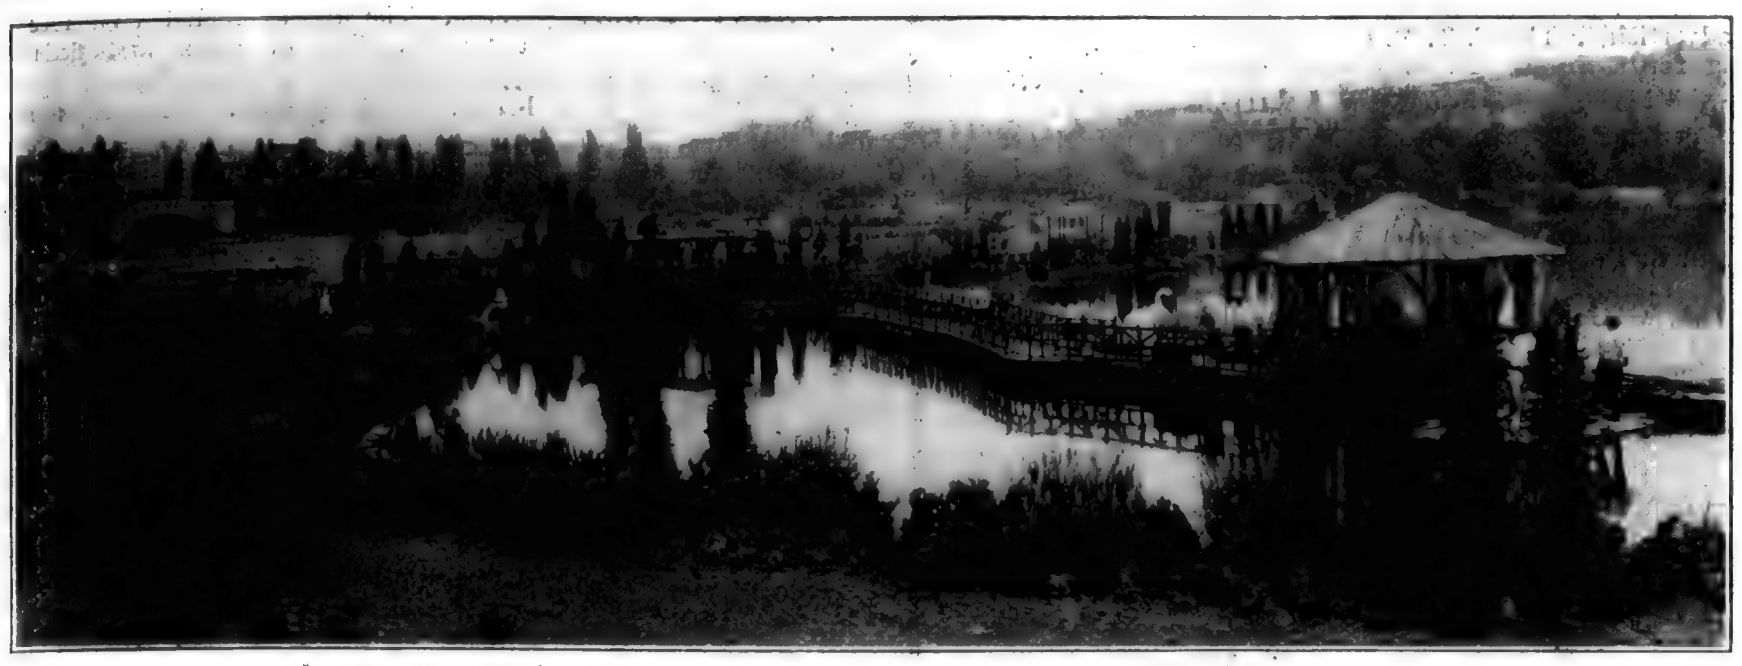
The Kroeschell exhibit, 1,100 miles from home, had a total weight, on the cars, exceeding 30,000 pounds. It consisted of two boilers cross connected to show the proper method. They were set on concrete foundations, with a "generator" attached to show how hot water is put under pressure. Overhead there was a demonstration of the threaded tube piping system and also of the 2-inch piping system. The No. 9 boiler, which has a capacity of 24,000 feet of glass at carnation temperature, was sold to H. S. Walcott, Concord, Mass., and the No. 7, with a capacity of 20,000 feet of glass, was sold to Peter Murray, Fairhaven, Mass., who already has two Kroeschells. The exhibit was, as usual, in charge of Fred Lautenschlager, who had a large collection of photographs, many of his own making, to show installations.

Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J.



This display of orchids included the following varieties in excellent bloom: Vanda Sanderiana and V. cœrulea; Dendrobium formosum giganteum; Cattleya gigas, chrysotoxa, Minucia and an Adula cross. The showing of freshly imported plants included such cattleyas as Sanderiana, Schrœderæ, Percivaliana and Trianæ. J. E. Lager was in charge.

A. Leuthy & Co., Boston.



Leuthy & Co. are large growers of pot plants for the local market and staged a big and crowded group of excellent stock in great variety. There were palms, ferns, ficus, araucarias, dracænas, adiantums, variegated pineapples and many more.

Lion & Co., New York.

This exhibit consisted of the usual line of staple and novelty ribbons, chiffons, corsage shields, ties and pins. A distinct novelty was a butterfly made of velvet and shown in many bright and attractive colors. A departure for this house was a line of pot covers and ferneries made of peanut grass and shaped like the straw hats that have sprung into such popularity for the finer uses. These are of European manufacture and arrived only a day or two before the boats stopped running. Oscar Lion was in charge of the exhibit, assisted by Milton Alexander and Julius Berg.

Seal of the City of Boston in the Convention Garden.

Japanese Garden of R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston, at the Convention.

Lord & Burnham Co., New York.

Departing from custom, this exhibitor showed no boilers, greenhouse structural material or accessories; instead an attractive pavilion of beaver board was built, painted in white and green and hung with dozens of large photographs of the ranges built by the exhibitor, with the water color sketch of the new J. W. Davis establishment at Terre Haute, Ind., recently reproduced in The Review, occupying the place of honor in the center as representing the largest single contract for commercial greenhouses. Victor Morgan installed and was in charge of the booth, but the occasion was utilized for the mobilization of a considerable part of the force of salesmen under the leadership of W. R. Cobb, the general manager at New York. Among those present were George Sykes, the western manager from Chicago, M. C. Wright and D. T. Connor from Philadelphia, T. B. De Forest from New York and F. J. Elder, of the Boston office.

McNeff-Swenson Co., Chicago.

This firm specializes in advertising matter for high grade retail florists and had a neat booth in which to show samples of the next four of its series of colored mailing cards, for fall planting trade, for fall store openings, for Thanksgiving and for Christmas. The display was in charge of L. D. McNeff, H. V. Swenson, R. L. Zoll and A. F. Longren.

MacRorie-McLaren Co., San Francisco.

The exhibit from the greatest distance was that of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., San Francisco. It consisted of plants of phalænopsis, amabilis and Schilleriana, in fine condition in spite of their trip clear across the continent. John R. Fotheringham, who had just returned from the coast, jumping from Butte to Boston, was in charge.

W. A. Manda, Inc., South Orange, N. J.

This exhibitor had more stock than space, with the result that the plants were too crowded to show to the best advantage. The orchids in bloom made a bright spot. Polypodium Mandaianum of course was a conspicuous feature. The palms included kentias, arecas and Phœnix Roebelenii. Other subjects shown included cibotiums, aspleniums, dracænas, alsophilas, adiantums and many more. W. A. Manda and Robert Karlstrom were in charge.

Massachusetts Agricultural College.

The Department of Floriculture of the Amherst institution had a booth in charge of Prof. Arno H. Nehrling at which the college literature was on display for distribution. Information was offered on the work being done for floriculture and the purposes and facilities of the institution made clear to many inquirers.

J. C. Meyer & Co., Boston.

The space occupied by Meyer & Co. was used for the display of cases of thread, one kind of which became widely known in the trade under the name of Silkaline.

H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia.

The House of Michell this year contented itself with a desk and chairs, displaying only a rack of printed matter and some photographs of the seed farm and trial grounds. I. Rosnosky was in charge, but several members of the Michell were present, including the Chief.

John C. Moninger Co., Chicago.

A large steam boiler occupied the center of the well designed booth of the Moninger Co., in charge of N. J. Rupp, treasurer of the company, and A. Hammarstrom, manager of its New York office. Two half sections of greenhouses were shown, one the iron-frame house, the other the pipe-frame house, embodying the new bolted clamps for fastening pipe supports to purlins, which they think is one of the biggest little things they have hit on in a long time. Other features of the construction were shown by means of many detail sections of gutters, eave plates, bars, etc. Paint, putty, plumbing and heating fittings, pipe carriers, etc., were attractively shown. A large water color sketch showed the big plant to be erected for W. H. Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill. A novelty was a miniature greenhouse, complete in every part and detail, even to the glazing, made of paper. For the ladies this exhibitor had a vanity case and for the men a souvenir pencil.

J. G. Neidinger, Philadelphia.

The stock purchased by Mr. Neidinger on his trip to Europe last spring is—nobody knows where! Most of it was to have come from Germany and France. As it was deemed unwise to show samples of merchandise that may never arrive, no exhibit was made, but a table and chairs were placed on part of the space intended to be used and George W. Hampton was present to meet customers and friends of the house and explain the situation.

New England Entomological Co.

Prof. Wm. Reiff, manager of the establishment of the New England Entomological Co., at Jamaica Plain, Mass., was in charge of an attractive booth in which were butterflies in great variety, mounted on pins in boxes with the uniformity of a manufactured article. He conveyed the surprising information that there is a market for such things in quantity and that florists are using them in decorating.

Pan-Pacific Exposition.

The San Francisco exposition had a booth in charge of Wm. Plumb, superintendent of floriculture, at which the business of the department was transacted and information given on the exposition as a whole.

E. Allan Peirce, Waltham, Mass.

This exhibit consisted of only one article, the paper pot first shown and certificated at the Minneapolis convention last year and which has since been widely sold in the trade. The pot was shown in all the standard sizes. It is a made-up, one-piece article and is shipped nested, packed in fiber-board cases.

Penn, Boston.

One of the unique displays was that of Penn, the Boston retail florist. It consisted of a booth, three sides of which were covered with hangers on which Penn's retail ads were attractively grouped, with headings showing the papers in which they were published. There were scores of ads, each one a model of effective publicity, covering all seasons of the year and almost all lines of stock. Street car cards were shown in frames and there was a miniature billboard over a lawn of sheet moss. The purpose of the exhibit, which cost Penn over $200, was purely educational, to show florists how the flower business has been, is and can be increased by the use of the right kind of advertising. The F. T. D. of course came in for a boost. H. S. Rogers, of the Penn promotion staff, was in charge.

Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia.

This exhibit, while not so large as at some previous conventions, included a considerable variety of ribbons, chiffons and corsage ties. Instead of showing samples of all the materials, qualities, widths and colors, as sometimes has been done, the exhibitor staged principally new colors and shades, the standard flower colors having become so well known that there is little object in showing them. A large line of corsage pins was on display, this item having assumed considerable importance. Robert Greenlaw was in charge. E. J. Fancourt, secretary of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., who was present, stated as an item of trade news that the sale for baskets has become so large that the company is about to engage extensively in the business and will hereafter carry a large stock of plain and decorated baskets at its stores in Philadelphia, New York, Baltimore and Washington. The plant department was represented by some fine Boston ferns, dracænas, crotons, pandanus, small cyclamens and other young stock for growing on.

Peters & Reed Pottery Co., Zanesville, Ohio.

This exhibit consisted of the Moss Aztec ware that has been sold in quantity all over the country for the last couple of years. It is a peculiar moss green finish over a deep brown body and seems to appeal with special force to florists, although the line is handled in many other stores. The display included vases, jardinieres, fern dishes, hanging baskets, etc., in a variety of shapes and sizes. S. T. Pletcher was in charge.

J. A. Peterson & Sons, Cincinnati.

Because of an excellent demand for begonias, this exhibitor staged only Dracæna Victoria, a pair of plants seven feet high, 6 years old and originally imported from England; Adiantum Farleyense in a variety of sizes, and Asplenium Nidus-Avis in several sizes and all in excellent condition. J. A. Peterson and Clarence Peterson were in charge.

F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y.

The Pierson exhibit was larger than usual, including all the Piersoni family of ferns, among them Muscosa, Elegantissima, Elegantissima Compacta, Magnifica, Piersoni Improved, Harrisii, Superbissima, Dwarf Boston and Teddy Junior. These were shown in all sizes, from 2½-inch pots to big specimens, and all in excellent condition. There also was a line of Dutch bulbs and the several sizes of Harrisii. The exhibit was, as usual, in charge of J. R. Fotheringham and Theodore Trevellian.

Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago.

There were two novelties in this display, one being prepared oak foliage in several colors and all transparent, the other a galvanized vase made without any sharp edges to damage furniture. The staple line included prepared foliages of many kinds, ruscus, cycas leaves, baskets, pot covers, mats, crepe paper, red frieze and many other articles. T. E. Waters was in charge, it being his first visit to Boston since he removed to the west ten years ago.

Quaker City Machine Works, Richmond, Ind.

The exhibit of the Challenge ventilator was this year incorporated in the model greenhouse display of the A. T. Stearns Lumber Co. It consisted of machine for top ventilators, with which the patented Twentieth Century arm was used, and a machine for side ventilation, with which the Lazy tong arm was shown. In the large line of greenhouse fittings was the new roller bearing hanger for ventilator shafts, which the inventor says has proved to be one of the best selling specialties he ever has put on the market. J. A. Evans was present to assist the Stearns Lumber Co., which is the New England agent for the Richmond concern.

Revere Rubber Co., Boston.

The manufacturers of Revero hose always stage it attractively and this time had a 500-foot reel for each corner of the space, with a hedge of plants between. In the center of the space was the gigantic exhibition reel that has been seen at several trade shows, but this time the opening in the middle of the reel was occupied by a well lighted vase of gladioli on a background of green velvet. R. W. Howe was in charge.

M. Rice Co., Philadelphia.

The samples of novelties in florists' supplies which the Rice concern had already packed for shipment to the convention when the war broke out consisted almost entirely of articles being made to order in Germany as a result of B. Eschner's trip last spring. As cables of inquiry about shipping brought no answer, it was considered unwise to show the samples and the whole exhibit was kept in Philadelphia. Robert Shoch was on hand with a desk and chairs on a part of the space it had been intended to occupy, for the purpose of explaining the situation to customers and friends.

H. M. Robinson & Co., Boston.

It was left for a Boston concern to this year make the largest display of florists' supplies. Robinson & Co. do not specialize in novelties and received most of their imported staples before the war began, so that they have not found it necessary to change their plans for the season. The display included baskets in a large variety of plain and finished styles, pot covers, mats, boxes, cycas leaves, wheat sheaves, oak sprays and other prepared foliage, ribbons, chiffons, raffia, pins, sprinklers, wire, foil, insecticides, wax designs, etc., with a liberal display of the red frieze roping that is expected to sell specially well this season as a substitute for other articles that may not arrive in time for the Christmas trade. Charles Robinson was in charge, with several assistants.

Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.

This is not the time of year for the man whose specialty is plants for the Christmas and Easter holidays, but Thomas Roland showed a table of excellent stock of the varieties with which he supplies the Boston stores regularly and heavily at times. The collection included bougainvilleas, cyclamens, begonias, ferns, araucarias, dracænas, crotons, ardisias, cibotiums, ericas, oranges, Ficus pandurata, Pandanus Veitchii, camellias and many more.

Schloss Bros., New York.

This exhibitor never fails to put up a large and well arranged display of ribbons, chiffons and corsage specialties, this week's convention being no exception to the rule. Many of the novelties are of European origin, but the war will not interfere with the ribbon men this season. In addition to the usual line of staple articles in the various widths and florists' colors, an especially handsome looped edge dresden (flowered) pattern was shown, a variety of colors and ombre (shaded) effects. A new Christmas ribbon was in a checkerboard pattern of green and red. A new thing was a ribbon in a variety of widths and weights of real gold and silver threads. A beaded corsage tie was shown in all the leading colors. Emil Schloss was in charge as usual, assisted by Milton Selinka and I. Weisberg.

Skinner Irrigation Co., Troy, O.

The unique feature of this display was that the booth was fenced in with lines of piping such as the exhibitor has for sale, so that visitors could try for themselves the working of each part. The lines of piping were mounted on the new roller carrier. The display included the various specialty parts which in combination make up the system as shown in the complete pipe lines. In charge of George M. Barrie, local agent, and Wilbur S. Thompson, manager of the New York office.

Exhibits of T. E. Palmer, in Foreground, and W. A. Manda, in Background, at Boston.

Sun Dial of Carter's Tested Seeds, Inc., in the Convention Garden at Boston.

A. T. Stearns Lumber Co., Neponset, Mass.

For sixty years this company has been selling greenhouses in New England, and occasionally outside. The exhibit consisted of a complete house 10x20, all cypress construction, equipped with Challenge ventilating apparatus, for which the company has the New England agency. A model tower and tank also was shown, but so far as could be ascertained the tank was empty. F. N. Sanborn, manager of the greenhouse department of the company, and Col. W. E. Sweetser, advertising manager for all departments, were in charge.

Geo. L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I.

One of the most attractive spots of color in the hall was that made by the dahlias from George L. Stillman, who grows nothing else. He had 144 bottles, each one containing a single bloom on a short stem. There were no two alike. Of the lot sixty-five were new varieties of the peony-flowered type raised by Mr. Stillman himself, and there were several new colors among them. The balance of the exhibit comprised what Mr. Stillman considers the best of the decorative, show, cactus and collarette types. Among these was a new variety of his own raising, velvety maroon in color, that he says never throws a stem less than sixteen inches long and often thirty inches long.

Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O.

As for many years, the leader in this exhibit was a good lot of field-grown roses for forcing. The indoor department was represented by ferns for dishes, Dracæna terminalis, Cibotium Schiedei, Asplenium Nidus-Avis, Araucaria excelsa, Asparagus plumosus, Adiantum cuneatum, kentias and primroses in variety. Although most of the samples were in small sizes for growing on, S. R. Welch, who was in charge, was careful to explain that the company has forty-four greenhouses full of larger sizes.

Taylor Steam Specialty Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

This animated exhibit was a demonstration of the Taylor water circulator for greenhouse heating. Operated by a small electric motor and with a portion of the apparatus made of glass for demonstration purposes, the actual operation of the mechanism could be seen. The display was in charge of J. H. Taylor, head of the concern.

Teare & Black Co., Cleveland.

These agricultural chemists, manufacturing a large line, showed only one article, Capital Plant Food, prepared for professional florists, with sample cans for distribution. The display was in charge of G. J. Wilder and A. C. Teasdale.

Vaughan's Seed Store, New York.

The bulb display of this exhibitor included a full line of French, Japanese and Bermudian varieties and sizes and also a considerable line of Dutch stock, tulips, hyacinths and narcissi. Cut blooms of a number of varieties of gladioli were shown. The exhibit was in charge of J. B. Deamud and Edward Hollberg.

James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y.

Coöperating with the exhibitor was the firm of Jacob Thomann & Sons, with whom Rochester White gladiolus originated, and this variety was shown in larger quantity than has heretofore been possible. It was staged in an attractive manner and seemed to receive almost as much attention as it did before most of those interested in the flower had been given a number of opportunities of seeing it. The Thomanns also put up some twenty other varieties of their own raising, only a few spikes each of most of them, and large vases of about forty standard varieties. For themselves James Vick's Sons showed blooms of each variety of aster of which they are growing seeds this year, illustrating the character of their strains. They also showed plants from the stock seed plantation of Vick's Ruffled Giant petunia. W. H. Dildine was in charge, with numerous assistants.

R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., White Marsh, Md.

This exhibit consisted of a dozen big, beautifully flowered pot plants of the Maryland geranium, scarlet, introduced last season but not yet widely known. The plants were flowered for this purpose by Thomas Roland, to whom the stock was shipped last winter. R. Vincent, Jr., was in charge, but did not stay with the exhibit. "Let the plants speak for themselves," was the way he put it.

Ralph M. Ward & Co., New York.

This importer of bulbs made no display of stock, but had a comfortable retreat where Horace Cheeseman could greet old friends and explain to them that he now wears the Horseshoe brand.

Welch Bros. Co., Boston.

A large line of staple articles in florists' supplies was put on display by Welch Bros. Co. There were staple baskets for cut flowers and plants in considerable variety, ruscus and metal wreaths, pot covers, mats, wheat sheaves, doves, sprinklers, wire, match sticks, greenhouse insecticides, vases and florists' letters.

Wertheimer Bros., New York.

This exhibit was divided into three sections, one devoted to corsage ties, another to chiffons and the third to ribbons. In the large line of corsage ribbons and ties were a number of new things, including plain and valley Silverine ribbon, moire ombre ribbon, flowered gauze in two widths and velvet two-tone ribbon in all flower colors. Among the chiffons the novelties noted were bridal lace, ombre, Silverine valley, gold lace in colors, Hillingdon rose yellow, and a crepon chiffon. A steel moire ribbon was shown in two widths of all flower colors and the rubber-backed ribbon was shown in narrow widths. Another novelty was an ombre ribbon with the darker color on both edges and light center. It was stated that moire, or watered ribbons are having special vogue among florists. Wertheimer Bros. recently have started manufacturing ribbons at Paterson, N. J., where a factory with over 100 hands is managed by L. G. Wertheimer, S. B. Wertheimer devoting his energies to the store. The exhibit was in charge of Rupert Hall and Sam. Eintracht.

Williams Supply House, Utica, N. Y.

Wire designs with all the joints welded by an electric process instead of being looped as in ordinary wire work was the novel feature of the display of the Williams Florists' Supply House; it attracted much attention and is said to be a cheaper process than the old one. The EZ carnation tie also was shown on a miniature greenhouse bench. J. J. Williams was in charge.

Denver, Colo.—Walter & Richmond have obtained a permit to build a greenhouse, at 3239 East Second avenue. The cost is $2,000.

THE ALLIED SOCIETIES

LADIES' S. A. F.

The organization of ladies attending the conventions has grown until it now numbers 449 members, forty-nine of whom have been added since July 1 and twenty-nine of whom have joined in Boston. Of the members 185 are thought to have attended the 1914 convention. At the annual meeting, held August 19 and presided over by Mrs. Charles E. Critchell, of Cincinnati, a life membership was created, the fee being $10. A committee, with Mrs. W. F. Gude as chairman, was instructed to look after the late William R. Smith's collection of Burnsiana and see that it is preserved.

The following officers were elected:

President—Mrs. W. F. Gude, Washington.

First Vice-President—Mrs. George Asmus, Chicago.

Second Vice-President—Mrs. G. L. Grant, Soquel, Cal.

Treasurer—Mrs. Albert M. Herr, Lancaster, Pa.

Secretary—Mrs. C. H. Maynard, Detroit.

On the evening of August 19 the society gave its annual reception in the grand ballroom of the Copley Plaza hotel, the attendance being the largest in the organization's history. The affair opened with a reception by the officers, after which there was dancing until midnight, with buffet refreshments.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

President S. J. Goddard occupied the chair at a meeting of the American Carnation Society held at Boston August 20. The Iroquois hotel was selected as the place for the annual exhibition and convention at Buffalo in January, the affair to be conducted on the same lines as the successful one at Cleveland last January. The premium list was adopted and the retailers' display provided for in the same way as at Cleveland. Secretary Baur was instructed to prepare a program.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

President Wallace R. Pierson presented a detailed report of the society's activities at a meeting of the American Rose Society, held at Boston, August 20, and there was a lengthy discussion of the work, principally as it related to the test rose gardens, in a number of which the society is interested. E. G. Hill gave it as his opinion that better results would be obtained by centering the society's work in the one garden in which it is coöperating with the government at Washington. On motion of Robert Pyle, it was decided that a general committee of three be appointed to have supervision of all the work of the society in the matter of test rose gardens, with a local subcommittee of three to assist in the work in each of the gardens in which the society is now or may become interested. The Hubbard gold medal was presented to M. H. Walsh for having raised Excelsa, the rose said to be the most useful variety produced in the last five years. Mr. Hill made the address and Mr. Walsh responded briefly. A silver medal was awarded to John Cook for Radiance, but Mr. Cook, who is 81 years old, was unable to make the trip from Baltimore. The matter of the place to hold the March exhibition was left in the hands of the executive committee W. F. Kasting invited the society to Buffalo.

FLORISTS' TELEGRAPH DELIVERY.

The Florists' Telegraph Delivery is the live organization of the day and is a big factor in doing for the S. A. F. what the S. A. F. has long been unable to do for itself and that is, to bring in the retailers. Instead of waiting for the present society to make advances, this purely business organization began by making it a prerequisite for membership that the applicant should also be a member of the S. A. F. President Bertermann stated that this has resulted in eighty-four retailers joining the S. A. F. At the annual meeting at Boston August 19, the reports of President Irwin C. Bertermann, Secretary Albert Pochelon and Treasurer W. L. Rock showed such excellent progress in the last year that they were unanimously reëlected, as was Vice-president W. F. Gude. O. J. Olson, G. E. M. Stumpp and Harry Papworth were elected directors. The meeting was the largest and most enthusiastic the organization has yet had.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

The Chrysanthemum Society of America was scheduled for a mid-year meeting at Boston this week for the purpose of completing the details for the exhibition to be held at Indianapolis in November, but President Kleinheinz was marooned in Europe and Secretary Johnson was not present. There was a conference between Vice-president Baur and C. H. Totty, chairman of the executive committee, but no general meeting was held. Mr. Baur brought word from Indianapolis that there is every prospect of a highly successful exhibition, with a large attendance of the public assured. All that seems needed is a good showing by eastern exhibitors.

SWEET PEA SOCIETY.

The American Sweet Pea Society held a brief session at Boston August 19. In the absence of President Morse and Vice-president Kirby, Ex-president Sim occupied the chair. Secretary Bunyard stated that there was no special business to come up at this time, but there was informal discussion as to the place for the annual exhibition of 1915, which is in the hands of the executive committee to be decided. New York would like to keep the show another year, as interest has just begun to awaken in the flower and a greatly improved showing is confidently expected. Newport and Bar Harbor also are candidates for the 1915 meeting place.

FLORISTS' HAIL ASSOCIATION.

The Florists' Hail Association held its annual meeting Thursday, August 20, at Boston. After passing its twenty-seventh year the association is in the best condition in its career. A larger reserve fund, totaling $33,145.76; a cash balance of $27,734.80; a larger amount of risks, and a less amount paid out in losses during the last year, all point to a successful year just closed. The total number of members is now 1,609, and the total insurance covers 39,303,677 feet of glass. During the last year an equivalent of 114,056 square feet of single thick glass was broken by hail, for which the association paid $5,702.80; and an equivalent of 197,458 square feet of double thick glass was broken, which cost the association $13,822.03. Since the organization of the association, in 1887, 2,100 losses have been adjusted, involving a total expenditure of nearly $300,000.

The officers of the association are: President, E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind.; vice-president, J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, [illegible] treasurer, Joseph Heacock, of Wyncote, Pa., and secretary, John G. E[illegible], of Saddle River, N. J. The yearly reports show:

Expenses	3,566.16
Investments	2,917.12
Miscellaneous	21.84
Balance on hand	27,734.80
Total	$53,764.75

The rates of insurance, which now are fixed each year, were continued the same as for the last year, at 6 cents for double thick glass and 15 cents for single thick. Officers were reëlected as follows:

President—E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind.

Vice-President—J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.

Treasurer—Joseph Heacock, Wyncote, Pa.

Secretary—John G. Esler, Saddle River, N. J.

Directors—J. A. Valentine, Denver; Samuel Murray, Kansas City; C. L. Washburn, Chicago.

GARDENERS' ASSOCIATION.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the National Association of Gardeners, held in Boston, August 19, it was decided to hold the next annual meeting of the organization in Philadelphia in December.

In the afternoon of August 19 the association held its usual summer meeting with a good attendance, a number of papers pertaining to craftsmanship being presented.

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of the American Gladiolus Society was held at Boston, August 19, with a larger attendance than for several years. Nearly the whole afternoon was spent in the discussion of the society's welfare. A committee, headed by Montague Chamberlain, was appointed to revise the by-laws. In view of the next meeting being in San Francisco, the executive committee was instructed to consider and act on a proposition also to hold a show somewhere in the east. An hour or more was spent in a fruitless attempt to draw a line between amateur and professional growers, and to get the question out of the way, it finally was referred to the committee on new by-laws. The officers and committees all reported progress but nothing of special moment. The society declined to select an official organ. The following new slate of officers was elected:

President—Charles Franklin Fairbanks, amateur, Clinton, Mass.

Treasurer—A. E. Kunderd, Goshen, Ind.

Secretary—H. Youell, Syracuse, N. Y.

Executive Committee—I. S. Hendrickson, T. A. Havemeyer and Maurice Fuld.

Nomenclature and Registration Committee—A. C. Beal, A. C. Hoddes and L. M. Gage.

The executive committee was instructed to appoint the vice-president, selecting a man near San Francisco if possible. In the evening, President-elect Fairbanks gave a dinner at the Parker House to the other officers and some of the members.

The society never has staged so large or fine an exhibition as it did at Boston. Its members were to be credited with practically all the cut flowers in the hall, the brightest feature of the exhibition. The quality was finer than usual and the staging was better. In the competitive open classes under the society's management, the following awards were made:

Twenty-five spikes, Mrs. Francis King—S. E. Spencer, Woburn, Mass., first.

Twenty-five spikes, Chicago White—C. W. Brown, Ashland, Mass., first.

Twelve Black Beauty—Madison Cooper, Calcium, N. Y., first.

Twelve Golden Queen—H. E. Meader, Dover, N. H., first.

Twelve Michigan—Madison Cooper, first.

Best six white—C. F. Fairbanks, Clinton, Mass., first, on Europa.

Best six pink—T. A. Havemeyer, New York, first, on Panama.

Best six yellow—T. A. Havemeyer, first, on Schwaben.

Best six blue or lavender—T. A. Havemeyer, first, on Baydenia.

Best six red—C. W. Brown, first, on Amaryllis.

Best six any other color—T. A. Havemeyer, first, on General Langlois.

Collection of ten varieties—John Lewis Childs, Floral Park, N. Y., first.

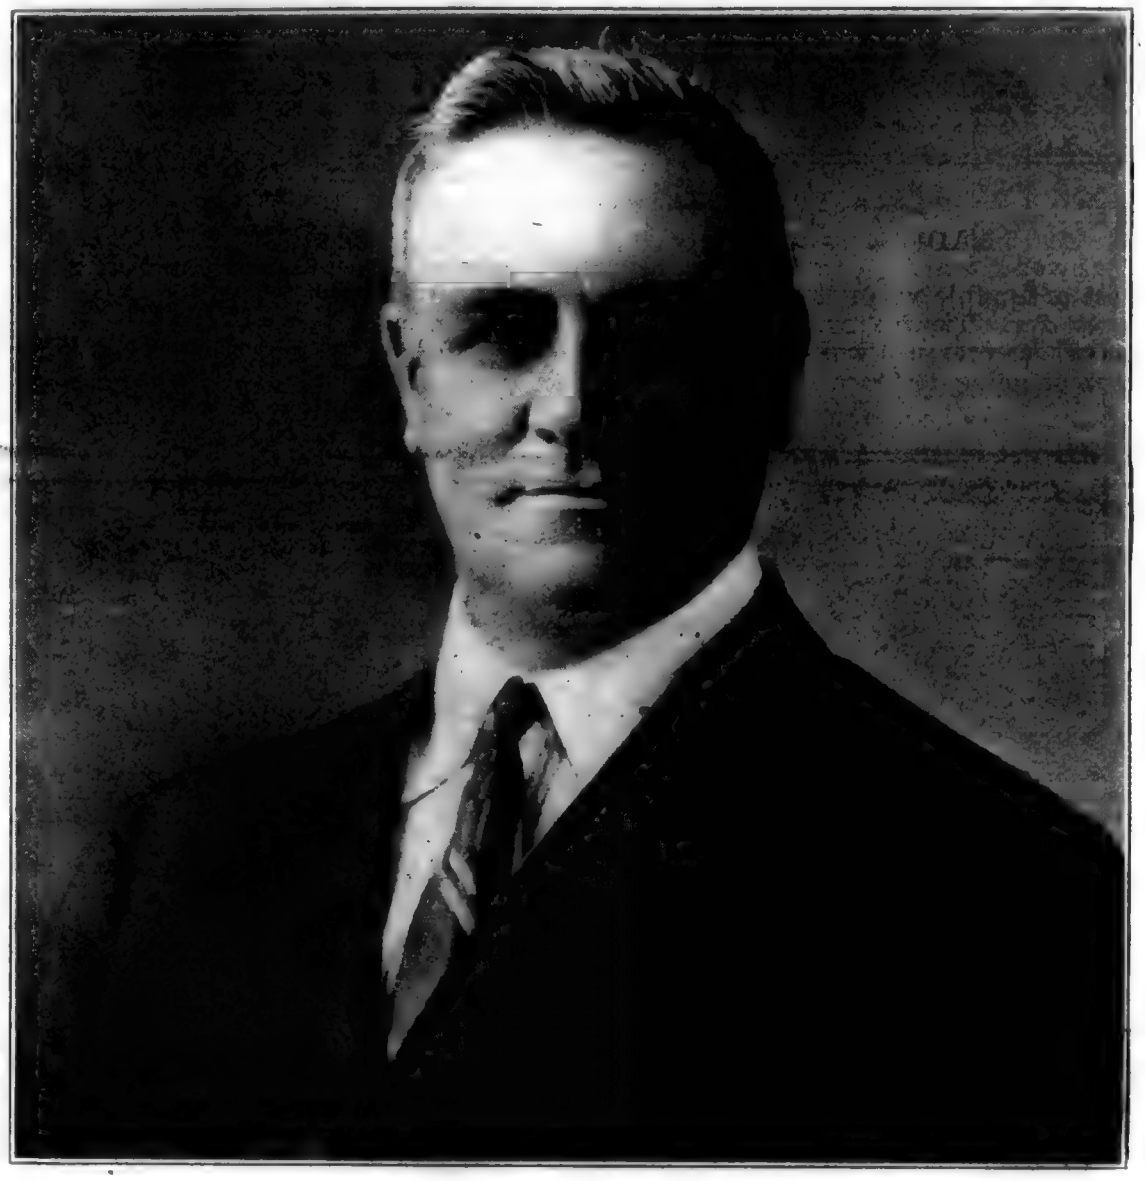
Twenty-five spikes, any white—Jacob Thomann & Sons, Rochester, N. Y., on Rochester White.

Best white seedling—Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y., first.

Best yellow seedling—H. E. Meader, first.

Best pink seedling—Eugene N. Fisher, Boston, first.

Silver cup for largest and best collection of pink gladioli—John Lewis Childs, first.



Best red not previously exhibited—Arthur Cowee, first, with Mrs. H. Reeves.

Corsage bouquet of gladioli—Arthur Cowee, first.

Basket of gladioli arranged for effect—Arthur Cowee, first.

Best display and arrangement of gladioli—Arthur Cowee, first; C. F. Fairbanks, second.

In the classes open only to amateurs T. A. Havemeyer took four prizes; Thomas Coggan two, and A. A. Rosin one; while C. F. Fairbanks won the silver medal for largest and best display.

William J. Kennedy.
(President of Boston Gardeners' and Florists' Club.)

ROSE GARDENS AT WASHINGTON.

[The following is the report of Wm. F. Gude, chairman of the committee on rose gardens at the national capital, presented at the Boston convention, August 19, 1914.]

The committee has been actively at work, coöperating with the officials of the United States government, having the rose garden laid out and getting nearly fifty per cent of it planted. You will remember the conditions on which this garden is granted: That the plants and labeling should be furnished free, without cost to the government, by this society or members thereof, after which the Agricultural Department will do the planting and care for same. While the garden has only been in existence about four months, over 300 varieties of roses are already growing nicely.

The rose garden is located almost in the center of the 400-acre farm used by the United States Department of Agriculture as an experimental station for everything pertaining to horticulture and floriculture, and while it is known as Arlington Farms, it is only about ten minutes' ride from the center of the city of Washington, easy of access for anyone interested.

The committee feels gratified at the progress made and indulges the hope that before our next annual convention the entire two acres will be planted and the decorative work for the making of an ornamental as well as a test garden will be completed.

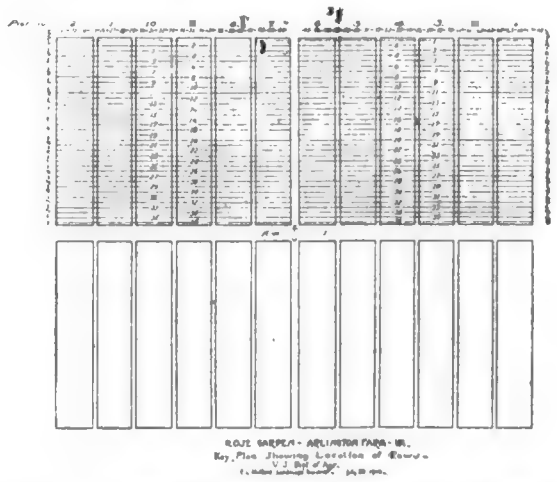
It is needless for the committee to go into details, as the largest part of the work, laying out and planting the garden, has been under the direct care of C. L. Mulford, landscape gardener, Department of Agriculture, a member of this society, who has kindly drafted a report of the work, with the number of varieties of roses planted, giving a key to the whole situation, all of which is attached hereto, and I ask that it be included as a part hereof.



It has been my pleasure to work with many committees of the S. A. F. in the past, but never have I worked with more willing, faithful committeemen than those in the matter of rose gardens at the national capital.

Mention must here be made of Robert Pyle, of West Grove, Pa., who, in his enthusiasm for the welfare of the project, made several trips to Washington and rendered wonderful help toward getting the garden started. Special thanks are due Prof. Corbett, Dr. Van Vleet and Mr. Steubenrauch, of the Department of Agriculture, all of whom rendered valuable assistance.

The committee asks that anyone having roses not yet listed in the garden at Arlington Farms, Va., contribute such for the general good of the rosarians throughout the country. From our experience in the past we feel that the wants of the rose garden need only be made known and the stock will be forthcoming at the proper time.

The report of Mr. Mulford is as follows:

"As a member of the committee on rose gardens of the S. A. F. and also as a member of the American Rose Society, I wish to tell you the rose garden has been well started in the last spring. Three hundred and thirty-six lots of roses have been planted, including 309 varieties. For the most part they are doing well and the garden looks quite promising. Only one-half of the garden was laid off this year. This was made into twelve beds capable of accommodating eventually seventy-two varieties a bed. The initial plantings were mostly only thirty-six varieties to a bed, but with twelve plants of a kind. Turf walks are to be the background. These are now being sown. The rose garden is to be surrounded by a trellis six feet high for the training of climbing roses, provided at appropriate points with eight-foot posts and crosspieces over the adjoining walk for the more vigorous climbers, and shorter posts for the pillar roses. It is planned also to have pergolas at the corners of the garden and special decorative features at the four entrances. At the most commanding point on its main walk a low mound will be raised, from which to view the garden. On this an appropriate, rose-covered shelter is planned, from which can be seen the Capitol, Washington monument and many other notable buildings in Washington, as well as the old Lee mansion, at Arlington, and the new naval radio station. Everything possible will be done to have a beautiful garden, as well as a test garden.

"Some of the growers from whom roses were expected last spring did not respond; others sent part and have signified their intention of sending the rest this fall. It will take almost as many roses as we have received to finish planting the part of the garden begun this year. When we started planting in the spring we fully expected to require some of the undeveloped half of the garden for planting this fall and next spring. We are still counting on this additional room being necessary. I am sending a list of the roses we have and a sketch of the garden by which they may be located, and hope for a continued generous support of the garden, and an increasing interest in it."

THE PRESIDENT'S ANNUAL ADDRESS

The full text of the address of Theodore Wirth, President of the Society of American Florists, delivered at the convention at Boston, August 18, 1914.

EVER since you paid me the great honor of electing me to the highest office within your gift, I have anticipated this hour, not so much to harvest the honors and privileges extended to your presiding officer as for the opportunity to express to you my deep-felt gratitude and appreciation for your kindness and good-will toward me.

My home city, Minneapolis, also bids me to extend to you again its thanks for your last year's visit. The benefits of your coming to our city have been manifold to our people, and the lessons taught us through your convention garden have taken root and will bear fruit forever after.

Our Conventions.

I hope that your coming to the country west of the Mississippi river the second time in the history of the society has convinced those who attended the last convention that the great western country is well worthy of your coming again. I also hope that the favorable reports about last year's convention will convince those who did not attend that it was no mistake to come so far west—really, the west only begins where we met last year—and if, as a national association, we want nation-wide recognition and progress, we must come west once in a while, for a twofold purpose; first, to help advance the possibilities of horticultural development, and, second, to share in the benefits of such development.

From the society's financial point of view, last year's venture can also be considered a success. The three highest returns to our treasury from our conventions have been from the convention of 1912, held in Chicago, $3,251.88; from the convention of 1913, held in Minneapolis, $2,522.40, and from the convention of 1911, held in Baltimore, $2,258.19. The highest gain, however, that the society made in coming west was in the interest it created among our craft and the information about our western country it gave to those who attended from the east.

Let us extend our pilgrimages to all parts of the country and become a national society from a national as well as a professional point of view.

The Last Year.

The twelve months passed since we last met have been busy ones for those entrusted with the affairs of our organization. At the board of directors' meeting, held here last March, every member was present, and the many important questions pertaining to the welfare and healthful growth of the society and the many interests which it represents, were carefully considered and conscientiously acted upon. Your standing committees have also been faithful to their trusts and duties, as their reports will reveal to you.

Theodore Wirth.
(President of the Society of American Florists.)

Our Flower Shows.

I most earnestly believe that one of the most helpful agents in the advancement of our profession and the development of our interests is our flower shows. The great successful New York show of last March, held by the horticultural interests of that city, was made possible through the national flower shows held previously in Chicago, Boston and New York. We have no better means of getting next to and educating the public, our customers, to our aims, means and powers, than through such demonstrations of our skill and achievements. Those shows are the best possible advertisement of our business, and the competition and rivalry of professional skill stimulated through them is our most efficient educator and teacher. Therefore I say, let us all support our flower shows of national and local character, to the best of our ability.

George Asmus, chairman of the national flower show committee, reports quite promising prospects for the next national flower show, to be held in Philadelphia in the spring of 1916, and I wish to extend to him and his coworkers the society's thanks for their faithful and successful work, and congratulations for progress achieved.

School Gardens.

It is eminently proper that we should try to exercise some influence outside of our professional boundaries, or in other words, spread the gospel of gardening among laymen and their people. Benjamin Hammond is chairman of our school gardens committee, and, as such, has tried to reach every city and village where there is a florist, in his efforts to create and stimulate an interest in school and home gardening. If but a small number of his appeals find a responsive chord, much will have been accomplished through his efforts and activity. Mr. Hammond's enthusiasm induces me to express the wish and hope that a goodly portion of the essence of his teaching will be absorbed with profit by members of the society under whose banner he is making his laudable campaign.

Gardening, under one name or another, above all, means order and cleanliness, and I have often wondered why it is that so many of our commercial establishments are such striking examples of disorder, neglect and ugliness, in place of order, neatness and attractiveness. I have seen some excellent examples of well-kept, attractive commercial establishments in the vicinity of our convention city of today, and I hope that they will bring home, to some of those in need of this reminder, the truthfulness of the saying that "we might with profit practice ourselves what we try to teach."

Tariff and Legislation.

As I am not engaged in the commercial business of our trade, I believe you will forgive me if I admit the fact that I have given no special attention to tariff and legislation as a part of my official duties. I feel that my appointees to that important committee are able, and have taken good care of the interests entrusted to their care. Our society never had a more efficient and faithful officer as chairman of any committee, of whom we could say with such propriety that he is the right man in the right place, than our friend, William F. Gude, chairman of the tariff and legislation committee and our representative in Washington, D. C., his home town. I venture to say that he has, at all times, made all the hay he could for us while the sun was shining, and that every bit of it is under a waterproof roof.

The Smith Memorial.

We should indeed do our best to erect an appropriate memorial to our beloved departed leader and friend, William Robertson Smith, to whose efforts alone is due our possession of a national charter, the only one ever granted by the United States Congress to any such organization.

W. F. Gude, chairman, reports that his committee is most favorably inclined to recommend that this memorial shall be in the form of a horticultural school or garden, conducted along more practical lines than most existing institutions of this character have so far followed. To assist in such a plan of practical education, which would surely have met with the approval of him whom we wish to honor, would indeed be the most appropriate form of tribute we could give to him and his memory.

Every horticulturist, professional and amateur, employer and employee, should willingly and readily contribute his mite towards such a worthy object. It behooves our organization to take the lead in this movement, and through united action we shall earn and receive the moral and financial support of the national government. Many progressive and influential men outside of our profession and from all parts of the country, who are also great admirers of the man whose memory we wish to perpetuate, will gladly aid us. We cannot expect to carry out so large and far-reaching an undertaking through our own resources alone, but we not only can, but must take a leading part in its launching as well as in its development. For this work we should prepare ourselves and I venture to make the following suggestions: First, that the W. R. Smith memorial committee be made a permanent standing committee, similar in appointment, service and number to the national flower show committee; second, that this committee be instructed not only to further the financial and other interests pertaining to the creation of a memorial as outlined, but that it also formulate for its own guidance a plan of work by which it would become an acceptable advisory board to the authorities under which the W. R. Smith memorial garden or school of practical horticulture would eventually be conducted; third, that the committee be requested to consider and report to the society within reasonable time the possibility and advisability of creating a professorship, to begin with, at some leading horticultural school, to be endowed by our society, whose purpose would be to inaugurate the practical methods and means of teaching we desire to have adopted at the proposed memorial school.

That we shall get the moral and active support of our national government in this or any other worthy undertaking, if we go about it in a right, business-like, progressive manner, I feel doubly assured by the ready assistance given us for the rose test garden now established on government land at Arlington Farms.

I wish it distinctly understood that my suggestions in connection with the proposed W. R. Smith school are not intended to cast the least reflection upon the efficiency of any one of the many excellent state colleges which have rendered us in the past service of inestimable value in many directions. Besides the services rendered through their regular courses of study of horticulture and its branches, they have always given us willing, efficient help through the holders of our official positions of botanist, entomologist and plant pathologist. I wish to call your special attention to the suggestions offered in the communication of Professor W. E. Freeman, plant pathologist of the University of Minnesota. His suggestions, in the main, embody the idea that we ought to inaugurate a policy of permanent constructive work in our scientific researches entrusted to those officers. I believe he is absolutely right. This work could eventually be entrusted to the staff of the proposed W. R. Smith school, which would in itself be an assurance of the carrying out of the policies suggested by Professor Freeman.

Our Convention Gardens.

I can truthfully say that in all my professional life I have never experienced more pleasure and satisfaction than in the success of our convention gardens. The willing, enthusiastic and efficient work of our Boston friends, and the support given by the progressive exhibitors represented in the outdoor plant exhibit at the last and this year's conventions, conclusively prove to me that I am not mistaken in placing the value of those gardens as secondary only to that of our flower shows.

Our trade exhibits are most valuable and are, to a great extent, the mainstay of our conventions, but I have always felt that they are a trade exhibit pure and simple, interesting and instructive only to the trade itself. They show us all progress made from year to year in everything we need in our business in all its many details. Our aims, however, should go farther. We must show ourselves, and the public as well, what we have achieved, and we must educate the latter through such appropriate exhibitions to make use of our labors, our knowledge and our experience to improve, beautify and better the home surroundings. We must show them how it can be done. Our mission must be to help them, and we cannot help them without helping ourselves.

I sincerely hope that the convention garden will become a permanent feature of our conventions, and since it is, as I believe, the adopted policy of our society to select its convention cities from its own point of view of possible advancement and benefit and not from one of offered entertainment and outside attractions, I trust that the possibilities offered by cities for such a convention garden will always be a strong factor in deciding where the convention shall be held. I believe that the present method of financing this undertaking will, in most instances, be the most feasible one, and that under all circumstances the society should assume full responsibility and control of it, financially and otherwise.

Affiliation.

I have studiously gone through the messages of my predecessors of the last twelve years and find that the problem of affiliation has been in the mind of most of them in one form or another. My personal belief is that the different kindred associations, organized for the advancement of the specialized branches of our profession to which they are devoted, are better able to attend to those interests than any appointed committee of the national society possibly could be.

Your board of directors has given this important question careful consideration, and I believe that the plan submitted through the suggested amendments to our constitution and by-laws represents the best solution of this long pending question, at least for the present. I sincerely hope that the great majority will approve the plan as presented and that the recommendation of the board of directors will be adopted.

The main object of affiliation at this time is to establish such relative and representative connections between the national society, kindred associations and clubs as will afford united action on questions of general importance, and this I believe the proposed amendments would bring about.

The International Union.

Through Leonard Barron our attention has been called to the International Union of Professional Horticulturists of Europe, organized for the purpose of protecting the interests of commercial horticulture involved in questions of tariff and other legislation, and providing for the registering and nomenclature of plants and all other matters pertaining to the advancement and pro-

ADAPTATION OF PLANTS TO SOILS

An address by Prof. George E. Stone, of Amherst, Mass., before the Society of American Florists, at the Boston convention, August 20.

THE GREATEST advance in knowledge concerning the adaptation of crops to soils has been achieved through practice and experience rather than by means of field and laboratory studies of the soil. There are many conditions aside from the surface texture which play a part in this adaptation, such as the nature of the substratum, depth of water table, etc.; and some insight into the subject may also be had by studying the distribution of plants as given in any flora. Where a region has been settled for many generations, and deforestation and agricultural practices have been carried on extensively, we find many changes in our soils and consequent modification of the flora. Some of the many factors determining the distribution of plants are complex and difficult to eliminate from other factors, and at present not enough is known about them to determine their real significance.

Soil Changes.

On soils which only a half century ago supported certain types of vegetation we now find an entirely different flora owing to changes in the nature of the soil, lack of humus contributing largely to this modification. Some plants, such as the Canada thistle, were more common forty years ago in some locations than at present, while some other plants which have been growing for some time under cultivation have recently escaped and become pests. It would naturally be supposed that this is due to a change in the environment, such as soil conditions or source of seed. But whether there is in plants, as in races of men, a tendency to aggressiveness which sometimes unaccountably breaks out although usually lying dormant, we will not venture to say; still there is some evidence to support such a theory.

Some plants are confined to bogs, some to sandy soils, and others to heavy, compact soils, and many are adapted to a great variety of conditions. Others are limited to salt marshes, and still others to territory within a few miles of the seacoast. Elevation, humus and soil moisture play an important role in plant distribution, and some plants are restricted by what is termed "seed habit," the seeds of certain species retaining their germinating capacity for some time and others for only a few weeks or even days. For instance, the seeds of the willow, poplar, alder and other species native to wet locations remain viable only a few days or weeks, while others will do so for ten to twenty-five or more years. Seeds with a limited term of viability must therefore find suitable conditions for germination during this time, while the others can afford to await their opportunity.

Moisture Plays Part.

Most garden seeds require a minimum of two to three per cent of soil moisture to germinate at all, and for the best germination a higher percentage is required; therefore during dry seasons the seeds of some crops fail to catch. Purslane and pigweed seed, however, will germinate with a small amount of soil moisture and flourish when more desirable plants will not; therefore during periods of drought we find purslane overrunning gardens and pigweed completely monopolizing newly sown lawns.

The percentage of air in soils plays its part in plant adaptation, as do also the chemical constituents and biological characters. The soil texture or mechanical properties, which are inseparably connected with the air and moisture of the soil, together with the capillarity, etc., are also important factors in crop production and plant distribution. It should be stated, however, that the specific effect on plant distribution of any one of the factors mentioned is not known; still, a great deal is known concerning the effects of chemical constituents on plants, much more study having been given to this subject. Soil differs materially in its chemical composition and mechanical properties, and the configuration of the plant is greatly modified by the different types. Even in a small territory there are characteristic variations in the soil which are of sufficient importance to justify specialization in farming.

Lettuce Soils.

The river valleys furnish typical soils adapted to the growth of special crops, the meteorological conditions of these localities also emphasizing the individual character of the crops. The coarse and more friable soils of the Atlantic sea coast (truck soils) are light and porous and are used largely for such market garden crops as lettuce, cucumbers, tomatoes, radishes, etc. The soil characteristic of the Boston district is admirably adapted to truck farming, being quite loose and easily worked. It is especially adapted to head lettuce, which is grown more skillfully and successfully in that region than anywhere else. It is characterized by a predominance of the coarser particles and a relatively small amount of the finer materials such as silts and clay. Except in some few localities the interior soils are not well adapted to the growth of head lettuce; therefore the curly or open type is grown in the heavier and more compact soils of the middle west. In all its stages head lettuce requires a loose textured soil for perfect development. These soils are manured heavily year after year, and in the greenhouse are never changed, and the large amount of organic matter furnished by the decomposed horse manure renders the soil even better adapted to this particular crop.

A more compact soil, such as that of the Connecticut valley, is characterized by the large amount of fine sand and silt. This soil has long been devoted to the growth of tobacco, onions and cucumbers and, to some extent, melons. It contains little organic matter, since commercial fertilizers are used entirely. The soil may even vary somewhat in its texture in a limited region, and this variation will alone affect the quality and value of a tobacco crop to a considerable degree, and onions to a less extent. The warmer, coarser textured soils are well adapted to melon culture, the crop growing vigorously and maturing early, with less liability to infection from blights, etc.

Asparagus is grown largely in some

A COMPLIMENT TO THE TRADE

"The highest conception of intensive horticulture has been realized by florists and market gardeners, and one reason why they do not receive more help from the experiment station is because their knowledge of plants and handling them far exceeds that of the men devoting their time to scientific research. When these workers begin to realize the great degree of skill possessed by the florists and market gardeners, perhaps they may be able to suggest some ideas that will be of value."

sections in dry, coarse soils, having little water-retaining capacity, although not especially adapted to these conditions. Finer textured soils are much superior for asparagus, which sometimes yields at the rate of $1,000 per acre. Besides, in light, sandy soils this crop suffers much more severely from rust than in the finer textured soils.

Florists' Soil.

The florist must also consider his soil seriously to obtain the best results. The potting bed soil is usually a coarse soil, well supplied with organic matter to insure looseness of texture. Most plants respond more quickly in a loose textured soil than in one of fine texture, because more air can be supplied to the roots, although seeds germinate better

REPORT ON SMITH MEMORIAL.

[The following is the report of Wm. F. Gude, chairman of the committee on the Wm. R. Smith memorial, presented at the Boston convention, August 19, 1914.]

Since our last meeting, in Minneapolis, your committee has been at work on preliminaries for the Wm. R. Smith memorial at the national capital.

A number of ideas have been advanced, such as a memorial building, with school of botany attached; a botanical collection, or a memorial conservatory in the new botanical gardens. A bill is now before Congress in reference to moving the botanical gardens, long since inadequate, to a new and more spacious location of 400 acres in Rock Creek park. It is the hope of your committee that when this change is made, which will be no doubt in the near future, to Rock Creek park or other suitable place, we can secure from the government an appropriation for a suitable memorial in the new gardens.

Frequent questions have been asked your committee as to the kind of memorial to be built. Up to the present time, the committee is unable to answer. After mature thought, it has occurred to the committee that the first thing to do was to see how much money could be raised. The size of the fund, to a large extent, would determine the character and shape of the memorial that should be erected by this society. With that end in view, your committee has sent out to every member of this organization on record a letter setting forth our object and asking contributions. This letter has been followed by a postal card reminder. The campaign for funds is now being waged, and your committee is happy to report that from east and west, and north and south, contributions are coming in.

We have cash in bank to date, August 17, $1,396.60 and pledges amounting to $750.

If agreeable to this society, we will continue the campaign of securing money and pledges for the memorial, so that by the time the executive meeting will be held next winter we may know how much money we have to work on and with the hope that this committee will be able to recommend some practical form for the Smith memorial to take, at that date.

The pledges received up to August 17 are as follows:

Florists' Exchange, N. Y.	$100
Hammond, Benjamin, Fishkill-on-Hudson, N. Y.	100
Heacock Co., Joseph, Wyncote, Pa.	100
Manda, W. A., South Orange, N. J.	100
Papworth, Harry, New Orleans, La.	25

Smith, P. J., New York, N. Y.	$100
Vaughan, J. C., Chicago, Ill.	75
Vincent, Richard, Jr., White Marsh, Md.	100
Total	$750

Contributions to the cash fund have been received from the following:

AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

[The following is the report of Wm. F. Gude, Washington representative of the S. A. F., presented at the Boston convention, August 19, 1914.]

Another milestone has been left behind in our national organization since we met in annual convention at Minneapolis. I am glad to state that there has been little of importance for your Washington representative to do this last twelvemonth. This leads me to believe that S. A. F. matters are in good shape throughout the country.

Among some of the important changes at the national capital which directly affect our business and organization was the resignation of Prof. B. T. Galloway, the assistant secretary of agriculture, an honored member of this organization and a friend and willing helper in everything that was best for horticultural and floricultural interests. After many years of active work in the Department of Agriculture, Prof. Galloway resigned to take up his duties at Cornell University, but he assures us he will still be willing to aid us in our noble work.

Geo. W. Hess has been appointed superintendent of the United States botanical gardens, Washington, D. C. Mr. Hess is an ardent worker and a liberal minded man, a friend of the S. A. F. We have in him a splendid ally in our work at the capital.

The rose garden under the auspices of the S. A. F., spoken of in my last report, I am happy to state, is now an accomplished fact and a detailed report will be furnished by the committee on rose gardens. This garden is located in the midst of the 400 acres of Arlington Farms, adjacent to the national capital, on the line of the proposed 2,700-mile highway passing through Arlington Farms, from Quebec, Canada, to Miami, Fla.

Many members of this and kindred societies have called at the office in Washington during the last year, to all of whom we extend the hand of good fellowship. We hope that during the coming year the national capital may be favored with many more callers, members of this and other societies.

LADIES' AUTOMOBILE TOUR.

A special entertainment was provided for the visiting ladies August 20, seventy automobile loads of them being taken for an all-day trip of nearly 100 miles through historic Boston and along the famous north shore.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

tection of all branches of horticulture.

Your board of directors recommends that the S. A. F. apply for membership in this organization; the expense of membership at the time of consideration was $10 per year, but the fee will eventually be increased. The board feels that the union is worthy and entitled to our support and that sooner or later we might derive benefit from such association. Each association member of the union is entitled to be represented by two delegates, and it is proposed that the S. A. F. be represented by proxy or by such members of our society as may be in Europe at the time the union meets in congress, which would entail little expense, if any, on our society. I trust that the recommendation of the board of directors will meet with your approval.

Some of the vice-presidents have made use of the financial aid granted them through a small appropriation to defray the expenses of a campaign in behalf of the society. I hope that the results will prove satisfactory.

I wish to repeat Ex-president Farquhar's excellent suggestion, that our vice-presidents will be able to exercise the greatest influence by calling meetings in their respective territories and by addressing such gatherings in behalf of our society on general topics tending to advance our aims and interests.

Financially our society is in a flourishing condition, and under the watchful and experienced guidance of our most efficient treasurer, William F. Kasting, our treasury will grow in proportion to our numerical strength and progressive policies. We must not, however, let our prosperity lead us into untimely or, from a financial standpoint, premature undertakings which will infringe on our capital or overtax our income. We should build up our treasury, which is our working fund, and keep it intact so that eventually the income from the capital will suffice to finance our undertakings.

Our first president, to whom all who have known him well refer with love, profound respect and admiration, was a gardener, and as I am also a gardener, I feel greatly honored and am exceedingly proud of the distinction conferred upon me in calling me to the same office which he so ably filled for the first three years of this society's existence. Since you have shown me this confidence and your good will and friendship in such a marked degree, I am led to believe that you will bear with me if I make a suggestion which I fear will not meet with general favor, but which I know will find a responsive echo in the minds and hearts of many of our most progressive and liberal minded members, and which I believe will sooner or later be most seriously considered and finally adopted.

Agriculture, in its broad translation, means the cultivation of the ground for the purpose of raising food for man and beast. Horticulture stands for the cultivation of a garden with three main divisions, namely, fruit, flowers and vegetables. Every florist, worthy of the name, is a horticulturist, but every horticulturist is not a florist.

Considering the broadened interests and aims of our society of today, and the liberal, progressive policies which it is bound to follow in the carrying out of the plans which at the present time are its principal aims and tendencies, I am of the opinion that the present name of our society is a misnomer, because we really are "The American Society of Professional Horticulturists." Ex-president Stewart, in his message of 1907, quoted Andrew Jackson Downing, who said, "Horticulture is the refined essence of agriculture, agriculture being the basis of all wealth." Brothers of our noble calling, why not make all followers of our profession feel welcome to our ranks and within them by calling ourselves what we are, horticulturists? I hope to live to see this come about.

Wherever we go to hold our annual meetings, we meet the real workers, and Boston is not only no exception, but a notable example of what hard work and efficiency, together with harmony and unity of purpose, can accomplish. Long before we leave Boston we shall all realize what our friends here have done for us for a successful convention and for our comfort and pleasure.

In conclusion, I wish to thank my fellow officers, the board of directors and the Boston workers of this convention, for their splendid work and cooperation. The assistance given me by our secretary, John Young, made my labors a pleasure and not a burden, and I wish to say that it would be poor business policy to dispense with the services of our present secretary and our treasurer as long as we can induce them to accept and retain their respective offices.

Wm. R. Nicholson.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. E. A. Fetters.

The numerous friends of E. A. Fetters, the Detroit retailer, will regret to learn of the sudden death of his wife, who was drowned off the Canadian shore Sunday, August 16. Mr. Fetters and his family have a summer cottage on the Canadian shore, and Sunday morning Mr. and Mrs. Fetters and their son-in-law went out fishing on Lake St. Clair. About noon a squall upset their small boat, throwing the three occupants into the water. Mr. Fetters, himself a good swimmer, made several attempts to save his wife, but finally became exhausted and nearly lost his own life. After clinging to the overturned boat for three hours, both he and his son-in-law were finally rescued. Mrs. Fetters was 45 years of age. She was charitably inclined, and the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Detroit Florists' Club, which was organized last winter to carry on charitable work and of which Mrs. Fetters was chairman, was the outcome of her efforts to bring the wives and sisters of the Detroit florists into closer relationship.

H. S.

William H. Diehl.

William H. Diehl, for the last eleven years with Penn the Florist, of Boston, and a competent decorator and designer, was drowned at Sebago lake, Me., August 13, while fishing for bass with a friend. He had hooked a large bass and, in trying to land it, fell overboard. Being a competent swimmer, he started to swim ashore, but was taken with cramps and sank within 200 feet of land.

The deceased was well known and respected in florists' circles and was 45 years of age. He was unmarried and leaves two brothers and two sisters to mourn his loss.

The Review brings results.

THE nature of the florists' business is such that the word "credit" should not be employed. A florist should open only "accommodation accounts," the name implying that they are to be settled monthly.

THE florist who gives credit without, or in spite of, information as to the standing of the buyer is the same one who is lax in his attention to collections and who becomes peevish when asked to pay his own bills.

FLORISTS, as a rule, do not rely on banks for capital. Instead of borrowing money to clean up bills, they let the creditors wait. There is, nevertheless, a distinct advantage in paying promptly and regularly for all purchases and keeping one's obligations all in one place, especially a place whence will come a word of caution if they mount too high.

THE Review always has held it to be the duty of the wholesale branch of the trade to protect the retailers, and this paper has from the beginning steadily declined subscriptions when offered from those not in the business. It is impossible, however, to make a hard and fast rule, since so many florists begin in a small way as a side line, some of the big specialty people still being engaged part time in other trades. Consequently it is up to every seller to decide for himself who is and who is not entitled to trade prices. Unfortunately, the easiest rule is that anyone who buys in trade quantities may have trade prices. This should not always be the case.

How many retail florists will be willing to carry in stock some of each variety of rose the market will afford this winter?

WITH steadily rising costs of doing business, the average wholesale florist soon will find himself face to face with the necessity of either raising his commission or getting his money quicker and with greater certainty.

IN the sale of non-perishable articles, like jewelry, it usually is the rule for wholesalers to decline to deal at any price with those not recognized as in the trade. But where perishable commodities are handled there frequently is a disposition to take any money that looks good. It is the wrong attitude.

GUESSWORK.

There are plenty of men in every line of business who are merely guessing at what they are doing. They guess at the cost of doing business. They guess at what price they ought to pay, and guess what price they ought to sell at. They guess where the money is that they should have made.

They know that they are either losing or making money, but they don't know how or why. Their information about the business is neither exact nor specific; it is not the kind of knowledge on which a sound business can be built.

EFFECT OF WAR ON PLANTS.

Just before the Boston convention, J. D. Eisele, vice-president of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., talked informally with friends on the new conditions of the commercial plant market. While Mr. Eisele spoke to his friends only, his knowledge of the subject and his sound judgment made what he said worthy of careful writing and of thoughtful reading.

"The stock of plants in this country," said Mr. Eisele, "is so large today that there is every reason to believe that it will supply what is needed throughout the season except in certain cases. The loss of the Belgian azaleas will be seriously felt, as there seems little probability that they will reach the country this fall in time for forcing for Easter. Bay trees also appear likely to be missing at the usual time. In fact, farseeing buyers are already taking the bay trees left over from this season, so as to have them next spring. Quite a number of hardy perennials, such as pyrethrums, Dielytra spectabilis and valley clumps, come—or probably will not come—from Holland, where they also grow varieties of hardy roses well. On the other hand, there are enough kentias in this country now to carry us through this season without drawing upon Europe. The chief anxiety in regard to kentias lies in this year's crop of seed, which is believed to be held somewhere in Hamburg, where it is likely to remain for a while. Should this be the case, the failure to sow this crop of seed in time would be felt severely in the future.

"It is not likely that prices of our commercial plants will advance in this country as a result of the war abroad. They would advance in Belgium, for instance, automatically. The large grower would say, for instance, that 5-franc plants would now be 7½ francs each. They would buy up the 5-franc plants of the smaller grower at perhaps 6 francs and then the price would become 7½ francs for the time being. Nothing of the sort will occur here.

"We have been following Archibald's letters in the Ledger. He is well informed and impartial. His prediction that the war will last ten or eleven months and that it will take a year more to reëstablish normal business conditions is interesting." Phil.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

CHICAGO.

The Market.

There has been some improvement within the week, but not enough so that it does more than indicate that the summer is drawing to a close. There still is more stock than is required for the demand. Chicago never has had, in August, anything like such large supplies of flowers as have been coming in this month and there has been no corresponding increase in the retail outlet.

If it were not for the burden of the gladiolus receipts the market might be in a fair condition. There are so many gladioli, and they are so extremely cheap, that retailers are tempted to use them wherever possible, to the exclusion of other flowers, which, although they also are cheap, still cost more than the gladioli. The gladiolus never was better than it has been of late. Some good local showers have been of much benefit, but even the best stock sells slowly and at lower prices than ever before were known in this market. The counters never are clear. None of the wholesalers tries to pull in shipments of this flower, and many turn them away. Large as is the supply, evidently a little encouragement would result in much heavier shipments. What the effect will be next year, nobody knows; certainly the returns this year will not stimulate the demand for bulbs.

The gladiolus is the principal outdoor flower just now. Asters are not so plentiful as they usually have been at this date. A few growers are cutting first-class stock in considerable quantity, but many others have nothing of salable quality. Even in the face of the overloaded market good asters have sold well, because there were so few of them. On the other hand, many thousands have been thrown away this

We Never Lose Faith in the Future of Our Business

OUR ESTABLISHMENT affords the grower of good stock the best means for securing adequate returns for his labor—and the assembling of the product of dozens of skilled growers on our counters every day makes our house the most satisfactory source of supply any buyer can have.

The steady annual growth of our business, even in an off year, proves we are on the right road.

In our experience it is better to give a man more than he expects than to have him disappointed after extravagant claims.

But, really, relying on Amling isn't a matter of experiment at all—many do it, both growers and buyers, and among them some of the shrewdest and most successful men in the trade. Our prosperity—indeed, our very existence—depends upon the fact that those who sell or buy through us make money by so doing. It has and it does pay others to rely on Amling—it will pay you. At least, investigate.

Our facilities we consider to be the best in Chicago.

Our business is large enough to warrant our maintaining the best possible equipment for handling cut flowers and dispatching orders promptly, carefully packed. If we knew of any improvement which could be made in our equipment—or of more capable men than we employ—we should let nothing stand in the way of improving our service.

In the new season now at hand we shall relax no effort—we want additional business and shall seek to merit the continued patronage of everyone who gives us a trial.

Our price list appears on this page of The Review each week. It quotes everything seasonable in Cut Flowers and Greens. Watch it.

summer because so poor the trade would not take them at any price. At present, however, even poor asters are selling at good prices compared to the quality. Field-grown carnations are somewhat more plentiful and of somewhat improved quality.

There will be no shortage of roses this summer; the fall crops already are coming on. Beauties never have been so abundant as this summer, and roses are much more plentiful than usual at this date. The market never had so great a variety of roses as it has now and the quality of the stock is excellent, though really long stems are scarce.

There begins to be a little better demand for cattleyas, although it does not take much stock to satisfy it. Valley is selling steadily and already there is a reduction in supply; the holders of cold storage pips are reducing the numbers put in sand, with the evident purpose of making their supply go as far as it will in case the new crop does not leave Germany.

Lilies never have cut so much figure in the market during the summer as has been the case this year. Giganteums have been in large supply practically every day since Easter and rubrums never have been grown so heavily as this year. Auratum, on the other hand, does not show an increase in supply equal to that of the other varieties. Some growers have no auratums at all this year, but any wholesaler who needs them for an order has no trouble in finding the stock.

The situation in greens shows little change from week to week. Asparagus strings are little seen, and seldom called for. Smilax is equal to requirements; the growers appear to all get this article ready for market at about the same time, but it is not produced in as large quantities as a few years ago. Adiantum is in light request this season. Ferns, of course, are abundant. The jobbers are beginning to consider the storage problem; many of them are contracting for smaller supplies than usual.

Retailers' Outing.

A boat trip, conducted by the Retail Florists' Association, down the drainage canal, through the locks to Joliet, and return, was enjoyed by its members and their friends, August 18. The boat left the Clark street bridge at 9:30 a. m., and a stop at Thirty-first and Western avenue was made to pick up members who found it more convenient to come on board at that point. Music and dancing were enjoyed by those who cared for them. Refreshments were plentiful and no effort was spared to make the trip one to be remembered. A stop-over at Joliet permitted an inspection of the penitentiary, and on their return all agreed that the outing was a great success.

improves the appearance of the houses, besides prolonging the life of them. American Beauties and the newer varieties of roses are the predominating crops here.

Various Notes.

John Poehlmann does not change his opinion of the Mrs. Russell rose; he has said all summer that the variety is a sterling acquisition to the list. He says the one bench of plants grown last year did good work by supplying propagating material that gave 80,000 young plants, worth far more than the winter cut of flowers would have been.

For various reasons the party from Chicago to the convention was the smallest in many years. Two special cars were attached to the Lake Shore train that left at 8 p. m. August 16, the afternoon of Monday being spent at Niagara Falls. The reservations of berths numbered thirty-two, including those from the west. Many had, however, gone ahead. President Wirth

While the death of a prominent citizen makes a big bunch of business for florists, N. J. Wietor says he never considers such an event as in favor of the trade; he would prefer to see the wealthy gentleman live and keep on buying flowers through many years. Mr. Wietor looks at the war the same way; while there may be some temporary gain for growers who do not depend on imported stock, he would prefer to see things go along in their accustomed way.

A. Lange favors Sunday closing for the downtown retail stores. Felix Reichling says that Sunburst is the best seller of all the roses Peter Reinberg is growing. Such good results were obtained last season that the planting was largely increased this year and Mr. Reichling reports that no other rose has been in such steady demand through August.

Miss Charlotte Paradise is again at her desk, which she has occupied seven years in the office of A. L. Vaughan & Co., after a fortnight's outing. Wm. Johnson is in charge of the shipping during Mr. Vaughan's absence at the convention.

fare, and J. H. McNeilly has two places where he combines the sale of candies, ice cream and flowers.

This is the first year since A. T. Pyfer assumed the management of the Chicago Carnation Co. that he has not attended the S. A. F. convention. This season he not only has to look after the Joliet establishment, but he has the financial responsibility for the new firm of Pyfer & Olsem.

Klehm's Nurseries is this week cleaning up the last of the June cut of peonies. They have kept wonderfully well, although the tail end of the crop, marketed in the last fortnight, scarcely would do for anything but funeral work. Kyle & Foerster say that peonies have sold as well as anything else during July and August. It would have been possible to clean them up sooner, but Mr. Klehm wished to experiment with the last few hundreds of dozens to see how long they would keep and how the market would take them.

C. G. Anderson, manager of the plant department of Poehlmann Bros. Co., has returned to Morton Grove after a pleasant vacation in Wisconsin.

Ove Gnatt, the perpetuator of natural foliages, was a visitor from Hammond, Ind., last week. He views the war with great equanimity.

The members of the firm of Zech & Mann are both at the convention this week, leaving Ollie Zech and Fred Ottenbacher in charge of the store. Messrs. Zech and Mann will vacation a bit after the trade gathering.

With gladioli so cheap, John Mangel keeps the interior of his plate glass auto decorated with them for advertising purposes. The car looks like a circus wagon going down the street.

O. Johnson, of the Batavia Greenhouse Co., says that only one-fourth the Beauty plants are being cut from, the other three-fourths being run dry for a later crop.

Frank Oechslin is concerned over the question of the supply of azaleas this year. He imports a larger number of plants than any other grower in this locality and conditions in Belgium, from newspaper reports, do not seem encouraging.

Joe Pollworth, who joined the A. L. Randall staff August 1, says he has greatly enjoyed getting back into the florists' supply business after having been engaged in other lines for three years.

C. W. McKellar says that he has at last got rid of the carpenters, plasterers and painters who have shared his new country home ever since he moved in.

John P. Degnan, of Winterson's Seed Store, comments that a number of growers have bought Roman hyacinth bulbs believing that the flowers will soon be in unusual demand as a substitute for valley.

Mrs. P. S. Peterson, 70 years of age, widow of the founder of the Peterson Nursery, is ill in Ravenswood hospital.

E. C. Amling and F. S. Webb, manager of the Wholesale Florists' Credit Association, attended the meeting of the creditors of the H. A. Fisher Co., at Kalamazoo, August 14.

Mrs. S. Linden will open her new store at 828 East Forty-seventh street August 22. She has decided to sell her other stand, believing two stores will prove too much to manage.

Fritz Bahr and four children are on a circle tour of the east, being in Boston this week.

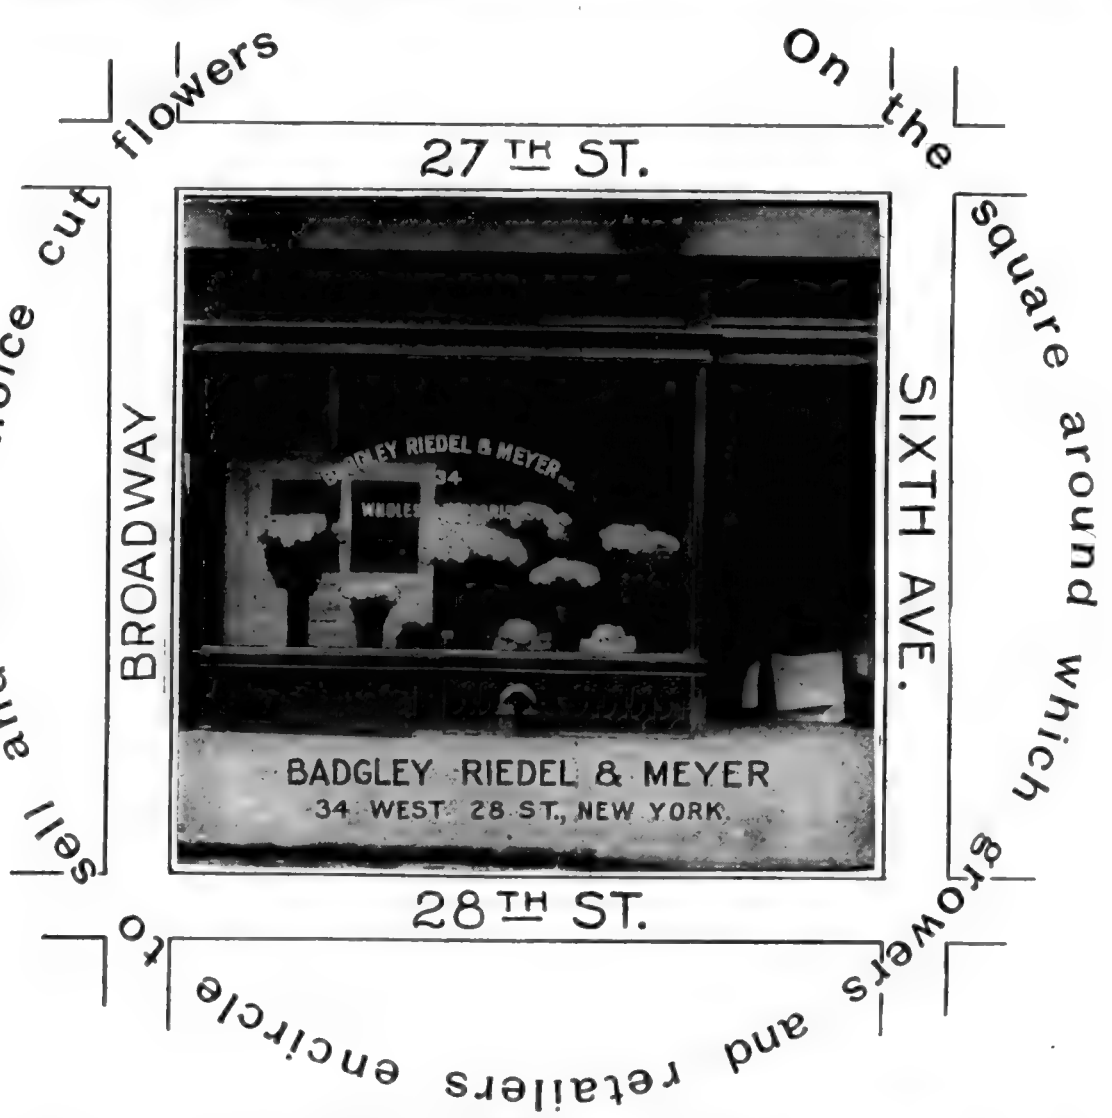
Robert Karlstrom, representing W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., spent several days here last week.

ST. LOUIS, MO.



The Market.

There is little change, if any, in market conditions as last reported. While the retail end has been quiet, there are indications of some improvements, although funeral work has been about the only business done this summer. In looking over the stock coming in daily at the different wholesale houses, I found the quality of flowers improving, due to the cooler nights we have been having for the last ten days. Outdoor stock, too, is looking much better of late, though we have had no rain to speak of. Roses are in big crop just now. Beauties are quite plentiful and there is an abundance of Killarneys, Ward, Russell and Kaiserin. Carnations that can be classed as good are practically out of the market and the few coming in find a good sale. Asters are in heavy supply, but most of them are of poor quality. There are, however, enough of the good quality to supply the demand. The average price for good stock is about $3 per hundred. Gladioli continue to arrive in heavy supply and are offered at low prices. The demand has been for home-grown stock. Valley seems none too plentiful. Everblooming tuberoses are coming in, being late this year, owing to the dry summer. A heavy cut in these is promised. Easter lilies of fine quality can be had daily at $8 per hundred. Fancy ferns and asparagus have had a good demand of late.

Club Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Florists' Club was held August 13, with the Connon Floral Co., Webster Groves. This was the first outdoor meeting of the year and the attendance was splendid. The meeting was held on the lawn in front of the old home of the late Chas. Connon, who was elected president of the club thirty-seven years ago. President Pilcher opened the meeting, with all his staff of officers in attendance.

After the regular business had been disposed of, the committees were called upon for final reports. R. J. Windler, state vice-president of the S. A. F., reported on all matters pertaining to the S. A. F. and said he was sorry so small a representation from St. Louis would be at the convention at Boston. He was delegated to report anything of interest, especially regarding affiliation, so that a final vote may be taken on this important question.

The election of officers for the ensuing year then took place and resulted as follows: President, Jules Bourdet; vice-president, W. S. Wells; secretary, J. J. Beneke, and treasurer, W. C. Smith. For a 3-year term as trustee, W. A. Rowe was elected. The other trustees, holding over, are Frank Windler, two years, and Wm. Ossick, one year. This set of officers should make things lively for the coming fall and winter meetings. An increased membership is looked for.

The meeting then adjourned, and the members were invited to the new home of John Connon, where there was plenty to eat, drink and smoke. An inspection of the well kept range, amounting to 25,000 feet of glass, was made. A vote of thanks was extended Mr. Connon for his entertainment and the most enjoyable afternoon spent at his place. The next meeting will take place September 10, when the newly elected officers will be installed.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The supply of roses has shortened a little. More Beauties from young stock are coming in and also some of the early flowers from other varieties. White roses continue scarce. Gladioli are overabundant. They are extremely fine and cheap. America is the only variety that sells well. Asters are in strong supply. Semple's Branching leads, with some choice stock. Easter lilies are plentiful. They go slowly. Valley is dull. Cattleyas are scarce; indeed, it is hard to get any number. The tone of the market is a little below that of a week ago.

Florists' Supplies.

A brief telegram in the general news of this paper last week chronicled the important meeting of the fourteen supply houses of Chicago, New York and Philadelphia, held in the banquet room of the Adelphia hotel, in this city, August 10. This meeting, the first in the history of the florists' supply business, was brought about by war conditions. It has occasioned much comment. Here are the views given to The Review this week by two of this city's leading business men:

Charles E. Meehan, vice-president of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., thinks that it was a great mistake for the florists' supply houses not to exhibit at Boston. Mr. Meehan believes that business will go steadily on in spite of the war, that the supplies should be drawn from every available channel in this country and that samples of these supplies should have been shown at Boston; that the failure to do so hurt the whole business, as well as discouraging the efforts of the S. A. F., increasing rather than diminishing the war scare.

Bernard Eschner, president of the M. Rice Co., believes that an exhibit at Boston was impossible in the face of existing conditions. While all the supply houses had their samples already packed for shipment to Boston, there were no reserves on hand and none likely to come. The time was too short to secure satisfactory American substitutes. Mr. Eschner hopes that this blow to imports will bring out the ingenuity and resources of the supply men to an extent that will lead to a great future in the business. No effort will be spared to get together quickly the best that this country affords, while ingenuity and skill are already at work to make substitutes that will prove acceptable.

event of the day was, of course, the glorious national game. The contest was married versus single. The single men, having no cares on their happy minds, won by a score of 11 to 1. The feature of the game was, though you might not think so from the score, the work of the opposing pitchers, Harry Eisele and William F. Lacroix, Jr., a local celebrity. Charles Marbell gave some choice vocal selections, which were much enjoyed. There was a stroll over the lilac farm, with its thousands of Rubra de Marley in every stage, from one year to seven, all in fine shape. The guests were presented to a bevy of a dozen young ladies, and dancing was suggested and carried out most successfully, Frederick Cramer carrying off the honors in the tango competition. Mr. Lacroix entertained his friends with one of his famous dinners out on the veranda. They went home on the 7 o'clock train, extremely happy boys.

The Stock at Dreer's.

They were moving the kentias in the Riverton range of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., last week, spacing the plants to get room for perfect development. They were a beautiful lot of kentias, glossy green, in all sizes. There were a surprisingly large number set aside in the reserve section, fully five houses of plants; kentias that had been ordered in the late winter or spring, mostly for September delivery, a mark of confidence to which a house may point with pleasure.

The Cocos Weddelliana range, the pride of Riverton, has taken still another step forward. The cocos have passed through the medium size into the size for specimen plants. Cocos Weddelliana have been produced this season that stood four and one-half feet high, perfect in symmetry and foliage. That is an achievement. Add to this that the cocos are equal, if not superior, to anything ever produced before at Dreer's; picture the tables filled with plants of size after size, and you can almost see the range of these graceful palms at Riverton.

Phœnix Roebelenii is more than holding its own, for now there is a story of a man who watered his phœnix thoroughly and closed his house for five weeks. When he returned his phœnix was drooping sadly, so he put it in a bathtub full of water. The next morning it was as good as ever. That story is given just as it was told by the owner of the plant; anyway, this Phœ-nix Roebelenii is a pretty tough plant.

Areca lutescens seems to be looking up again. So good a palm ought to be kept in the front rank.

The fern selection, or more properly speaking, the nephrolepis selection, has resolved itself to this: Only the best true types are grown in quantity. Bostoniensis, Scottii and elegantissima improved, these three will answer all ordinary purposes.

There is a new fern that promises well for cutting, Adiantum cuneatum California. The big cut flower men, or rather, cut fern men, are taking note of it. The fronds are green, never bronzy, and they have long stems. This color is due to the fact that the spores on the under side of the fronds are not fertile. They remain dark. Adiantum California, as it will probably be called, is reproduced from divisions.

Asparagus Madagascariensis is an attractive little fern, or small specimen plant. Its neat, compact habit and structure and dark green foliage have an added charm in orange red berries that are borne even on small plants.

Ardisia crenulata in 5-inch pots has been well grown and well berried on the Dreer place at Riverview. There are 3,200 of them in fine shape. Probably another such lot has never been grown on this side of the Atlantic.

Crotons are fast becoming a Riverview specialty. Careful selection of the best varieties only and skillful culture are putting the croton into a position of prominence.

Cannas are receiving much intelligent attention. There are some promising novelties being tried, and some hopeful looking seedlings have been raised on that place.

Mr. Ball's Kentias.

Yes, there are other plants besides kentias at Charles D. Ball's place, good plants too, and plenty of them, but the kentias so far outnumber all the others that you feel it is mainly a kentia place. And such kentias! They are so well grown that the sight of them is satisfying. You do not feel that a little this, that, or the other would make plants of those kentias. You feel as soon as you see them that they are all right. The perfect plant in each size shows its full beauty when set out by itself in the walk. The houses are so arranged with evenly grown stock, well spaced, that the effect of the fine plants is heightened. Each size of kentia is well done in both varieties, besides the further subdivisions of single and made-up plants. These made-up plants are the result of special thought on Mr. Ball's part, and his method produces excellent results. The cleanliness of the stock and the strength of the medium sizes are noticeable.

Arecas are the most important of the other plants grown. The remainder is made up of the most reliable of the decorative plants and ferns. Reliable is a word readily associated with Charles D. Ball. He has customers who have purchased their palms from him each season for thirty years. A son who has just succeeded to his father's business surprised and pleased Mr. Ball by ordering the usual lot this season.

NEW ORLEANS.

The Market.

Business since the beginning of this month, especially in pot plants, has been by no means what it ought to be. Outside of a limited sale of cut flowers and designs for various occasions, there is practically nothing doing. The war in Europe and the closing of nearly all the big ports on the other side are beginning to show their effects here. Yet there is a faint hope of the cessation of hostilities among the warring powers. Bermuda lilies, Roman hyacinths and narcissi have arrived in small shipments, and nearly all of the first-named have been planted, whereas the others are held back for planting, which begins here about the middle of September. The aster crop will soon be finished, but young stock of new and standard varieties of roses, as well as single tuberoses, are plentiful and of good quality. Chrysanthemums are doing well, due principally to the cooler weather, coupled with frequent showers of rain.

The stock of foliage and flowering plants grown here for the fall and winter trade is in quantity and quality equal, if not superior, to that of last year. The whole situation here since the outbreak of war on the other side of the Atlantic teaches us one lesson: Try your utmost to be independent in every line of our business.

Various Notes.

A recent visit to the big place of Abele Bros. found great activity and some fine results in changing their chrysanthemums to new soil. The general stock for fall and winter is large and good. Especially fine is a lot of young arecas in tubs.

Henry Cook has a good supply of marketable stock planted out for the coming season. Chrysanthemums, bouvardias and Asparagus plumosus are showing progress, and his stock of southern shrubbery is as fine as ever.

Henry Kraak divides his time to the best advantage, attending both to his extensive landscape business and the growing of the proper stock at the nursery, which is always good. His mums are better than ever.

Peter Kaul, Sr., is seldom to be found at home, but Frau Kaul sees that everything is attended to while Peter attends to the extensive outside business. The entire place is now devoted to the growing of market stock, while a large quantity of mums is grown on new soil away from the nursery. His plants and flowers find buyers all the year around.

J. A. Newsham's entire stock is fine. He devotes his attention to those plants and cut flowers that are bound to bring the most money, such as orchids, roses and mums. The two last-named are grown inside and outdoors as long as they bring a flower.

Henry Rehfeld's place is surely improving. Such outdoor cut flowers as roses, asters and tuberoses are selling well. His mums, all outdoor grown, are fine, and his extensive cemetery work more than makes both ends meet.

Henry Rehm can be classed among the coming retiring florists, although he has hardly reached the fiftieth milestone. He and his wife are delighted with their latest improved Reo.

Bruno Werner is steadily improving his own place, on account of the increasing demand for cut flowers. A new bed of Asparagus plumosus was planted out in one of the greenhouses. His mums excel any he has grown heretofore.

TO DESTROY WILD CHERRIES.

I would like to know how to destroy wild cherry bushes, which have grown near a wall. E. L.

The best plan is, of course, to dig the plants out by the roots. If you do not want to go to this trouble, cut them down to the ground and cut down any sprouts which may appear. Do this several times during the season, and you will soon kill out the cherries, which, while they are pretty in flower and fruit, are always headquarters for tent caterpillars. C. W.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE war will no doubt have considerable effect on the nursery trade, but the big people in it are sitting tight, declining to become excited; the only disposition to rock the boat is on the part of smaller growers.

WILLIAM A. PETERSON, of Peterson Nursery, Chicago, says orders for peony roots for fall delivery have been accelerated by the war. Early in the season some unusually large orders were booked and now the smaller orders are coming in rapidly, giving this season the prospect of being the best yet.

WILL MEET AT CHATTANOOGA.

Convention of Southern Nurserymen.

The seventeenth annual meeting of the Southern Nurserymen's Association is to be held at Signal Mountain Inn, Chattanooga, Tenn., August 26 and 27. Appreciating the value of its work for the members of the association and for the trade in general, and recognizing the opportunities for still greater benefits in this direction, the organization is making a strong campaign for more members. As the advantages to be gained by a large number of nurserymen working together through their association are becoming more and more understood and valued by the trade at large, the membership list of this organization should show a good increase this year. The annual dues, $2, are so small individually as to be inconsiderable.

The Signal Mountain Inn, which has been selected as the meeting place, is about thirty minutes' car ride out on the mountains from Chattanooga. The hotel will furnish a fine assembly hall, and those attending can secure their meals there and return to Chattanooga for the night, if they prefer.

The present officers of the association are: President, J. R. Mayhew, of Waxahachie, Tex.; vice-president, Harvey M. Templeton, of Winchester, Tenn., and secretary-treasurer, A. I. Smith, of Knoxville, Tenn.

The Program.

The list of papers included in the program and the names of the speakers give promise of a most interesting meeting. Two features have been included, also, which are sure to promote the mutual interest of the members and the helpfulness of the gathering. One of these, the questionbox, has always been a valuable part of the program of this association. The other, a luncheon after the morning session on Thursday, at which all those in attendance are expected to be present, will be followed by a few impromptu speeches by the nurserymen present, and will doubtless bring out points of value. The program in full is as follows:

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 26, 10 A. M.

Call to order by president.
Invocation.
Address of welcome, mayor of Chattanooga.
Response, Harvey M. Templeton, Winchester, Tenn.
President's annual address, J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Texas.
Appointment of committees.

You may discontinue our advertisement, as we are through with our spring shipments, but we will give you another order for fall, as THE RESULTS from the one for spring HAVE BEEN VERY SATISFACTORY.—Franklin Davis Nursery Co., Baltimore, Md., May 19, 1914.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 26, 2:30 P. M.

"Why Are We Here?" E. W. Chattin, Winchester, Tenn.
"The National Association," President Henry B. Chase, Chase, Ala.
"In What Way Are Our Associations Rendering Most Efficient Service?" Milton Moss, Huntsville, Ala.
"The Nursery Business of the Present Compared to the Past," W. T. Hood, Richmond, Va.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 26, 8:00 P. M.

"The Relation Between the Scientists and the Nurserymen," Dr. E. Lee Worsham, Atlanta, Ga.
"Status of Uniform Inspection Campaign," Prof. G. M. Bentley, Knoxville, Tenn.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 27, 10:00 A. M.

"Shade Trees for the South," R. C. Berckmans, Augusta, Ga.
"Are Nurserymen Growing Too Many Varieties?" Robt. Chase, Chase, Ala.
"Why Such Confusion in Names?" E. W. Chattin, Winchester, Tenn.
"Pedigreed Trees—What is There in It?" A. I. Smith, Knoxville, Tenn.
Adjournment for luncheon.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 27, 2:30 P. M.

"Can a Permanent Retail Mail-order Business Be Built Through Advertising Alone?" O. Joe Howard, Pomona, N. C.
"The Safest Method of Selling Nursery Stock."—General discussion.
"Diseases of Peach, Especially Stop-Back, and Remedies," W. T. Hood, Richmond, Va., and John A. Young, Greensboro, N. C.
Report of committees, election of officers and selection of place for next meeting.

JOHN HALL CONTINUES.

It was with regret that members of the American Association of Nurserymen heard last June of the tendered resignation of John Hall, who had for so long served as secretary of the organization. Realizing the difficulty of finding another equally capable man for the place, the association elected Mr. Hall to succeed himself until a successor could be found by the executive committee. This committee, consisting of J. H. Dayton, of Painesville, O.; Thomas B. Meehan, of Dresher, Pa., and J. B. Pilkington, of Portland, Ore., later interviewed Mr. Hall, who agreed to continue if the association would supply additional compensation for the office, which would enable him to employ clerical help for detail work, etc. The committee, through the chairman, Mr. Dayton, has now advised Mr. Hall of the members' unanimous agreement to his request and of his selection to succeed himself. The association is assured, therefore, of the continued services of its capable secretary.

CONTRACTS OF SALE.

Express Agreement Necessary.

One of the elementary principles of law which govern the validity of contracts of sale is that in order that an offer to buy or sell may result in a binding agreement, there must be an express meeting of the minds of the parties as to the goods which are to be delivered and as to the prices to be charged. Application of this principle to the nursery trade is well illustrated by the decision of the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court in the case of the Shady Hill Nursery Co. vs. John Waterer & Sons, 60 Northeastern Reporter 789. Plaintiff dealt at wholesale and retail in nursery stock in Boston, and defendant, having nurseries in England, had filled orders for plaintiff. Plaintiff wrote inquiring the cost of rhododendrons in specified quantities, sizes, quality, variety, colors, etc., and stating that plaintiff would "cable as to filling order." Defendant replied, quoting prices, stating that some of the varieties could not be furnished, and suggesting a cable code, which if used by plaintiff would mean that defendant should send certain specified plants of those mentioned in plaintiff's letter. In reply to this letter, the plaintiff cabled, "Ship as ordered."

Plaintiff considered this message as the closing of a contract, whereby it bought of the defendant rhododendrons of kinds specified in its letter to defendant, and at the prices stated in defendant's letter to plaintiff. The defendant did not so consider the message, and made no reply. Having been compelled to purchase the plants elsewhere at prices in excess of those quoted by defendant, plaintiff sued for damages measured by the amount of such excess. In denying right to recover, the court said:

Doubtful Message No Order.

"The letter of February 10 was not an order for any plants. As to rhododendrons, it told the defendant that the plaintiff would want certain plants, asked information as to their cost, and said that the plaintiff would 'cable as to filling order.' The letter did not say that the plaintiff would buy the rhododendrons if the prices should be satisfactory, and it committed the plaintiff to nothing more than to reply by cable if the defendant should send a list of prices. In sending the list the defendant suggested a cable code, in which were three words which if used by the plaintiff in its reply would mean that the defendant was to send the three kinds of rhododendrons which it could supply, at the offered price. While the plaintiff was not bound to use the suggested code, if it did not do so, in order to bind the defendant by a contract, it must reply in language which ought to be understood by the defendant to mean that the plaintiff thereby ordered of the defendant certain goods at certain prices. This the message, 'Ship as ordered,' did not do. There had been no order. The message might naturally refer to an order on its way by mail, or to be so sent. It could not be understood to require the defendant to send plants, as to which the only communications between the parties had been a statement that the plaintiff would want them and a request for information as to prices, with a promise to cable as to filling an order, replied to by a list of prices for such of the plants as could be furnished, accompanied by a suggestion of the form which the cable as to filling the order should take if the plaintiff desired the defendant to send those of the rhododendrons which the plaintiff had said it should want, and which the defendant could furnish. The message was not equivalent to an order to the defendant to send such of the rhododendrons mentioned in the letter of February 10 as the defendant had stated prices for. If so intended by the plaintiff, it was not in terms which the defendant ought so to have interpreted or understood, and, as it did not so understand them, there was no contract.'' S.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Joint Flower Show.

The first joint flower show of the Newport Garden Club and the Newport Horticultural Society was held last week on the grounds of Belcourt, the summer home of Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, and was one of the most successful exhibitions ever seen at Newport. There was an unusual showing of gladioli, B. Hammond Tracy, of Wenham, Mass., winning the Horticultural Society's silver medal for the best display, and John Lewis Childs, of Floral Park, L. I., winning the bronze medal.

The exhibit of evergreens and other trees and plants from the Wilson Nurseries was noteworthy. H. A. Dreer, Inc., had a pretty exhibit of water lilies, and Farquhar & Co., lilies and bay trees.

Various Notes.

The Newport Horticultural Society has invited the American Sweet Pea Society to hold its 1915 exhibition in this city.

A movement has been started for the formation of a dahlia society here, to be a branch of a national dahlia society. A preliminary meeting has already been held. W. H. M.

PETERSON NURSERY, —Established 1856— Wm. A. Peterson, Prop. 30 N. La Salle St., CHICAGO

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Portland, Ore.—Emil T. Mische is in the east, attending the S. A. F. convention at Boston. Next week he will attend the meeting of the American Association of Park Superintendents, at Newburgh, N. Y.

WARD'S CONCERN INCORPORATES.

The nursery at Eureka, Cal., established by Charles Willis Ward, head of the Cottage Gardens Co., of Queens, N. Y., was incorporated August 1, capitalized at $75,000, of which $44,000 has been subscribed. Mr. Ward is the chief stockholder in the concern; the others are L. E. Morris, H. F. Perkins, Elsie Lutgin and David S. Ward, who have twenty-two shares each, and J. P. Mahan, who has one share. H. F. Perkins, J. P. Mahan and C. W. Ward are the directors.

As reported in The Review for June 11, the company will grow and handle a general line of stock adapted to Pacific coast needs. Ornamental trees, plants, shrubbery and flowers, including evergreens, roses, azaleas and the rhododendron family, as well as classes of fruit trees for which there is a demand, will be given attention. The nursery grounds will be near Carlotta, where Mr. Ward recently purchased a tract of 220 acres. Of this, 100 acres is already cleared and ready for operations. About 180 acres is adapted to nursery use.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Business has taken a decided turn for the better in the last week, and several good wedding and other orders have been booked, besides the usual funeral work. The weather remains cool and pleasant, with less than the average sunshine, and this accounts for the general good quality of the outdoor flowers. Roses with 3-foot stems, carnations of fair length, good sweet peas and especially fine centaureas are among the principal offerings. Asters are fair, and there are a few Golden Glow chrysanthemums coming in, but the latter are not wanted. Easter lilies and Lilium rubrum from outside make a good showing, while the stream of gladioli shows no signs of abatement. Valley and orchids are in fair demand.

The European war has led to vigorous inquiries for nursery stock, and the local men have raised their prices on boxwoods, bays and similar stock. Some stimulation has also been given to the business in locally grown bulbs, while those having nice stocks of araucarias are holding them high. Valley is higher in price already, and holders of prime stock in cold storage are not particularly anxious to sell. Every mail brings inquiries for rhododendrons and azaleas left over from last year, and the Japanese varieties are meeting with a good demand.

Various Notes.

H. N. Gage, of the H. N. Gage Co., has been knocked out for a day or two with a severe cold and fever.

At the store of Wolfskills' & Morris Goldenson, John Gordon made a decided hit with his memorial window display for Mrs. Wilson. On the day of the funeral he had a large wreath of magnolia in the center of the window, with purple chiffon mountings and a purple cloth on the window floor. Pots of lily of the valley were also placed at intervals, and the result was wonderfully effective, yet simple. Oscar Paseman, of this store, is on his vacation.

J. Menasco is sending in extra fine Brunners for the season.

Darling's Flower Shop is making a bid for business with extremely attractive window displays. A large gilt frame with darkened background makes an effective setting for vases of flowers of various kinds, two of the finest being Turner's new rose, September Morn, and a vase of choice water lilies.

C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, the well known Chicago wholesalers and growers, arrived here last week.

Considerable mystery was attached to a white racing automobile being convoyed home from the beach one night last week by a large touring car. Several motorcycle "cops" and other limbs of the law were following, and, when run to earth, our friend Jacob Dieterich was disclosed in his new Henderson racer. Naturally so good a citizen was not questioned, but allowed to proceed with profuse apologies by the police.

Since the news of the war there has been considerable demand for valley for fall and winter delivery here. The Germain Seed & Plant Co. reports heavy sales on this and on cold storage Lilium giganteum. The first L. Harrisii of the season has arrived at this firm's warehouse, the stored giganteums being practically all sold.

Stock looks fine at the Claremont Nurseries now, especially conifers and choice evergreens.

Large numbers of young rose stock continue to be shipped from H. W. Turner's range at Montebello.

Howard & Smith report a July business almost twice as large as that of last year. The firm is taking big advertising space in the largest local daily, which is giving fine results.

The new red rose being shipped by G. M. Bridgford, from Eagle Rock, is meeting with great favor among the retailers. It is a fine red, and Mr. Bridgford is cutting out all his other reds in its favor.

At least one Los Angeles county grower must be in the thick of the European war. A letter from Fred Rafferty, of Santa Ana, to J. Dieterich, shows him to be crossing Europe by way of Germany en route to Italy. From the reports he should be having an exciting time.

The California Evergreen Co. reports its first shipments of Mexican ivy for the season.

H. R. Richards.

I sold over 35,000 chrysanthemum plants this season on my 1-inch ad in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. Of course that paid me well and I am very pleased. You will hear from me again as soon as I can work up stock.—Frank Wilhelm, R. F. D. No. 6, Los Angeles, Cal., June 13, '14.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

A gradual but steady increase is felt daily in the retail trade. Fortunately for San Francisco, the European war has not caused any change in the retail or wholesale flower market, as it seems to have done in New York and other eastern cities. Summer sojourners are opening their city homes, and it will not be long before the social season is again in full swing. As is customary at home-coming time, there is a call for potted plants and ferns for house adornment, and during the last week considerable quantities of Boston ferns, Ficus elastica, aspidistras, araucarias, etc., have been passed over the retail counters.

Cut flowers are at this writing fairly abundant. Roses are slightly less plentiful, but in sufficient quantity to supply the demands. American Beauties are not so long-stemmed, but the blooms are good. Aaron Ward, Cecile Brunner and Maryland are all fair in quality and in sufficient supply. There were more of Mrs. Taft last week than of any other variety. The outdoor flowers hold on remarkably well; this is due to the fact that we have had as yet no warm weather to speak of. There are large quantities of scabiosas, gaillardias, coreopsis, calliopsis, etc.

Sweet peas are on the wane. Now and then one sees a stray bunch of violets, but they are not common or really practical to handle, because they are soft and quite high in price. They are retailing at three small bunches for 50 cents, with short stems and pale flowers.

The most showy commodity of the week has been Lilium rubrum. Downtown florists use them almost exclusively for window decoration. Chrysanthemums are welcome, a few of the early yellows being in evidence. There are not many dahlias to speak of, but Minnie Burgle is still the best seller and most in evidence. Gladioli are still on the market, but the better varieties are not up to the mark. There are more reds and terra cottas than pink varieties. Cattleyas are at a premium. Some Cattleya Dowiana are seen in the stores, and a few late gigas. All the gigas available are quickly taken up.

There are no potted plants of any particular merit, outside of a few gloxinias, and Hydrangea paniculata.

Various Notes.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. has just opened a car of fifty-six cases of Australian plants, which arrived on the steamer Moana last week. The writer happened to be at the nurseries of this firm when the cases were opened. Veronicas, hakeas and a thousand other

NEW SWEET PEA

MONROVIA

For several years this has been the best seller on the Los Angeles and other local markets, and I have decided to offer it to the trade as long as the stock lasts at $5.00 per ounce.

Monrovia begins to flower when only about one foot high and continues to bloom profusely until it reaches 8 feet high outdoors. It will make a splendid greenhouse variety, as the buds do not drop under any conditions. The color is a deep purple outside, inside heliotrope, and it is unquestionably the finest winter-blooming purple in existence. The seed has been carefully reselected from large pods only. It was gathered in April and May in the foothill section, and is consequently mature and of high germinating power. It is an exceptionally stout grower and throws long stemmed flowers all through the season, four to six flowers to the stem. This offer will be withdrawn as soon as present stock is exhausted.

new plants were in this collection. They are for the most part unknown to us on this continent, but judging from their appearance, many of them will be well adapted to the climatic conditions of California, and they are certainly a fine looking lot of shrubs.

Miss Josie L. Robbie, of Chico, has been spending a few days in San Francisco, visiting nurseries and sightseeing at the exposition. Miss Robbie is well known in the trade as one of the best-informed women florists in the state

Wednesday, August 12, H. Plath, P. Ferrari and nephew, and D. MacRorie departed for Boston to attend the S. A. F. convention. These gentlemen had with them the official invitation to San Francisco for the S. A. F. convention in 1915.

The American Florist has just completed the construction of a tile floor in the window and has renovated the store in general. It presents a clean and attractive appearance, and, according to C. A. Stoppenbeck, is fully equipped for a big winter season.

The Art Floral Co., which now has Julius Eppstein as one of the managers, has been displaying attractive windows during the last week. Huge baskets of Lilium rubrum in one window and an effective arrangement of dahlias in the other attracted the attention of many passers-by Wednesday, August 12.

Hogan, Kooyman & Co. are showing a fine lot of asters. Mr. Kooyman reports the shipping business quite active. He has received a consignment of over 1,000,000 freesia bulbs, which he is featuring as a specialty.

Gardner A. Daily, landscape engineer, has just returned from an outing in the southern part of the state. Mr. Daily's home is at Long Beach, where he spent a good part of his time.

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

Market conditions remain practically unchanged. Asters, which, as a result of the extremely hot weather, were rather smaller than is usual for Spokane, are now improving in quality. Gladioli are coming in plentifully and are of good quality. Fine stock may be had for $2 to $3 per hundred. Carnations are not much in demand, though the quality generally is fair. Business conditions are considered good and are fully up to the usual expectations at this season of the year.

Various Notes.

The Hoyt Bros. Co. is rearranging the interior of the store and adding more balcony space. Samuel Younkin thinks that when all the improvements have been finished they will have the best arranged store in the northwest.

Henry E. Reimers is one florist who can safely be said to be making money this summer. His ice cream and soda fountain business, maintained in conjunction with his retail store, gives him a good income during what would otherwise be a dull time.

Paul Winkler has left the employ of A. J. Burt, returning to his former employers in Oklahoma.

The Spokane Florist Co. will open a branch store in the new Hotel Davenport, the two-million-and-a-half hotel

STERILIZING SOIL.

We should like to get some details as to how to sterilize the soil in two old houses. The soil is in solid benches. W. J. P.

It is not possible to sterilize the soil while it is in place in the beds. As a rule, it is easier to remove two inches of soil from the surface every year or two, and replace it with fresh soil, than to go to the trouble of sterilizing it. If suitable soil is difficult to obtain, the soil can be sterilized by placing it in a steam sterilizing box for two or three hours.

The box can be made four to eight feet wide and sixteen or more feet long, with sides twelve inches high and a tight-fitting wooden cover. No bottom is required. A coil of 1-inch or 1¼-inch steam pipes, spaced one foot apart, with the outer pipes six inches from the sides of the box, should be placed in the bottom of the box, which should be filled with soil. While it will often answer if the surface soil to the depth of two inches is sterilized, a depth of four inches would be better. When one has several houses, the box may be set up in the middle of each house in turn.

It is possible, by sterilizing soil in this manner, to destroy insects, bacteria and fungi, which are sometimes extremely troublesome in greenhouses. I advise the use of one pound of nitrate of soda with every fifty cubic feet of sterilized soil. T.

CUTTINGS ROT IN SAND.

Under separate cover we are sending you a sample of the sand we use for propagating, and a few geranium cuttings that have been in the sand two weeks. If you look carefully, you will note innumerable little white bugs, like thrips, and a few small white worms. What makes the cuttings rot? We have the same trouble with carnations, mums, and all other stock except begonias. At least eighty-five per cent of them rot. The propagating benches have been thoroughly cleaned and have a drainage of four inches of coal ashes. We have tried several different batches of sand, but with the same result. However, this is the first time we have examined the cuttings. We keep the glass rather heavily shaded, but it gets quite hot inside. We are located in western Missouri. E. F. C.

The sand appears to be of fair quality, but it would be improved if you added some fine charcoal or even coal ashes to it. I could not find any of the white bugs referred to. These can be killed either by sterilizing the sand with steam or soaking it with water as near the boiling point as possible. A watering with a formalin solution will take away any scum or bacteria which may exist. I see no reason why you cannot propagate geraniums, carnations and other cuttings in this sand.

It is well to remember, however, that it is almost impossible to successfully propagate the plants named, and some others, during the hot months. Begonias will root at almost any season, as will practically all foliage plants. Few growers attempt the propagation of carnations after March 1, or mums after June 1. If you wait until cooler nights arrive, say toward the end of August, you will have less trouble with geraniums, but in your state October would be sufficiently early to start. C. W.

4 -inch pots, heavy.....$50 per 100
5 -inch pots, heavy.....$0.75 and $1 each
6 -inch pots, heavy.....$15 and $18 per doz.

The new special Croton combination that we have prepared for this Fall trade is in a white cedar box, 12 inches square, 6 inches deep, covered with birch bark, and trimmed in brown. The ivy used is the small leaf variety. The crotons are of very high color, artistically arranged and are well established. We are sure these will prove to be excellent sellers. $7.50 and $10 each.

NEW SEEDLING VARIETIES.

Our new Seedling Crotons, some of which we disseminated in June, 1911, are varieties that should be in every grower's and private person's collection. They are far superior to many of the older varieties of Crotons and the types range from narrow to very large leaf.

We particularly call your attention to our set of thirteen, named after the "Thirteen Original States," which have won highest honors wherever shown.

4-inch pots, strong plants, $3 each; $30 per doz.; $200 per 100
6-inch and 7 inch pots, larger plants, $3.50, $4 and $5 each

DRACAENAS

There is no variety of foliage plant as attractive as the highly-colored Dracaena. The small and medium sizes can be used to great advantage in making up the popular Christmas baskets, while the large specimens have always been in great demand for decorative purposes. We are now growing more Dracaenas, in greater variety, than any firm in this country.

DRACAENA GODSEFFIANA

Green and white leaf, very hardy; fine for baskets.

2¼-inch pots.....$10 per 100
3 -inch pots.....$15 per 100
4 -inch pots.....$25 per 100

DRACAENA MASSANGEANA

The variety with the golden stripe down the center of the leaf. This handsome plant is the best of all Dracaenas for the house. We have an exceptionally large stock, well colored and of the very highest quality. We have the largest and finest stock in this country.

BEGONIA KONKURENT
A Greatly Improved Begonia Cincinnati

The above variety is a German introduction and we have tried it for three years. It is a much better-shaped plant than Cincinnati, freer flowering, more shapely, and, next to Norwood, is the best keeping begonia we have handled, the original flowers remaining on the plants for several months.

2¼-inch pots.....$30 per 100; $250 [per 1000]
4 -inch pots.....$7.50 per doz.; $60 [per 100]

BEGONIA LONSDALE

We have a large stock of this light sort at the same prices as quoted for Begonia Gloire de Lorraine. This variety is considered far superior to the original type, making a finer-shaped plant and holding the flowers much better. The color is a little lighter than the original Begonia Gloire de Lorraine.

BEGONIA FLORENCE DAVENPORT
Introduced June, 1914

This variety we believe will displace Begonia Cincinnati. It is a great improvement over Cincinnati—freer flowering, more symmetrical and holds its flowers much longer.

150,000 NEPHROLEPIS (IN VARIETY)

We are the largest growers of Nephrolepis Ferns in the country in the following varieties; in fact, we are the headquarters for them. The demand increases each year, and it is our aim to have every variety of Nephrolepis, in every size, every day in the year.

NEPHROLEPIS TODEAOIDES

London Fern. A good, strong grower and one we think of very highly.

2¼-inch pots.....$6 per 100; $50 per 1000
4-inch pots.....$20 per 100; $180 per 1000
6-inch pots.....$6 per doz.
8-inch pots.....$12 per doz.
9-inch and 10-inch tubs, $24, $30 and $36 per doz.

NEPHROLEPIS ELEGANTISSIMA IMPROVED

This variety is a greatly improved Elegantissima and shows no tendency to revert to the Boston. This will prove a valuable addition to the crested varieties.

2¼-inch pots.....$6 per 100; $50 per 1000
4-inch pots.....$20 per 100
6-inch pots.....$6 per doz.
8-inch pots.....$12 and $15 per doz.
Larger plants.....$2, $2.50, $3 and $3.50 each

NEPHROLEPIS SCHOLZELI

This is an ideal crested Fern, holding the same relation to all other crested varieties that the Scottii holds to the old Boston.

2¼-inch pots.....$6 per 100; $50 per 1000
4-inch pots, heavy....$20 per 100; $180 per 1000
6-inch pots, heavy.....$6 per doz.; $45 per 100
6-inch pots, heavy.....$9 per doz; $70 per 100
8-inch, ¾-pots.....$12 per doz.; $90 per 100
11-inch tubs.....$24 and $30 per doz.

NEPHROLEPIS ELEGANTISSIMA COMPACTA

A dwarf, compact form of Nephrolepis Elegantissima, each plant making an ideal shape.

2¼-inch pots.....$6 per 100; $50 per 1000
4-inch pots.....$20 per 100
6-inch pots.....$6 per doz.
8-inch pots.....$12 per doz.

NEPHROLEPIS ROBUSTA (NEW)

Place orders at once for Nephrolepis Robusta. The Silver Medal Fern at the National Flower Show, winning over all competition. We claim this variety to be the finest of all crested Nephrolepis, being exceptionally fine in large sizes. It is the strongest grower of all the Nephrolepis Ferns, never reverts and every plant is symmetrical and salable in all sizes.

2¼-inch pots, strong plants, $15 per 100; $125 per 1000
4-inch pots, strong plants, $25 per 100; $200 per 1000
6-inch pots, strong plants...$50 and $75 per 100
8-inch Azalea pots, heavy plants, $12 and $15 per doz.
11-inch tubs, heavy plants..$2, $2.50 and $3 each

"TEDDY JUNIOR"

A Grand New Dwarf Fern, Better Than Scottii

Fine, young plants from 2¼-inch pots, $10 per 100; $90 per 1000
4-inch pots, heavy....$25 per 100; $200 per 1000
6-inch pots, heavy.....$50 per 100
6-inch pots, very heavy.....$75 per 100
8-inch pots, very heavy.....$15 per doz.
11-inch tubs.....$2, $2.50 and $3 each

NEPHROLEPIS SCOTTII

Our stock is in superb condition.

2¼-inch pots.....$5 per 100; $45 per 1000
4-inch pots.....$20 per 100; $180 per 1000
6-inch pots.....$6 per doz.; $45 per 100
6-inch pots, heavy.....$9 per doz.; $70 per 100
8-inch ¾ pots.....$12 per doz.; $90 per 100
10-inch ¾ pots.....$18 per doz.
11-inch tubs.....$2, $2.50 and $3 each
13-inch tubs, specimen.....$4, $5 and $6 each

NEPHROLEPIS SMITHII

The greatly-improved Amerpohlii. It is a compact form, much finer than Amerpohlii and does not break down in the center. The fronds are carried on wiry stems. This variety will have a wonderful sale up to a 6-inch pot, being particularly showy for basket work.

2¼-inch pots.....$10 per 100; $90 per 1000
4-inch pots.....$25 per 100
6-inch pots.....$6 and $9 per doz.
8-inch pots.....$12 and $15 per doz.

NEPHROLEPIS TUBEROSA PLUMOSA

This beautiful fern is quite distinct from all of the other varieties of the Boston Fern in so much that it has been raised from the Japan species Nephrolepis Tuberosa, which type is much hardier than the Exaltata.

The fronds are long and narrow, the pinnules beautiful plumose, which are of light color, giving the fronds a beautiful effect on account of the two distinct shades as well as its graceful waviness, and will be found a great and distinct addition to collection ferns.

2¼-inch pots.....$10 per 100; $90 per 1000
4-inch pots.....$25 per 100; $225 per 1000
6-inch pots.....$50 per 100
6-inch pots, heavy.....$9 per doz.
8-inch pots, heavy.....$15 per doz.

NEPHROLEPIS BOSTONIENSIS
Wm. K. Harris

The finest variety for large plants, being a great improvement over the old Boston.

2¼-inch pots.....$6 per 100; $50 per 1000
4-inch pots.....$20 per 100; $180 per 1000
6-inch pots.....$6 per doz.; $45 per 100
6-inch pots, heavy.....$9 per doz.; $70 per 100
8-inch pots.....$12 and $15 per doz.
11-inch tubs....$2, $2.50, $3, $4, $5 and $6 each

NEPHROLEPIS BOSTONIENSIS HARRISII

A dwarf type of the Nephrolepis Harrisii and excellent in all sizes from 4-inch plants up.

2¼-inch pots.....$6 per 100; $50 per 1000
4-inch pots.....$20 per 100; $180 per 1000
6-inch pots.....$6 per doz.; $45 per 100
7-inch pots, heavy.....$9 per doz.; $70 per 100
8-inch pots.....$12 and $15 per doz.
11-inch tubs.....$2, $2.50 and $3 each

ASPARAGUS PLUMOSUS NANUS

2¼-inch pots.....$4 per 100; $35 per 1000
3-inch pots.....$7 per 100; $65 per 1000
4-inch pots.....$12 per 100; $110 per 1000

ADIANTUM HYBRIDUM

The best variety for either a pot plant or for cut fronds.

3-inch pots, heavy.....$10 per 100; $90 per 1000
4-inch pots, heavy....$20 per 100; $180 per 1000
6-inch pots, heavy.....$6 per doz.; $45 per 100

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Gentlemen:

During the past year I paid you $18.20 for a half inch advertisement in the Retail Florists Department of The Review. I received through this small advertisement, from January 1, 1913, to December 31, 1913, orders to the amount of $566.00. They came by mail and telegraph from New York to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis. Since I allowed the senders 30%, the record is as follows:

Total value of orders	$566.00
Less 30% allowed senders.. .. .	113.20
Net value of orders..... .:.	452.80

Here is an addition of $452.80 in business which could not otherwise have been obtained and at an expense of only $18.20.

Since my advertisement appeared only in The Review it goes to show what the retail florists through the country lose if they do not use this medium of advertising It also goes to show that The Review is not only there with a big "R" but that it has three more big "R's" - Readers - Reliability - Results!

Yours respectfully,
J. J. Beneke

The Market.

The cut flower trade of Boston has not been in so poor a condition at this season for some years. To say that trade is dull is too mild an expression; it is as nearly dead as can be. Since the European war opened, conditions have steadily grown worse and future prospects are far from cheery. Asters and gladioli now completely dominate the market. Of the former the bulk make $2.50 to $3 per thousand. A few fancy flowers may reach 75 cents and $1 per hundred. If the gladiolus enthusiast who boomed commercial gladiolus culture in one of the magazines not long ago, and pictured in glowing words the wondrous profits the flowers would turn in, would call around these days he could find quantities of fine spikes which could not be moved at $10 per thousand, and some at not even half that figure, and of the best colors too.

Carnations are hardly to be seen. Roses are mostly small, puny things, and realize little. Lilies are being used for window displays, in common with gladioli and aquatics. Valley continues good, but calls for it are light. For cornflowers there is a fair demand. For a variety of miscellaneous flowers the call is slight.

The Convention.

Boston is filling up with visitors to the S. A. F. convention as these notes are written. The full account of what we all hope will be the most successful meeting the society has yet held will appear in other columns of this issue, and I would only say that, considering financial and other obstacles, Boston has done the best it could. Many of us will have passed to the Great Beyond before the convention comes here again, but we hope all who are coming this week will enjoy themselves and go away with pleasant recollections of the Hub.

Various Notes.

The prize and exhibition committee of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society sent out requests last week for exhibits for a show in Horticultural hall August 18 to 20. Notices were only received August 14, but we hope to see a fine show all the same. On the evening of August 20 a reception will be held at the hall for S. A. F. visitors.

J. P. A. Guerineau, of the T. J. Grey Co., has returned from a vacation spent at Old Orchard, Me. A. F. Barney, of the same firm, left for his vacation August 15.

At Galvin's, business is reported as quiet. August 15 one window was filled with choice aquatics, a second one with lilies. Daily window changes will be made during convention week.

W. A. Riggs, of Auburndale, has built one large new greenhouse this season. His stock of cyclamens, begonias and chrysanthemums never looked better.

H. M. Robinson & Co. say that the war, unless prolonged, will not seriously interfere with their filling of orders, as they secured heavy stocks of European goods not long ago.

Luther A. Breck and C. H. B. Brackett, of Joseph Breck & Sons, are receipts of azaleas, palms, etc., from Belgium this season.

A. H. Hews & Co. have all their sheds filled with clay for the coming season—over 10,000 tons in all, ensuring an ample supply of pots. They fear the European war will seriously cripple the demand for pots.

At Penn's, funeral work continues good. The decorating and painting of the store have been completed. The loss by drowning, August 13, of W. H. Diehl, one of the firm's most esteemed designers and decorators, caused considerable gloom here when the tidings came.

The store which has been occupied by Edward MacMulkin, on Boylston street, for a number of years, now is closed and advertised to let.

F. W. Fletcher & Co. have their bed of Antirrhinum Nelrose in good flower for convention week. They are adding two new greenhouses at their establishment.

J. T. Butterworth has had some fine Cattleya gigas this season; one plant carried seventy-five flowers. He still has a nice crop of Miltonia vexillaria, Phalænopsis amabilis and Cattleyas Gaskelliana and Harrisoniæ.

Henry R. Comley has his store looking attractive for the convention. The repainting and new floor make a vast improvement. Trade, for the dull season, continues satisfactory.

The Boston Cut Flower Co. is specializing on 50-cent boxes of roses at present. Funeral trade has been good of late. Thomas and Charles Neil, of Dorchester, are enjoying a vacation on a farm near Portland, Me.

The Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co. was the first of the local firms to receive supplies of French bulbs. All the stores have now received some, with more on the way.

W. J. Collins, of Carter's Tested Seeds, Inc., is home from a business trip in New York state. His firm's Club Outing.

The annual outing of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society was held at Edwards' Rye Beach hotel August 11. A large number of the members were present, with their families and friends, and all had an enjoyable time. The trade was well represented by a strong delegation of seedsmen and nurserymen or their representatives. An excellent shore dinner was served and was appreciated by all who partook. A feature of the sports was the old-fashioned game of "breaking the flower pots," which caused a great deal of merriment and many a hearty laugh. The sky was overcast, which made conditions just right for the more strenuous athletic sports. The winners of the various events were as follows:

Club Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society was held August 14 at Doran's hall, Greenwich, Conn. President Robt. Williamson presided over the meeting. The attendance was not up to standard, but, considering the hot weather and other causes, it was fair indeed. Two new members were added and one name was proposed. The final report of the outing committee was received and the committee was discharged with the thanks of the society. A vote of thanks was extended to all who, in various ways, made the outing so enjoyable.

Several substantial additions were received for the premium list of the fall show. The schedule will be issued in September and will be much the same as last year's. It will include a number of extra classes, for which special prizes are offered.

There was a small but choice display of seasonable flowers on the exhibition tables. A fine display of choice named varieties of gladioli of recent introduction, from A. L. Marshall, was highly commended. The thanks of the society were accorded Fred Lagerstam for a vase of Statice latifolia, a fine vase of pink phlox and heliopsis and an excellent vase of long-stemmed asters of remarkable size. P. W. Popp received a vote of thanks for a fine display of pansies.

Kennedy & Hunter, Inc., of New York, offer cash prizes for the three best vases of three species of outdoor flowers for the next meeting, which will be held September 11. A fine display is anticipated. P. W. P.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

There is no market, and so there is nothing to add to last week's report. There is almost a complete dearth of demand. The weather has been enervating; the humidity unbearable.

Roses are in good supply, but their lasting quality has been unsatisfactory. Most of the arrivals are short-stemmed and all open quickly. The call for American Beauties from Newport and for the steamers is practically closed. There is a good supply of cattleyas, with no change in prices and but light demand.

Valley holds firm at the usual summer quotations and lilies, worth far more than they bring, seldom go above $3 per hundred. No carnations worth mentioning are in the market. A few sweet peas and dahlias are seen. The flood of asters and gladioli is now on. Both have the same low range of values. Few rise above 50 cents per hundred; thousands are disposed of at half that figure, and the remainder to the dump.

Various Notes.

Ralph M. Ward is back again in New York after his visit to the antipodes and Japan.

Mrs. A. Hanig, who has been in a Brooklyn hospital for some time after a serious operation, is recovering.

Miss Sylvia Jones, bookkeeper for Guttman & Raynor, returned Monday, August 17, from her two weeks' vacation at the seashore. Louis Astrowsky goes to Rockaway this week. Demos Papas, another employee, is back from the Grecian war.

The Knight & Struck Co. continues the artistic decorative work in the windows of Thos. F. Galvin, Inc., Fifth avenue and Forty-sixth street. The newer varieties of gladioli predominated last week.

John Lewis Childs made a fine display of named gladioli last week at the exposition in the Grand Central terminal, with over twenty-five of the new and popular varieties. America is still the leader.

H. E. Froment started last week on his annual vacation, which includes Boston, Saratoga and the Adirondacks.

Hydrangea paniculata now is at its best, the summer having been especially favorable for its growth. Soon we shall be looking for cosmos.

H. C. Riedel, of Badgley, Riedel & Meyer, is enjoying this week of his vacation at Boston.

Messrs. Miesem, Scott and Donaldson, of Long Island, were in the city Monday, August 10, arranging the necessary preliminaries for retaining the national bowling championship. Mr. Miesem managed to get home before the war began.

Mrs. Charles Millang and family are enjoying their summer in the White mountains, as usual. Mr. Millang is so well pleased with the result of his gladiolus enterprise this season that next year, he says, he will plant 300,000.

R. MacNiff and family are still enjoying their summer at Heart's Content, Bushnellsville, N. Y., in the Catskills.

decorations indicate that his hand has not lost its cunning.

The display of gladioli at Flowerfield, L. I., this year is larger and finer than ever. Those who visit Boston should round out the week with a day at Flowerfield, with I. S. Hendrickson.

George E. Baldwin, the orchid grower of Mamaroneck, N. Y., reports an excellent season. Four large greenhouses and fifteen acres are included in the holdings of this concern.

Myer, of Fifty-eighth street and Madison avenue, is building a new front to his store and making many improvements.

Louis Schmutz, Sr., has passed his three score years and ten, and can still bowl and sing the Marseillaise as well as any of his progeny.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will take place Monday evening, September 14.

J. Austin Shaw.

Ferdinand Fleischman and his wife reached New York August 11 on the steamship Kroonland, after an eventful wedding journey abroad. They lost all their baggage and only obtained steamer passage after two unsuccessful attempts. The Provence, which was the one on which Mr. Fleischman first intended to return, was seized by the French government, and the Imperator, on which he next booked passage, was kept in port. In traveling from Paris to Antwerp, there to board the Kroonland, the Fleischmans lost their baggage in the confusion caused by the military inspection at the boundary lines.

...THE...
Chrysanthemum
By Arthur Herrington
Formerly president Chrysanthemum Society of America.
The most complete and comprehensive work on the cultivation of the chrysanthemum that has yet been published in America. Its scope and character may be gleaned from the list of contents, which comprises chapters on composts; planting; benches, boxes or pots; general cultural details; crown and terminal buds; feeding, its object and application; care of the buds; exhibition and judging; specimen plants, plants in pots; raising from seed and hybridizing; sports; hardy chrysanthemums; chrysanthemums for south and west; insect pests and diseases; classification and selection of varieties for special purposes; history of the chrysanthemum, etc. The book will be welcomed for the lucid, comprehensive, as well as the practical character of its contents. Handsomely illustrated. 168 pages, 5x7 inches. Price 50c postpaid.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Lester L. Morse, San Francisco, Cal.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O. Thirty-third annual convention, San Francisco, Cal., June, 1915.

As time passes it becomes more and more evident that the crop of Formosa lily bulbs was larger than expected.

HORACE CHEESEMAN, widely known in the trade, has joined the forces of Ralph M. Ward & Co., New York, as traveler.

No doubt one effect of the European war will be to turn to the American market an unusually large part of the Japanese lily bulb crop of 1914.

ARTHUR B. CLARK, president of the Everett B. Clark Seed Co., Milford, Conn., is inspecting the concern's peas and beans, making his headquarters at East Jordan, Mich.

J. W. RATEKIN, Shenandoah, Ia., states that sweet corn in his section is in excellent condition and at least two weeks earlier than in average years, so that danger of frost is slight.

ON the steamer Philadelphia, from Southampton, which reached New York August 14, were thirty-seven cases of bulbs consigned to Maltus & Ware and one case consigned to Peter Henderson & Co.

THE crop prospects for all California beans continue to be excellent and in fact were never brighter. A large production, much exceeding that of last year, is confidently looked for, but in spite of this the California grower is convinced that he has nothing to lose and possibly much to gain by holding his stocks.

MAIL posted on the eve of the breaking out of hostilities has been arriving in the last few days and seems to indicate that Germany was on the point of harvesting an excellent seed crop, some varieties being, of course, already in. The chances are the crops will be saved. If they cannot be cleaned and shipped at the usual time, they will become available when the war is over.

BULB MARKET BREAKS.

In line with the possibility suggested exclusively in The Review for August 6, the market for Dutch bulbs has been in a state of complete demoralization for the last few days. The market for French bulbs, which stiffened on the declaration of hostilities, also has weakened, but has not been so badly affected as is the case with the Dutch stock. There has been little business done on hyacinths and tulips, as none cared to take hold even at the low quotations made by the representatives of the Holland growers. While most of the Holland travelers are home, many of the leading exporters now have resident representatives in this country and it is to these that the present state

A QUIET WORD WITH YOU, IF YOU PLEASE, MEMBERS OF THE SEED TRADE OF AMERICA

WE have many friends among you, but with increasing business, we have not time to come and see all our friends, and the field is left clear for our good friends, the enemy, to sow a few tares among the wheat.

Our house may not yet be so large a concern as some, but it is steadily increasing its connection, and that because of the celebrity of the seed selections which we have been making personally at Langport for the last three generations. If you hear otherwise, it will possibly be from competing houses, who, a few years back, when we were growing for them instead of for the general Seed Trade, could find nothing but good to say of us personally, or of our stocks.

On the matter as to whether your Government should distribute seeds free, we have nothing to say. But it surely redounds to our credit that we are able to obtain a very large share of the orders of your Government, the largest and keenest buying corporation in the seed world. Not one of you will lay his hand on his heart and say that he can logically criticise us. On our side we assure you that our prices to you are the same as to the United States Government.

Will you do us a favor? We know our stocks are right. You must know that we are in a position to quote right, however much you may object to our being favored with a large Government order. What we ask is: if you hear anything adverse to our house, to its honor, to its reliability, will you ask the person to write his statement and sign it, and will you let us know?—unless he is a competitor, in which case you will, of course, take no notice. We will play fair. Will you give us fair play?

OUR ADDRESS FOR QUOTATIONS IS:

of the market is due. While some of the representatives have contented themselves with advising the trade that their orders have been shipped and that the house cables that it is able to make prompt shipment on additional orders, others have written the most disturbing letters, quoting deep cuts in prices and inviting bids if the quotation is not low enough to be attractive. This refers to bulbs which ordinarily would go to the countries now at war. The disturbing quotations have, of course, gone in many cases to those who have placed orders with other parties at regular rates. The result is that many buyers want to cancel their orders, while not many of those who could use more bulbs at a price care to take hold until conditions become a little more settled.

The probabilities are that after the first shock has passed, the Holland gentlemen will recover their nerve and that the market will assume some degree of stability. At first there were to be no Dutch bulbs at all, unless one read The Review; then this country would be flooded, but the chance is good that general business conditions in Europe soon will adjust themselves, that transportation will open and that this country will not be used as a dumping ground for the whole crop of European bulbs.

FRENCH BULBS.

Anxiety in regard to the size of the French bulb imports or as to the probability of a rise in prices on these stocks is now out of the question, for a comparison of the figures of last season and of the receipts so far this season show that the full season's supply is in this country. The imports of French bulbs through the port of New York, the port of by far the largest entry, for last season amounted to something over 18,000 cases. The consignments on the steamer Patria, from Marseilles, which arrived at New York August 12, brought the total up to 18,443 cases for this season.

The consignment of French bulbs come in three or four large batches of several thousand cases each, followed for a month or so by small, occasional shipments. The large batches for this season are already here, and the receipts are already as large as those of the whole of last season. The Germania, which sailed from Marseilles July 28, arrived at New York August 16, three days overdue. On board this steamer is reported

When there is war abroad, peaceful countries must supply the world. This country will be called upon to supply all Europe, as well as other countries dependent on Europe. So you glum-gloomers had better hunt your hole and go to work. You will always notice that the fellow who plows steadily ahead is the man who works steadily and has no time to mope. This country will flourish, and if you want to flourish with it, don't mope—go to work. Prepare for the harvest. Plant lily bulbs—Horseshoe Brand stock—as well as other profitable things.

DUTCH BULBS COMING.

The steamers which left port before the opening of the war carried only the first few consignments of the season, and the shipments now coming, therefore, give no indication as to the probable imports from Holland. The steamer Potsdam, from Rotterdam, which reached New York August 14, carried the following consignments:

FROM BERMUDA.

On the steamer Caribbean, from Bermuda, which reached the port of New York August 13, was one case of oxalis bulbs, consigned to E. W. Outerbridge. On the same boat were seven cases of Harrisii bulbs, consigned to H. H. Lee. As 1,646 cases had previously been reported, this raises the total receipts to date to 1,653.

On the steamer Bermudian, which arrived at New York the following day, August 14, were the following consignments:

NEW SWEET PEA
MARGARET ATLEE
THE SPENCER SUPREME

MARGARET ATLEE.
Life size as grown for exhibition by special culture. Electros of this at $1.75 each.

The largest and finest Sweet Pea yet introduced. First Prize American Sweet Pea Society. Silver Medal National Sweet Pea Society of Great Britain, London, July, 1914.

MARGARET ATLEE is a rosy-salmon pink on a creamy-buff ground; a rich, soft color, and extremely attractive, both as individual flowers and in the bunch. The standard is large and wavy and inclined to double under favorable conditions. The wings are equally large, wavy and well set. It runs almost uniformly four blossoms to the stem; well poised and graceful. In all respects, it is the grandest Sweet Pea we have ever grown, either from foreign introductions or American varieties.

MARGARET ATLEE has finally yielded us sufficient seed to warrant our adopting a unique method of exploiting it. We are confident that America does not half appreciate real SPENCER SWEET PEAS, and we propose to use MARGARET ATLEE as a missionary in the hope that it will invade every home garden where Sweet Peas can be grown.

MARGARET ATLEE was introduced in 1912, but a short crop that year and the year following prevented our offering it to the trade, and it has not yet appeared in our Contract Lists.

Messrs. Lowe & Shawyer, the largest flower growers in Great Britain, simply insisted on having some of it last season and we let them have a pound out of our planting stock, to be used for growing cut flowers for the Covent Garden Market. They had a packet of it the year previous and considered it the very finest thing they had ever seen in Sweet Peas. With them it is a leader as a florist flower.

Ever so many people who have seen bouquets of Margaret Atlee have exclaimed, "Are those really Sweet Peas?"

Under ordinary culture they are delicate and refined to a degree. Under special culture for exhibition flowers they produce unusually large thick petals and enormous stems and leaves. It is not uncommon to see stems 22 inches long, ¼ inch thick and leaves 5½ inches across.

MARGARET ATLEE.
Life size as grown by ordinary culture. Electros of this at $1.00 each.

MARGARET ATLEE will be put up in inside white packets, 2x3½ inches, simply printed thus:

SWEET PEA
MARGARET ATLEE

There will also be an outside packet in salmon pink, 2⅞x4½ inches, printed thus:

40 Seeds 25 Cents

SWEET PEA
MARGARET ATLEE
NEW GIANT FLOWERED SPENCER

Rich rosy salmon-pink on creamy buff. Immense wavy standard, inclined to double. Large wavy wings.

These outside packets may be left off if required or they can be supplied empty, so that the dealer's name may be printed at the bottom.

PRICES net to the Seed Trade:
$ 3.50 for 25 pkts.
12.50 per 100, up to 500 pkts.
10.00 per 100, for 500 pkts. and over.

Note.—The name was chosen as an appreciation to Mr. Burpee—Mrs. Margaret Atlee being his aunt.

We are issuing a circular offering several other Sweet Pea Novelties and will mail it to the Trade in a few days.

ing was late, owing to the season, especially so for sweet corn. The onion seed acreage is light, due to the scarcity of bulbs. We are greatly in need of dry weather, with bright sunshine; only one dry week since July 1. Good growing conditions, however, have prevailed and growth is normal for the season. We need more favorable weather for ripening and harvest.

"Not much is produced here that is to be directly affected by European war conditions, yet while one man's guess is as good as another's as to the future, it is already apparent that the shutting off of the products of the large seed producing sections of the world will have not only an immediate but a far-reaching effect on values."

"The seed crops in Connecticut promise well," said Frank C. Woodruff, at Orange. "The harvest of kale and early turnip is completed and they yielded all that could be expected. The weather was somewhat bad during harvest time, which delayed the deliveries to a certain extent, but most crops are now ready for delivery. Beets and onions are looking unusually well and, while the acreage is somewhat smaller than it was last year, the crop will be much larger in the aggregate. Sweet corn acreage is much larger than last year, and the crop is in splendid condition, many fields already in an edible state, which is one to two weeks earlier than last season.

"The demand for American grown seed was never better than at present," continued Mr. Woodruff. "Owing to the war talk from abroad, it is doubtful if much or any seed will be coming over from that side. Those who have

The House of Burpee

IS recognized throughout the world as American headquarters for Sweet Peas. Our strains are selected with special care, and the seed is the best it is possible to produce. THE BURPEE SEED CROPS, both on our own farms and under contract, are subject to careful, critical inspection during growth, while samples of every lot are tested both for vitality and trueness to type.

THE BURPEE STANDARD IN SEEDS

is the highest it is possible to attain today, and yet we aim for still further betterment. Progress is our watchword! Planters, whether gardening for pleasure or profit, soon learn that the best is the cheapest. The cost of the very best seeds is so small compared with the value of the resulting crop that sensible planters know they cannot afford to risk seeds of doubtful pedigree—and we know just as well that we cannot afford to risk our hard-earned reputation by selling stock of uncertain character.

WE ARE SPECIALISTS IN SEEDS

Our entire time is devoted to producing and distributing seeds—seeds only, and only seeds of the best quality. We aim to do this one thing well. We shall be pleased to give any advice in our power as to your other horticultural requirements. The same care is used in testing and improving the excellence of Burpee's Flower Seeds that has made Burpee's Vegetable Seeds famous.

FLORISTS AND MARKET GARDENERS

should write for our Blue List. This is our Wholesale Price List for those who plant for profit. The business of market growing does not warrant the use of seeds of unknown quality any more than the use of haphazard methods. We will gladly mail both our Annual, which is a descriptive catalogue, and our Blue List, which contains the right prices for florists and market gardeners. Our Blue List contains the full list of desirable florists' seeds.

BURPEE'S FLOWER SEEDS FOR FLORISTS

At Fordhook Farms in Pennsylvania, Sunnybrook Farm in New Jersey, and our Floradale Farm in California, we are growing acres of flower seeds, especially those varieties that do best in the different localities. Other flower seeds are produced on contract by careful growers both at home and abroad. Superior quality cannot be procured from any source.

contracts with American growers are indeed fortunate."

"The crop of beet is just being harvested with us at the present time," said Frederick M. Clark, at Milford, August 12, "and is of normal acreage. Although the yield has been somewhat lessened by excessive rain during July, we have a pretty good average crop. We cannot as yet estimate the yield, but think it will be at least normal.

"Our onion seed crop is looking well at this time. Our acreage of this is normal, and, while the rain during the last week of July materially interfered with the setting of the seeds, the balance is coming into boll at the present time and bids fair to make a good crop. It is, however, the height of the critical stage with this crop and adverse weather conditions may yet materially affect it. We do not know about this crop until it is harvested, which will be much later than usual this season. From present indications, cutting will not start before August 20 to 25.

"Sweet corn is backward, but is making exceedingly rapid progress at this time. If the present forcing hot weather continues, I believe we shall make a normal crop of this standard article."

ADAPTATION OF PLANTS TO SOIL

and the seedlings make better growth when the soil is slightly compacted. The total exclusion of air from seeds, however, as shown by experiments with a vacuum, prevents germination. A close textured soil tends to have this same effect, depending upon the nature of the seed as well as upon the amount of air received; therefore, it becomes necessary to take into account the depth of the planting of seeds in practical agriculture. Certain seeds and plants are much more susceptible to air than others, and artificial aeration of soil is often beneficial. In one experiment, where 1,500 lettuce seeds were sown in two boxes, in one of which the soil was aerated for a few hours each day, there was a gain of twenty per cent in germination and forty-six per cent of growth of seedlings in the aerated soil.

Lettuce or white clover seed planted in a close textured soil that has been firmly tamped will fail to germinate at all, while such seeds as plantain will germinate quite freely under the same conditions, showing that the plantain is better adapted to a close textured soil than the other seeds mentioned.

In the more intensive agriculture of the future, aeration of the soil may become practical. Aeration affects the respiration process in seed germination and increases growth, besides having a beneficial effect on the microörganisms of the soil, which play an important role in soil fertility.

Of the florists' crops which are affected by variations in soil texture, the rose furnishes one of the best examples. This crop requires a heavy, fine textured soil for its best development. A mechanical analysis of some of the best

A STRONG FAVORITE

My original Silver Pink Snapdragon is fast becoming a favorite with the most particular growers. They see its strong points—beauty of color, habit of growth, and wonderful productiveness. Sweet Peas of C. W. Curtis, Irondequoit, N. Y.
Raised from Boddington's Quality Seed.

BODDINGTON'S "QUALITY" CHRISTMAS-FLOWERING

Sweet Peas

WE ARE SUPER-HEADQUARTERS

All true stocks of Winter-flowering Sweet Peas will again be scarce this season. The winter-flowering Spencer types are almost a total failure, owing to the exceptional season in California this spring, and through the ravages of Aphis we regret that we are unable to offer any seed, with the following exceptions. Our advice to intending planters is to order at once. Note revised prices.

The Sensational Australian Spencer Winter-flowering Sweet Pea, Yarrawa

We have been fortunate enough to secure a small quantity of this wonderful new Spencer Winter-flowering Sweet Pea from the raiser, Arthur Yates, of Sidney, and now offer it for the first time in America. It is far superior to the prevailing Spencer types—the flowers being exceptionally large and well fluted and waved; in color it is almost a duplicate of Countess Spencer, a delightful light soft rose, which lights up beautifully at night. We offer this original stock till sold, for trial, at $1.00 per trade pkt.; 3 trade pkts. for $2.75.

ROSE QUEEN "ROSE QUEEN" is Orchid-flowering, borne on long stems, extremely free and early and of pink color most attractive; is a decided acquisition, and, like all meritorious novelties, is sure to be in demand wherever grown. Prices: Trade pkt., $1.00; 3 trade pkts. for $2.75; 1 oz., $12.00.

ANITA WEHRMAN A fine, clear lavender, with three to four flowers to stem, and has been grown with 20-inch stems, holding the length longer than is usual with any other winter-flowering variety. Prices: Trade pkt., $1.00; 3 trade pkts. for $2.75; 1 oz., $12.00.

rose soils in the United States has shown that the clays run from 6 to 29 per cent, while the fine sands, silt and clay run from 67.18 to 88.15 per cent. The gravel, coarse, medium and fine sand run from 1.92 to 24.33 per cent. The average percentage of the coarser particles in these rose soils is 9.68, while the average percentage of the finer particles is 79.36 per cent. The average percentage for the silt is 22.36; for fine silts, 16.21 per cent. When these results are compared with those from the typical truck garden soil, it will be noticed that there is a great deal of difference between the total percentage of coarse particles and the total percentage of finer particles in this soil.

In a typical truck garden soil, the coarser particles total 39.15 per cent, and the finer particles 40.25 per cent. The best rose soils appear to be those possessing 8 to 12 per cent or more of clay and which are well supplied with other grades of finer particles. The percentage of the fine sand, silt and clay usually exceeds 75 per cent in an ideal rose soil, but just how important are the clay and the two grades of silt and fine sand in making up such a soil cannot at present be determined.

There are many native species of plants which show an adaptation to soil texture, and many species which are confined strictly to certain types of soils. We have our dry, sandy soil species; also those depending upon humus, but the latter type is continually disappearing in some localities. Variations in the chemical constituents also affect the distribution of species.

The chemical and biological properties of the soil constitute more important factors in plant growth than mechanical properties; but this phase of the subject is so extremely complex, notwithstanding the immense amount of research given to it, that the subject is far from being exhausted.

All greenhouse soils contain more or less large quantities of plant food, and in all soils various subsidiary constituents and admixtures which plants can use, are found. It is possible, therefore, to grow good crops in most soils for seeds are all grown by myself and are offered in the following mixtures and separate colors:

22—KENILWORTH STRAIN—The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are from 3½ to 4 inches; it is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings, rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, mahogany and many others too numerous to mention. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures.

24—KENILWORTH SHOW—An extra fine strain of large flowers; the immense flowers are of circular form and great substance; a beautiful collection of colors and markings.

26—KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE—Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower or for exhibition purposes, for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 7 or 8 inches long, in the most graceful manner, and stand the hot, dry weather well.

28—MASTERPIECE—A remarkable type; the curled, wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance, large flowers of great substance, on long, strong stems.

30—GIANT THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED PANSIES—A superb mixture. Flowers large and of circular form and of great substance. The display of coloring is unsurpassed. A combination of almost every shade of rich velvety colors, reds are particularly conspicuous; the petals being distinctly marked with three or five large dark blotches.

NEW SEED NOW READY

All sorts and mixtures, except the new Pansy Princess, are $5.00 per oz.; $1.25 per ¼-oz.; 5000 seeds, $1.00; trade packet of 1000 seeds, 25c; any 5 pkts., $1.00. Please order by number.

PRINCESS

20—The New Upright Pansy

This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing, and extremely weather-proof, enduring many storms without damage to its flower. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy velvety texture, on heavy stems carried well above the foliage. Attractive by the brilliancy of its colors.

500 seeds, 25c; 1000, 50c; ¼ oz., $2.50; 1 oz., $10.00.

years without the use of fertilizers or manures, providing they have constant tillage.

Effects of Bacteria.

The microörganisms of the soil also play a most important role. In general, the richer the soil, the larger the number of microörganisms found. Tillage stimulates bacterial activity, and the various modifications which these innumerable small soil organisms bring about in the soil are exceedingly complex and understood only in a general way. It is known that they decompose various substances in the soil; that some of them accomplish nitrogen fixation, some denitrification, and others are nitrifying organisms. Besides the presence of a large bacterial flora in soils, the number of bacteria sometimes exceeding millions to the cubic centimeter, numerous forms of fungi may be found, besides algæ and various types of active animal life. In a medium containing such a vast number of different types of organisms much antagonism and a severe struggle for existence necessarily exist. It is also known that many chemical substances, such as formalin, carbon bisulphide, etc., affect the organisms in the soil and also act as a general stimulus to plants. Volatile chemical substances have a direct stimulative effect on the crops and in some cases probably improve soil conditions by destroying antagonistic species. In the same way soil sterilization produces exceptionally fine crops. Soils, however, differ so greatly in different localities that while some are greatly benefited by steaming, others are affected unfavorably by this process. It is known that the process of steaming soils to 212 degrees Fahrenheit greatly modifies their chemical composition, and in some cases produces toxic substances which act injuriously to the crop. Russell and Darbishire found that crops obtain three times as much nitrogen and twice as much phosphoric acid and potash from steamed as from unsteamed soil. Steaming has a similar effect to aeration, from the fact that an exchange of gases takes place.

Chemical Processes.

As previously stated, the chemical processes in soils are extremely complex and what may prove beneficial as a fertilizer in one soil may not in another; therefore, many of the fertilizer experiments conducted here and there are contradictory. It is often possible to grow good crops with fertilizers for a few years, but later it becomes impossible to grow the same crops successfully in these soils, indicating that some change of an injurious nature has taken place.

During the last decade various troubles arising from soil toxicity or overfeeding, resulting in a malformed crop, have been on the increase both in the greenhouse and in the field. The symptoms of malnutrition differ in different species of plants. Sometimes the roots

BODDINGTON'S GIGANTIC PANSIES

Can be produced only from the giant strains. Our CHALLENGE PANSY seed contains only the giant self-colors, the giant striped and variegated and the giant blotched, etc., all carefully mixed in proportion. You could not buy better seed if you paid $100 per ounce. Our Challenge Pansy seed during the past season gave unprecedented satisfaction, and every order booked last year was duplicated and increased this year. All the testimonials received mentioned specially the high grade of flowers—color, form and size of the individual blossoms. This year, by adding improved types, intending customers can absolutely rely on a duplication of this season's success with increased satisfaction. Our "mark" for this strain is "Challenge," and it is all the word denotes.

Pansy—Boddington's "Challenge"—All Giants

This mixture contains all the finest Giant strains—of the leading Pansy Specialists in the world—the Giant self-colors, the Giant striped and margined, and the Giant blotched, etc., all carefully mixed in proportion—the finest that money can buy—the finest your money can buy. INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Trade has been better during the last week. Considerable funeral work Friday and Saturday cleaned up all the available stock. Gladioli have been arriving in large quantities. Some first-class asters are being shipped into this market. Easter lilies have been pretty well cleaned up. Roses are not of the best quality, but the short-stemmed Beauties are more than taking their place. Some good short-stemmed carnations are seen in the market.

Various Notes.

Bert Hitz looks well pleased these days. He has a new baby boy at his house.

W. H. Elverson called on the trade last week. Mr. Elverson reports trade quite good in his line.

Homer Wiegand spent several days in Chicago last week.

Robert Fohl has had good success with his Shasta daisies this year, having cut large quantities for the market.

Oliver Steinkamp says not to neglect to have the entries for the state fair in by August 24, as it will be too late after that time.

Robert Newcomb, with Vaughan's Seed Store, was a caller last week.

Paul Hoffman, formerly with A. Wiegand's Sons Co., has embarked in the nursery business.

Alvin Shrieber, with Bertermann Bros. Co., is back on the job after a ten days' vacation. H. L. W.

DENVER, COLO.

P. H. Johnson has retired from business, having rented his place to one of his former employees.

Ben Boldt is an enthusiastic member of the Shriners' drill team. He can be found almost any evening drilling with the team, getting ready for the Colorado encampment at Alamosa, August 25.

Frank Fraser, of the Alpha Floral Co., is an officer in the uniform rank of the Knights of Pythias, and we often have the pleasure of seeing him commanding his team in its drills.

The Mauff Floral Co. has dissolved partnership, Robert Mauff, the junior partner, retiring from the firm.

A. A. Underwood has bought the greenhouses of C. F. Swayger, in Cheyenne, Wyo. Mr. Underwood spent a few days in Denver last week.

E. O. Neiman has returned from his vacation.

Herbert Claussen has gone on his vacation. He is making a trip through the east. R. S.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

The Market.

Business in general is still stagnant and outside of funeral work little is being done by the local trade. A few new carnations are being seen on the market at this time and the quality of the stock is good. The old crop is entirely gone and the trade is turning to asters to fill the vacancy.

Asters are not so plentiful as they have been for the last week or so. The quality is as good as can be expected, owing to the lack of rain. The weather has been fair for a number of weeks now, with only an occasional shower to lay the dust.

The supply of roses is shortening up to some extent, although the cut is still greater than the demand. The only thing that is noticeable is that the large surplus of this stock is beginning to shrink. The demand for Mrs. Charles Russell and Pink Killarney is heavier than that for any other variety, although the other roses are selling well.

Gladioli are still selling fairly well. As some of the stock is not up to standard, the prices are low and the average is not what it should be. The supply of American Beauties seems to be increasing slightly. The quality is good, but the sales are not at all heavy on this stock.

Lilies are in good supply and the stock is of fine quality. Valley is also good, but the sales on both of these are extremely light. Some fine rubrum lilies are coming in, but are not moving as well as they should.

Various Notes.

Miss Edith Webster has resigned her position with J. M. Fox & Son, on account of ill health. Miss Webster has been with this firm for some time and she leaves many friends among the florists, who will miss her.

Albert Hare, with the Holton & Hunkel Co., left Saturday, August 8, for a two weeks' vacation. He is taking an automobile trip through the state and at present is at Eagle River, Wis., where it is his intention to catch some fish if they only bite.

The friends of Nic Zweifel, who left some time ago to spend four months in Europe, are wondering if it will be possible for him to return when he is ready. When last heard from, Mr. Zweifel, with his wife and daughter, was in Switzerland, and although that country is still neutral, it is a question whether it will maintain its neutrality long. Mr. Zweifel has left his business in the hands of L. B. Thorpe, who will use his best efforts to see that everything moves smoothly until Mr. Zweifel's return, whenever that may be.

Mr. Thomas, of Harper & Thomas, Calumet, Mich., was in the city last week and visited the trade. F. W. Bliese, of the Waukesha Floral Co., Waukesha, Wis., and Clark Adams, of Racine, Wis., were also visitors.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

The weather has been extremely hot and this always demoralizes business. Everyone complains of business being poor and dull. Even outdoor stock is scarce, because there has been so little rain, and the army worms have been doing their share of damage. Gladioli are the most abundant of any flowers and have come down in price somewhat. Asters are excellent now and they are plentiful. There are a few of the large chrysanthemum asters, which bring fancy prices. Carnations are scarce indeed and poor in quality. Roses are unusually good, considering the warm weather. Killarneys are not desirable, because they open wide in a short time during the hot weather.

Various Notes.

A number of the trade here are at the convention. Wm. F. Kasting started Friday, August 14; with him was George Asmus, of Chicago. They made the trip by automobile, stopping at points of interest in the Berkshires, at Albany and at other New York towns. The following are attending the convention from here: Charles Sandiford, S. A. Anderson, Wm. F. Kasting, Joseph Streit, Robert Scott, David Scott, Professor Cowell, Walter Amey, Fred Derchen, George McClure, William Mansfield and Felix Alberts.

L. H. Neubeck is putting in new boilers at his greenhouses.

James Bates, of Akron, N. Y., was a visitor last week. He reports that he is busy making repairs on his greenhouses and getting ready for fall business.

Stroh's Quality Flower Shop had a most interesting collection of salpiglossis and scabiosas last week, which were raised at Stroh's farm in Attica, N. Y. Ed. Stroh is summering on the farm and will leave for a trip early in September. Business is only fair at the store, it has been reported.

The W. E. Kirchhoff Co., of Pembroke, N. Y., has a new gladiolus seedling, a beautiful yellow, samples of which have been sent to this city. It is a beautiful color, has fine shaped flowers and resembles an orchid. It has a drooping tendency, which perhaps might be overcome if it were grown stronger. It would then become of value commercially.

W. J. Palmer had an attractive yellow window last week. It was made up of

GERANIUMS

We have a splendid lot of good 3-inch pot plants ready for immediate shipment, in a fine assortment of colors for winter blooming, $3.00 per 100, $25.00 per 1000.

As noted in the trade papers a short time ago, there is a growing demand for a greater variety of colors. We have the best assortment in the country. Our standard list of doubles and semi-doubles contains 45 distinct and different varieties. Then we have a good list of standard single sorts, besides the newer kinds and novelties.

We are booking orders for next season's delivery at $2.00 per 100, $18.50 per 1000, for 2-inch stock of the standard kinds.

Everybody who grows Geraniums should have our catalogue. Ask for it.

Ready for Shipment

Alyssum, giant and double; Swainsona, white and pink; Hardy English Ivy, $2.00 per 100, $18.50 per 1000.

PEERLESS PINK,
THE GREAT PEERLESS LEADER
OF ALL CARNATIONS.

More profits from Peerless than any other; 7½ blooms per plant Oct. 1 to Jan. 1 at average of 3c equals 22½c per plant; 12½c more than the cost of the plants, which is $100.00 per 1000. We allow you to try this variety and pay for it Jan. 1. Enchantress will not average more than 3 blooms per plant during same time. Why grow varieties that do not pay you good profits? You cannot make a mistake. We guarantee Peerless to be all we claim for it or it will not cost you anything. Clean, healthy plants, $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

are burned off, owing to the presence of an excess of some caustic substance, but more commonly the leaves and stems are affected, the leaves becoming abnormally colored, or they may become more or less contorted owing to the unequal development of the tissues of the leaves. Occasionally blisters are formed, and often wilting and dying of the edges of the leaf occurs. Malnutrition arises from the improper use of fertilizers and manures, and is more commonly met with in greenhouses than elsewhere, cucumbers being among the most susceptible plants to this trouble. The use of nitrate of soda, pig, hen and sheep manure, and occasionally strong cow and horse manure, accounts for most of this trouble.

H. D. Haskins, who has made many chemical analyses of greenhouse soils with special reference to malnutrition, has found that in some cases where malnutrition was common there was considerably more nitrogen and phosphoric acid in the soils than in the best barnyard manure. The average analysis of some abnormal soils which produced symptoms of malnutrition to cucumbers showed them to contain as high as 27,363 pounds of total water-soluble salines per acre as compared with 7,520 pounds per acre in normal soils. He found that the soluble nitrogen was 1,156 pounds in the abnormal soils as compared with 444 pounds for the normal, while the potash was 6,743 pounds for the abnormal soils against 1,328 for the normal. The soluble phosphoric acid was 632 pounds for the abnormal soils as compared with 208 pounds for the normal, which shows a marked excess in the water soluble salines in the abnormal soils. Mr. Haskins' calculations show that to furnish this amount of nitrogen would require the application of fourteen and one-half tons of a formula testing four per cent nitrogen, twenty-three per cent actual potash and 2.25 per cent available phosphoric acid per acre.

Fertilizers vs. Soil Changing.

From these observations on malnutrition, which is constantly on the increase, we cannot too strongly advise florists to go slowly in their use of fertilizers or special manures on their crops. The practice of changing the soil each year obviates this trouble to a great extent, although such crops as lettuce can be grown in the same soil for years without change when decomposed horse manure is applied each year. Cucumbers and tomatoes, however, need an occasional change of soil to bring them to their highest perfection, while the high feeding usually given to carnations and roses renders the soil ill adapted to constant use. In one case where we grew American Beauty roses in a soil composed of one-third loam, one-third pulverized sod and one-third fresh cow manure, together with the weekly use of liquid cow manure, we found it impossible to employ the soil the second year. When a new rose crop was planted, the roots were abnormal from the beginning and died, but when the soil was washed out thoroughly it was found to contain innumerable toxic substances and no further death of the plants occurred. Market gardeners have found, and their observations have been borne out by experiments, that decomposed horse manure constitutes the best manure for their crops, and when commercial fertilizers are employed, soil trouble may invariably be looked for. When we know more about the complex condition of the soils and the plants' requirements we may be able to make more extensive use of commercial fertilizers and special manures; but at the present time greenhouse managers must experiment cautiously.

To conclude, we may say that the highest conception of intensive horticulture has been realized by florists and market gardeners; and one reason why they do not receive more help from the experiment station is because their knowledge of plants and skill in handling them far exceed that of the men devoting their time to scientific research. When these workers begin to realize the great degree of skill possessed by the florists and market gardeners perhaps they may be able to suggest some ideas that will be of value.

THE COAL MARKET.

Since the prices of food so quickly took the cue and began to soar at the first announcement, almost at the first vague rumor, of war in Europe, it would scarcely be reasonable to expect that the coal market would long remain unaffected. Yet the prices of coal have been slower than those of other commodities to respond to the upward impetus. Among the most obvious reasons for this exceptional state of affairs in the coal trade are, first, the large reserve stores of coal which have been piled up, awaiting a market; second, the obstructed condition of ocean transportation, which makes it impossible to supply the newly created foreign demand, and, third, an unexpected dullness of business at some of the great factories, the proprietors of which were somewhat disconcerted by the sudden outbreak of the war and have not yet gained entire command of the situation, so as to avail themselves of the special opportunities which the war has provided for the sale of their products.

Indeed, so plainly noticeable is this business depression that a prominent coal journal reports a "complete stagnation in the eastern trade." As a consequence, "New England cotton mills," says the same authority, "are not taking anywhere near their customary tonnage of coal. They have not yet readjusted themselves to the conditions incident to the complete shutting off of their European competition. Certainly they have not yet begun to pile up those stocks of goods which they will need to satisfy the market which cannot be satisfied under present conditions by European producers. Also the various ports along the Atlantic coast are congested with coal. An unprecedented number of railroad cars loaded with coal are tied up at these eastern ports. There are plenty of bottoms at those ports to take all of this coal and relieve this congestion, and their

CONSERVE YOUR COAL PRESERVE YOUR MONEY

WE are staunch advocates of the nation wide movement for the conservation of all natural resources, and have designed a boiler for greenhouses that will produce the most heat at minimum amount of coal consumed. ¶ The proper placing of the tubes in the Gem City Boilers has been scientifically developed. They are so arranged that the heated gases make two complete passes through the water in the boiler shell, allowing absolute combustion of the gases, and permitting water to absorb the greatest amount of heat before finally passing into the stack. This is a decided contrast to the usual wasteful method of having gases enter the stack at a high temperature. ¶ By actual comparison, our boilers contain more tube area per horse-power than any competitor's. A steel water leg entirely surrounds the fire-box. In our boilers there are no cast iron surfaces in contact with the fire, consequently no liability of a fractured section, a condition which is especially disastrous when occurring in cold weather, causing at least a temporary discontinuance of heat in the greenhouses, with the accompanying loss in frozen plants. ¶ Our boiler is substantially built in all details, and subjected to a hydraulic test of 150 pounds before leaving our shops. ¶ One of the prominent florists of Baltimore, Md., Mr. James Hamilton, has given us his unsolicited statement, that after installing one of our 50 horse-power boilers, he heated 40,000 square feet of glass, at a 50% saving in his coal bill, as compared to the type we replaced.

owners are anxious to do so, but these vessels are under orders from their home government to stay in port until the seas are cleared, or until they can be transferred to American registry and hoist the American flag. There are a great many inquiries from foreign countries and particularly from South America for coal, but these inquiries cannot be turned into orders until the shipping situation is relieved, and until definite understanding can be arrived at as to the basis of price and as to the manner of financing sales.''

However, all of these obstacles to the movement of coal are believed to be only temporary. It is expected that, when the obstacles are removed, there will necessarily be a large increase in the production of coal or a sharp rise in price, perhaps both. Are there any florists who have reason to worry about such a prospect, or have they all prepared for the worst by filling their coal bins?

A GREENHOUSE ON A TERRACE.

I wish to build an additional greenhouse, 36x75, and think you may be able to give me some suggestions. The house will run east and west. At the west end there will be another greenhouse; at the northwest there will be a large barn. The greenhouse will be on a terrace and will be so built that the glass will start from the top of the ground; the side walls will be of cement and will be entirely under the ground. The situation is well exposed to the light and gets all the winter sunshine. I wish to build this house as economically as possible. I am en-

"RICHARDSON"
Greenhouse Boilers
FOR HOT WATER AND STEAM
Round—Side Feed—End Feed—60 Sizes and Styles

¶We have been building boilers for many years—nothing new or experimental about the "Richardson."

¶The "Richardson" is built as well as we know how to build it, in the light of our three-quarters of a century of experience.

¶The "Richardson" places the maximum amount of heating surface in direct contact with the fire—long fire travel, narrow waterways. It gets all the heat—it saves coal.

¶The "Richardson" is not a "cheap" boiler, but it is sold at low prices in spite of the fact that we purchase nothing but the highest grade iron, coke and other material.

¶Our catalogue gives much valuable data on greenhouse heating. Sent on request.

closing a drawing which shows the house as I should like to build it.

I intend to grow lettuce and radishes in winter, and geraniums and tomatoes in the spring. Would such a house as I have described be cheap and practical? What would be the necessary piping for steam, in this Illinois climate, and what ventilation would be needed? I would divide the house halfway, so as not to have to heat the whole space until it was all planted. Perhaps, with your experience, you can suggest a better plan than mine. G. H. C.

As stated in the letter, and as indicated by the sketch, the intention is to have the walls of the house entirely below the level of the ground, with only the roof exposed. This plan is not advisable, especially for a house as much as thirty-six feet in width, as there should be some means of ventilation in the south wall of the house.

The height proposed for the walls is not shown, but I would have not less than three feet of glass, and four would be better if the south wall is more than five feet in height. Not only is this necessary to provide for ventilation, but unless light as well as air is provided it would not be possible to grow good crops near the wall of the house. Besides, there would be unending trouble from plant lice and other insects, as well as mildew, rot and other fungous diseases, in the south side of the house near the wall. The sketch shows a height of eight feet for the ridge, above the level of the plates, but if the side walls are six feet in height I would make the ridge sixteen feet high, or ten feet above the plates, and would plan to use 16-foot sashbars for the north side of the roof.

To heat such a house to 50 degrees with steam, I would use one 2½-inch main, run about four feet below the

When it Comes to Heating Come to Hitchings

YOU who have talked with the superintendent of power in some of the big factories, know that the power returns from every pound of coal are figured right down to almost the last cent. Guesswork is out of the question. The variation in cost or power delivered, of even a few cents a horsepower, is often the difference between the manufacturer's profit and a loss.

The keenest of keen competition has made this watchful watch-dog method a necessity. The margin of profits being more liberal in the greenhouse growers' business, longer chances are taken, and heating experiments made, which but few other industries could possibly stand.

We don't want to be put down as "croakers," but it does seem that before long most growers must give more serious thought and attention to their heating costs. Already some of the more careful ones are demanding of our heating engineers things that two years ago would have been passed over without a second thought, no matter how forcibly we presented their importance.

It looks as though a big change were coming when it comes to cutting down heating costs, or equipping a plant with a system of highest efficiency.

We can do just these things. Not only can, but are doing it. Not only are doing it, but have done it.

For over 65 years we have been heating greenhouses, which is a quarter of a century longer than anyone else in the field. All of which has a lot to do with your being able to depend on depending on Hitchings. And remember we go anywhere for business. Or to talk business.

ridge, besides which about 1,000 lineal feet of 1¼-inch pipe will be needed in the coils. If there are no doors in the east end of the house, the flow can be dropped down and connected with coils running in each direction across the end and along the walls back to the west end of the house. Some of the return pipes might be on the posts below the ridge, but most of them should be on the walls.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Trade in all lines continues dull. There is any amount of stock of all kinds on the market and prices are not up to the average. Roses are especially plentiful and can be bought at almost any price suitable to the buyer. Gladioli are still a glut, except in the better grades, for which a fair demand is found. Lilies have been selling well for this season of the year. Asters are still poor and the recent rains considerably bruised the greater part of the outside stock; consequently good flowers are not to be had in any quantity and the supply has slightly decreased even in low grades. Some outdoor carnations are coming in, but they are small and in little demand. Greens of all kinds are plentiful and the prices are low.

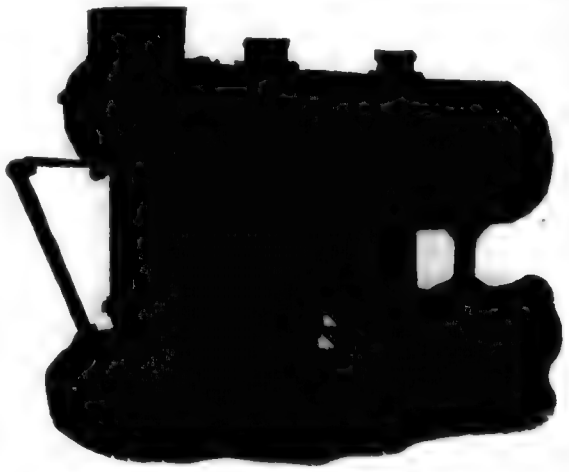
While the wholesale houses are doing a fair business, considering the amount of stock coming in, the entire volume of trade is so widely scattered among the retail stores that no individual can lay claim to any large amount of trade; hence the cry of "No business" is heard on all sides.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Jas. Glass, who has been quite ill for some time, is reported no better at present.

Mrs. H. J. Quick, who was operated on recently for appendicitis, was removed from the hospital to her home Wednesday, August 12, and is reported doing well.

The Pittsburgh florists en route to the S. A. F. convention arrived in this city Thursday evening, August 13, and were met by a committee of florists of this city and escorted to the Hotel Rennert, where they stopped over night. Friday they were taken on an auto trip through the city and suburbs and later in the day were taken to Thompson's Sea Girt House, where a genuine Maryland dinner was served, consisting of soft crabs, fish and chicken fried in the style that has made Maryland famous. Afterward they returned to the hotel and left at 6 p. m. by boat for Boston.



This city sent a party of about twenty to the convention by boat, headed by Richard Vincent, Jr., and another party by rail, led by State Vice-president Morrison. On the boat they were joined by the Pittsburgh party, led by E. C. Reineman, and about thirty-five members of the Washington craft, under the leadership of William F. Gude. Among those who went by boat were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Vincent, Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Bauer, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. A. Klein, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Graham, Miss Graham, Mrs. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. A. Anderson, L. Kreuder, J. J. Perry, Henry Lehr, I. H. Moss, Geo. S. Kalk, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Ritter and Jacob Keplinger.

Wm. C. McKissick returned Monday, August 17, from a two weeks' vacation, at Wildwood, N. J.

While driving through Druid Hill park Friday, August 14, J. J. Perry was unable to keep his Ford auto from trying to climb an iron pole. The pole resented this and threw the auto back with a badly bent radiator. Other than this, no damage was done.

At the next club meeting, to be held Monday, August 24, the final arrangements for the club's representation in the star spangled banner centennial parade will be made and it is requested that all members who can possibly do so be on hand. W. F. E.

The Market.

The drought continues and the soft-wooded stock is not producing the cuttings anticipated. The aster crop is poor. Local growers say it is much below the average. Gladioli are suffering from the drought; they need a good soaking to improve the length and quality of the stock. Outdoor sweet peas are again a failure.

The first consignment of early Romans has arrived; the bulbs are small. The quality of the Paper Whites also is not up to standard. These are the first bulbs to arrive since the outbreak of the war.

Various Notes.

Trillow, the Florist, has everything benched except carnations. He has been hunting for good stock, but found nothing doing.

C. N. Page, of the Iowa Seed Co., is home from Rochester, Minn., where he underwent an operation recently; he says he feels quite weak and will have to take great care of himself. Harry Berreckman is again around the shipping department. He says his paralysis is almost gone, and he begins to handle the horseshoes like an expert at the noon hour. Hans Peter Jurguenson, of the shrub and plant department, attended a Danish picnic up the river and got a heavy sunburn from swimming and rowing; it caused him so much pain about the legs and arms that the doctor ordered him to take a few days' rest.

PAWTUCKET, R. I.

The Market.

Some of the local florists found last week to be an extra busy one for this time of the year, while others had just ordinary business. Funeral work is still the main outlet for flowers, with an occasional call for a loose bouquet. Carnations are still on the market, but are small and of poor quality. Asters are now in their prime. Vacation time is here and many florists and their assistants are away. Several had deferred their vacations until this week, so as to attend the convention in Boston. There is not much building in this section, although a large amount of remodeling is being done.

Various Notes.

E. D. Tucker, of Central Falls, was exceedingly busy last week with funeral work.

Shedden & Co. report a busy week.

Frederick Hoffman is sending some specimen Lilium auratum to the Providence market.

W. D. Ross, president of the Worcester Agricultural Society; President C. W. Breed, of the Worcester County Horticultural Society, and Secretary L. C. Midgley were visitors at Newport last week.

The store of M. J. Leach & Sons is being thoroughly renovated. One of the new features will be a double window; that is, a plate glass window on each side of the door.

J. J. Kelley, of Valley Falls, was busy last week with funeral work.

Howard W. Vose, of the Flower Shop, Attleboro, Mass., reports an extra busy week. T. F. B.

AUSTIN, TEX.

The Market.

Splendid rains fell in this section the first week in the month, about four inches in all. The effect on outside stock has been good, and crinums, gladioli, sweet peas and roses are far better than is usual in our dry summer weather.

Various Notes.

The stock of the Hyde Park Floral Co. is now all owned by the immediate family of Edgar Hall, who have acquired all the other holdings. The greenhouses are being dried out in preparation for fall planting. H. B. B.

A Very Handy "RED DEVIL" TOOL for the Hothouse Man to Have

"Red Devil" No. 3-in-1
When your glass needs replacing and you try to cut with "the just as good" kinds and your breakage is something "fierce," just remember that "Red Devil" Glass Cutters have hand honed steel wheels that actually cut clear, clean and sharp. Don't take any other brand but "Red Devil"—your hardware man has them—just insist on "Red Devil" No 3-in-1, shown herewith. If you can't get it, send us his name and 6 2-cent stamps and one sample only will be sent you, postpaid. The 3 wheels will cut any kind of glass.

The Market.

Both wholesale and retail business is quiet just now and on some days it seems to be at a standstill. The few good showers which have fallen during the last week have brightened up things considerably, and the aster crop is looking a hundred per cent better. In many cases, owing to the drought, the asters are small and short-stemmed, but a few growers who are fortunate enough to have any kind of sprinkling system have good stock. Gladioli have benefited also by the rains and they are arriving in fairly large quantities, but do not clear fast. Sweet peas are not overplentiful, but they are of good quality. A few Japanese and auratum lilies are seen and are used chiefly for funeral work. Easter lilies are plentiful. There is a good supply of roses on hand and good shipments arrive each day. There is no special demand for American Beauties at this time. There are few carnations and the quality is poor. There do not seem to be any large cuttings of asters. The supply of greens meets all requirements.

Various Notes.

By way of change, H. E. Wilson had an unusually heavy run of funeral work last week. Although business in general has been quiet, this store has been quite busy of late. Some fine gladioli are being grown.

Miss Lillian Wheeler, of J. B. Keller Sons, is away on a two weeks' vacation, visiting friends at Mt. Vernon, L. I., and New York city.

Joseph Werdein has just returned from a week's vacation.

The Lord & Burnham Co. has been doing good business recently. Among the best sales are: Mr. Benedun, Pittsburgh, Pa., material and erection of iron-frame house with curvilinear roof; A. H. Sharman, North Warren, Pa., iron-frame house, 32x150; A. H. Williams, Williamson, N. Y., pipe-frame house, 16x33 feet; Hike-Allen Co., Cortland, N. Y., two iron-frame houses, 40x200 feet; William J. Thomas, Barnard, N. Y., iron-frame house, 40x150. H. E. Bates, manager of the Rochester office, has been away on a business trip in western Pennsylvania; on his return he left for his vacation, to be spent in Wayne, Pa., and is now visiting the S. A. F. convention at Boston.

Arthur Elder recently returned from a business trip on which he visited Utica, Binghamton and Syracuse.

The Market.

The market last week was somewhat slow. The supply continued large, but the demand is hardly up to normal for this time of year. As a result, prices are low. The supply of gladioli continues large and steady and the greater part of the stock is of the same high quality as at the last writing. The glut of early asters is about over and large, choice late ones are coming in. The better grades bring good prices. The Easter lily cut is sufficient for requirements and contains some fine offerings. The rose market presents about the same front as at last report. There is plenty of stock of all varieties, but the sales are rather slow and the prices strictly buyers' prices. The majority of them are job-lot prices. Good auratum and rubrum lilies are offered in various quantities. Hardy hydrangeas find a limited market. The supply of greens is adequate for present requirements.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell has been receiving some fine blooms as the first of a new cut of giganteum lilies from the Hoffmeister Floral Co.

Miss Margaret Anstead, who has been a faithful and trusted employee of E. G. Gillett for the last five years, has resigned. Miss Anstead and Chas. K. Reidel are to marry August 20. Gordon Myers is now Mrs. Gillett's assistant.

During L. H. Kyrk's absence his son Frank is superintending the cleaning and repainting of Mr. Kyrk's place.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange has been receiving some fine Sunburst from Schumann & Wahlers, of Newport, Ky.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Business has experienced a slight increase during the last week, funeral work being especially brisk. Asters, roses, sweet peas and gladioli are of good quality and abundant.

Much concern has been manifested during the last week or ten days on the part of the growers of bulb stock as to whether they are going to be able to secure their usual stock of bulbs. Assurances have been received from American agents, within a few days, that the bulbs will be forthcoming on time.

Various Notes.

William Cohen, with Smith, the Florist, is taking a two weeks' vacation, which he is spending at Newport and Block Island.

The interior of the store of Johnston Bros. is being renovated and repainted, white and blue being the predominant colors.

Edward O'Brien has gone to Utica, N. Y., where he will remain for a three weeks' vacation.

Mr. Pierce, representing Lord & Burnham Co., arrived Saturday morning, August 15, to superintend the erection of the new house for Joseph Koppelman, at East Providence.

William Wilkinson, of Fall River, was a business visitor here last week and reported he was about to build a small greenhouse, 20x50 feet.

Max Fishelton, of M. Fishelton & Son, Boston, is spending a few weeks' vacation with relatives on Narragansett bay.

Miss Kreickstein, bookkeeper for Joseph Koppelman, is spending a fortnight's vacation in eastern Pennsylvania.

F. Macrae's Sons are devoting more time and glass to lilies, to the exclusion of mums, which have previously been featured. They will continue to raise the usual quantities of carnations.

Morris Miller has reopened his store at 637 Westminster street after several weeks' vacation.

The new greenhouses recently finished by O. H. Williams & Sons, at Pocasset, are being planted to chrysanthemums.

The postoffice department has notified Postmaster Walter A. Kilton that trees, plants, shrubs, etc., cannot be shipped outside of the area quarantined against the gypsy and brown-tail moths. There is a provision in the quarantine, however, that permits the shipping of certain trees or shrubs outside the quarantined area, providing they have been passed by the local representative of the Department of Agriculture and are certified to be clear from the pests. Five Carloads of L. & B. Material in These Atlanta Houses

THESE THREE HOUSES of the C. A. Dahl Co., of Atlanta, Ga., are each 30 x 500 feet. Last year, along came an order for another 30 x 500 and a propagating house 15 x 210. Are the Dahl people satisfied? Repeat orders like this are the most conclusive answer.

The southern grower must meet conditions entirely different from the northern man. To handle such conditions satisfactorily requires a definite and extensive familiarity with the south. For a long time we have been sending our representatives on frequent trips south—months at a time they are gone, each year. No other greenhouse concern does it. Logically no other is equipped to handle the southern florists' needs as successfully.

Ask the Dahl Co. if this is not so.

LANCASTER, PA.

Club Outing.

One of the most pleasant outings in the history of the Lancaster County Florists' Club occurred Thursday, August 13, when President B. F. Barr and wife entertained the club members and a few invited guests at Avondale farm, their beautiful home on the Marietta pike. At 2:15 the party left Lancaster and upon arriving at Avondale inspected the farm of 100 acres.

Everything was found in tiptop order. The immense plantings of evergreens, fancy shrubbery, shade trees, orchards and formal garden were of much interest to all. In addition are many acres of tobacco, corn and potatoes. The members indulged in sports on the beautiful lawn. In bowling on the green E. P. Hostetter, Jacob Flear, Mr. Schaefer, of York, and A. M. Herr defeated by a narrow margin L. S. Landis, Ira Landis, H. K. Rohrer and A. K. Rohrer. Pitching quoits, croquet and card playing were also in order. At 6:30 an excellent luncheon was served on the lawn. After cigars had been passed the monthly meeting of the club was called to order by President Barr.

H. K. Rohrer spoke about his recent trip to the British Isles and France, particularly of the parks and flowers seen there, and his visit to Wm. Wells, Merstham, Surrey, England. The club decided to send a beautiful prize to be awarded in the bowling contest at the Boston convention. Also a substantial amount will be sent to Chairman W. F. Gude toward the Smith memorial fund.

At the next meeting, in September, C. F. Edgar will speak on "The Florists' Business from a Retail Point of View." Our special representative at the S. A. F. convention, Albert M. Herr, will give his report.

One of the most enjoyable events of the evening was the delightful piano music by Mrs. Nellie Eichler. The illuminations about the veranda and lawn were most beautiful. On the motion of Charles M. Weaver, a vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Barr for their kind hospitality.

THE CONVENTION AFTERMATH

THE ENDING OF AN ENJOYABLE MEETING

THE CONVENTION OUTING.

The weather man is no friend of the Boston florists. He did his worst to spoil the grand finale of the 1914 convention. The day of the outing dawned damp and showery. It was at first feared that the excursion would have to be called off, but as sailing time approached the clouds lifted and the boat left an hour after the advertised time with 1,080 persons on board, according to the purser's count of tickets.

The Boston committee had planned, with special consideration for the visitors from the interior, to spend the greater part of the day on the waters of the harbor and only the inclemency of the weather interfered with their arrangements to make the outing historic in the annals of the S. A. F. To do the hospitalities the Boston florists, their families and friends turned out in large numbers. Considerably more than half the people on the boat were local, present to see that their guests spent an enjoyable day.

The steamer Mary Standish, with a licensed capacity of 1,800, had been chartered. The trip down the harbor, always interesting to one not habituated, held additional novelty because of the presence of many a war-bound boat flying a European flag.

The first stop was at old Fort Warren. This is an island, entirely covered by fortifications, at which boats ordinarily are not permitted to land. The soldiers have a fine diamond on the parade ground inside the fort, the use of which had been secured through the issuance of a special permit by the Secretary of War. It was the first time most of the visitors ever had seen a United States harbor defense fort, much less the inside of one, and an hour was spent most enjoyably in parading the parapet and inspecting the quarters of the garrison and the big disappearing guns that have the power to throw a projectile twelve inches in diameter for a distance of ten miles.

The baseball game, All America against the Convention City, was unusually well contested, Old Charlie Graham scoring another victory in the last half of the fifth inning by a score of 12 to 11. The Clevelander has been pitching the visitors to victory these many years, but his arm is not so good as it was in his younger days and success is less certain. His team this year was a veritable All American aggregation, his catcher being Beuerlein, of Elmhurst, L. I., and his right fielder Ferrari, of San Francisco. The Boston battery was Marshall and Filson, both good, but Marshall was driven from the slab in the third inning and Celari, a left hander, was called in from center field to stem the tide. The grounds were soaked, making every play a chance.

After the ball game the races were started, only to be interrupted by the heaviest shower of the day and everyone ran for the boat, where 3,000 sandwiches and quantities of coffee and ginger ale were made quickly to disappear. The downpour held off just long enough to enable C. E. Critchell, of Cincinnati, to settle old scores with Robert Shoch, of Philadelphia, by beating him in the fat men's race. Last year at Minneapolis the honors were the other way around. The prize this year was a ten-dollar gold piece, which Mr. Critchell promptly donated to the W. R. Smith Memorial fund. The prizes this year were all of exceptional quality and value and it is to be regretted that the events could not have been run off in such ideal surroundings under the cheering influence of pleasant skies.

When the shower drove the crowd to the boat an immediate start was made for a sail down the bay as far as Boston light. Then a course was set for Nantucket, where a shore dinner was served at the new Rockland House, the best hotel on the beach. A shower that came up just as the boat landed at Nantucket drove everyone in haste to cover and settled down into a steady rain that put an end to outdoor amusements. At the dinner President and Mrs. Wirth were presented with the chest of silver that annually falls to the lot of the presiding officer and his better half.

The local chairman on entertainment was E. Allan Peirce and the local chairman on sports was W. R. Nicholson. Each had many willing assistants and the affair certainly would have set a new mark for convention entertainments had it not been for the rain—the first time it has rained on Friday of convention week in more than ten years, although there has been an occasional shower.

The results of the athletic contests were as follows:

Baseball game—All Stars, 9; Boston, 8.
Boys' race—Phil. Roland, first; Victor Huerlin, second; T. Roland, third.
Girls' race—Margaret Illiffe, first; A. Palmer, second; N. Pierce, third.
Single ladies' race—E. Illiffe, first; C. Neilson, second.
Married ladies' race—Mrs. Geo. Smith, first; Mrs. Chas. Clapp, second; Mrs. E. J. Rogean, third.
Open race, 100 yards—R. E. Jones, first; W. Illiffe, second; Eisenhardt, third.
Fat men's race—C. E. Critchell, first; Robt. Shoch, second; C. C. Taylor, third.

General View of Indoor Plant Exhibits at the Boston Convention, with Henry A. Dreer's Display in the Foreground.

Three-legged race—Sloane and Carr, first; Illiffe and Collins, second.
Sack race—W. J. Collins, first; Curry, second.

All prize-winners who did not receive their prizes before leaving Boston will kindly send their addresses to W. R. Nicholson, Framingham, Mass., chairman of the local sports committee, and the prizes will be forwarded to them.

LADIES' S. A. F.

During the meeting of the Ladies' S. A. F. at Boston, Mrs. Chas. E. Critchell, the retiring president, and Mrs. A. M. Herr, treasurer, were each presented with a cut glass electrolier. Presentations were made respectively by Mrs. W. W. Edgar and Mrs. Chas. H. Maynard.

This year's meeting marks a new era, members pleading for the extension of the society's work into business and educational lines, leaving out some of the social work. One way the Ladies' S. A. F. showed its members' good will was in giving $25 to the W. R. Smith memorial fund.

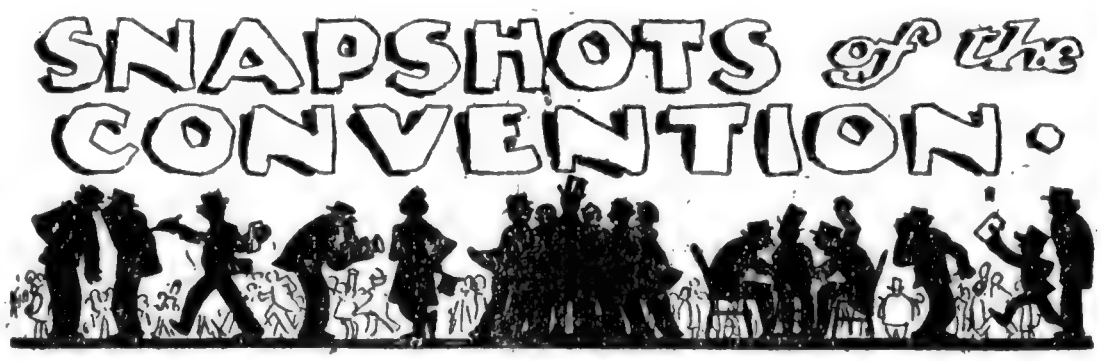
CATALOGUES AT WASHINGTON.

In connection with his report as Washington representative of the S. A. F., delivered at the Boston convention last week, Wm. F. Gude presented data supplied by P. L. Bicker, assistant botanist of the bureau of plant industry at Washington, in regard to the large collection of catalogues kept by his bureau for reference by the trade. Mr. Bicker wrote:



"The office of economic and systematic botany, of the bureau of plant industry, maintains a large collection of nursery, seed and flower catalogues, which are used mainly in supplying correspondents with information as to where they can obtain certain varieties of plants. The correspondents making such requests are supplied with the names of two or three of the firms nearest to their locality. In order to make the information in these catalogues more readily available, all names are indexed on cards 4x6 inches, with the names of all firms carrying the variety in stock stamped on the back of the cards. There are at present over 26,000 varieties included in the index, of which the larger part are in the American nursery trade.

"The office of horticultural and pomological investigations, which is making a study of the varieties of American roses, is constantly using this index in its work, and the federal horticultural board utilizes it extensively as a basis for granting or refusing permits for importing stock from countries which have not approved inspection laws.

"In order to be able to supply similar information to the trade, the indexing of foreign catalogues has been begun. Catalogues for the current 5-year period are kept in the same room as the index. Those back of the 5-year period are deposited in the main library of the Department of Agriculture.

"The collection probably numbers over 50,000 catalogues, a considerable number of them having been issued between 1825 and 1850. These old catalogues are of great value in tracing the history of the origin of cultivated varieties.

"These catalogues constitute a permanent file, kept in a fireproof building, and are available for examination at any time."

Joseph Heacock left Boston for Buffalo, whence he took a steamer for a lake trip to Duluth, by way of a vacation.

There are 128 men who claim each to have cast that one deciding vote that sent the 1915 convention to San Francisco.

Knoxville, Tenn., was the best represented city in the United States at the Boston convention. With four present it was claimed that there was only one stay-at-home, an attendance of eighty per cent. Not even Boston itself did so well.

The ladies never had a finer entertainment than the automobile ride up the north shore to Manchester, with luncheon there, and, had it not rained, the Friday outing would have eclipsed anything other cities have been able to show their visitors.

Boston was not a good business convention according to most of the exhibitors, but at least two salesmen are known to have taken single orders amounting to an even $1,000 each, and one of them reports two others for $800 and $900, respectively.

The chances are good that the trade exhibit that will pay best in the long run was the unique display of Penn, the first exclusive retail cut flower exhibit ever made at a convention. There was not a penny of direct return, but a lot of florists were impressed with the idea that Penn caters for telegraph orders for Boston delivery.

Boston's mayor made a hit with the florists, but Massachusett's governor had them standing on their feet to cheer. They both are strong for flowers and we are strong for both of them.

"San Francisco is entitled to the convention, so let's help get it," was the remark of many a man who is as likely to go to San Francisco as to any other convention held west of the Hudson.

"You present can send the society to California," said W. A. Manda, "but who will bring it back? Once there the western voters will keep it on the coast as long as they like." No worry. The average city is as glad to see the convention go as it was anxious to have it come.

There was considerable complaint that persons not exhibitors were soliciting and taking orders in violation of the rules. The salesman for one Holland bulb house was distributing a circular quoting bulbs at prices so low as to make it a crime as well as a contravention of the rules, so the superintendent shut down the lid.

Under the new plan of affiliation, the presidents of the F. T. D., the Hail Association and probably one or two other trade organizations will become directors of the S. A. F. January 1, entitled to all the privileges and recompenses of the other directors. It was unkind of the old board to cut them out of mileage to San Francisco by voting that the March meeting should be held in some central city.

ASSOCIATION OF GARDENERS.

The summer meeting of the National Association of Gardeners, held at Paul Revere hall, Boston, August 19, was one of the most successful ever held by the organization. William J. Kennedy, president of the Boston Gardeners' and Florists' Club, in welcoming the gathering to Boston, referred to the importance of strong organization to protect the interests of the profession and stated that he believed the National Association of Gardeners, if properly supported by the gardeners, can materially aid the profession and increase the opportunities for those engaged in it.

President Wm. H. Waite, of the National Association of Gardeners, responded to Mr. Kennedy's address of welcome. He then introduced Daniel MacRorie, of San Francisco, who presented an invitation from the Panama-Pacific Exposition and the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society to the National Association of Gardeners to convene at San Francisco during the exposition next year. The association voted to accept the invitation and hold its summer meeting in San Francisco in 1915.

President Theodore Wirth, of the S. A. F., and a director of the National Association of Gardeners, spoke of the opportunities which are presenting themselves in the west for the ambitious and efficient gardener. Mr. Wirth expressed it as his opinion that while still in the development stage, the private estates in the west are beginning to compare favorably with those of the east. He said western people are becoming interested in country estates in their own territory and the capable gardener will be more in demand there than he has been heretofore.

Wm. F. Gude, of Washington, made an appeal for the William R. Smith memorial and in response it was voted that the N. A. G. open a subscription list to enable members and others who might desire to contribute to this fund to do so.

Prof. Edward A. White, of Cornell University, spoke of the opportunities that are now offered to young men in different colleges to secure a training in horticulture and floriculture and gave a brief outline of the work the New York College of Agriculture is now engaged in.

John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., read a paper on "What the S. A. F. Should Do for the Private Gardener," written by Arthur E. Thatcher, of Bar Harbor, Me., who was to deliver it before the meeting, but was suddenly called away from the convention. A general discussion followed.

Arthur Smith, of Reading, Pa., contributed an interesting paper on "The Profession of Gardening," relating the history of the profession and discussing in detail the ups and downs that are encountered within the profession. The paper, which was read by Secretary Ebel, was acknowledged to be a strong document on the many phases that enter into the profession of gardening. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Smith for his able paper.

On a motion by W. N. Craig, President Waite appointed Mr. Craig and Duncan Finlayson, of Brookline, Mass., and M. C. Ebel, of Madison, N. J., a committee to draft a resolution conveying to the brother horticulturists abroad the sympathy of the members of the association in the terrible calamity that surrounds the European horticulturists at the present time.

Following a general discussion of various problems with which gardeners are confronted from time to time, in which a number present participated, the meeting adjourned.

At the meeting of the executive board, held in the forenoon, it was voted to invite all florists' clubs having private gardeners enrolled in their membership to join in the coöperative movement of the N. A. G. to arouse a greater public interest in horticulture. The coöperative committee reported twenty-two organizations enrolled in the movement to date, which include two from California, one from Texas and one from Louisiana. It was also voted to hold the next annual convention in Philadelphia during the first week in December, to which exhibits of novelties and rare plants will be invited in competition for the association's certificate of merit.

ENTOMOLOGIST'S REPORT.

[The following is the report of Prof. W. E. Britton, entomologist for the S. A. F., presented at the Boston convention August 19, 1914.]

As entomologist for your society, I fully expected to receive from plant growers all over the country inquiries and specimens relating to insect troubles. Such inquiries during the last year have been given due attention, but they have been few outside of my own state of Connecticut.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

CAPTURING ROLLING DOLLARS.

Many young men, launching into business for themselves, are too intent on capturing the dollar, or getting rich in get-rich-quick style. In consequence they sometimes fail. The first intent of the man opening a store, or starting any other business, must be to give the public genuine service. His mind must be concentrated upon that, and the details of giving such service must be worked out and put into operation. Then the rolling dollars automatically roll his way.

Failure to give first concern to the customer is going at the matter backwards. To give all thought to the dollars coming is to apply the brakes before we get a good start. The customer's welfare is the merchant's principal concern today.

OCEAN LINES RESUME SAILINGS.

Although not many passengers of the class which has made this business profitable to florists will be booked in the near future, steamer sailings have been resumed on regular schedules by most of the large companies, except, of course, the German lines, which have definitely suspended operations. Changes may be made at any time to meet conditions on the other side of the sea, but definite plans have been announced for present sailings.

The Cunard line resumed service from New York to Liverpool August 15 with the Saxonia. Weekly sailings on Wednesday are the rule, and the following sailings have been given out: August 19, Laconia; August 26, Campania; September 9, Mauretania; September 12, Saxonia; September 16, Campania; September 23, Lusitania; September 30, Mauretania; October 7, Campania; October 14, Lusitania. The Cunard service to Queenstown and Liverpool from Boston will be partially restored next month, these sailings being announced: September 5, Franconia; September 15, Laconia; September 29, Franconia. The London line from Montreal and Quebec starts again August 29 with the sailing of the Andania, followed September 5 by the Ascania and September 10 by the Alaunia.

The Anchor line, New York to Glasgow, has scheduled the following: August 29, Cameronia; September 5, Columbia; September 12, Ansonia; September 19, Caledonia.

The White Star line will maintain service from New York to Liverpool on Thursdays with the Olympic, the Celtic, the Baltic, the Adriatic and the Cedric. The Cretic will probably take the Cymric's place in the Tuesday sailings from Boston.

The French line anticipates no interruption in carrying out its schedule, but has revised the sailings announced for the immediate future. The schedule from New York now stands: August 29, Chicago; September 5, Espagne; September 12, Rochambeau; September 16, France. After that a steamer a week, as usual, is promised.

The Holland-America line foresees no change in its sailings to Rotterdam, as announced early in the spring, except that the stops at Plymouth and Boulogne-Sur-Mer are omitted. The sailings from New York scheduled are: September 1, Noordam; September 8, Ryndam; September 15, Rotterdam.

Although the above sailings have been definitely announced, changes may be made at any time, as developments on the other side of the water are learned.

TO DESTROY CUTWORMS.

Can you give us the life history of cutworms and any good remedy for them besides hand-picking? We have a hard dose of these cutworms, finding them by the hundreds and almost by the thousands, both in the greenhouses and outdoors. They are doing great damage to the tomatoes and chrysanthemums, and hand-picking is an endless job. T. H. W.

While hand-picking—which has to be done at night to be of any value, as these pests are night marauders—is a partial remedy, it is a slow and tedious one. The best way to destroy large numbers is to make a poisoned mash and scatter it each evening about their haunts. To a bushel of fresh shorts, add sufficient Paris green to color it. Half a pound will suffice. Pour some molasses over this mixture and then add water until it makes the whole into a paste. Leaves of cabbage or lettuce poisoned with Paris green are also eaten with avidity.

Scatter fresh soft coal soot freely among your plants. It is offensive to cutworms and is, at the same time, an excellent fertilizer. Fresh rhubarb leaves or pine shingles, laid here and there on the beds each evening and examined in the morning, will be used as hiding places by many. Pick up and destroy these daily. Keep this warfare up and you should soon heavily reduce the numbers of your foes. Hydrocyanic acid gas has been tried for cutworms in carnations, but did not prove effective. Sterilization of your soil another year would be the best plan to clean out these and all other soil pests. C. W.

HYDRANGEA OTAKSA.

Kindly advise us when dormant plants of Hydrangea Otaksa, imported from Holland, should be forced to bring them in for Christmas, and when for Easter. F. & L.

Hydrangea Otaksa cannot be successfully forced for Christmas. For Easter start the plants twelve weeks in advance of that date, giving 50 degrees at night at first, later 60 degrees, and running cooler as the flower heads develop. C. W.

SPRAY FOR BEETLES.

We send you herewith a specimen of a beetle and a leaf showing its work. As it is doing considerable damage, we would thank you for information concerning a remedy for it. S. & Y. C.

This particular beetle I am unacquainted with. In common with all other leaf-eating pests, it can be easily destroyed by spraying with arsenate of lead at the rate of four pounds to fifty gallons of water. Use a fine, misty spray nozzle, and direct the spray below rather than above the foliage. So that the operation will be thoroughly effective, choose a sunny day, when the foliage is dry. Your state experimental station could probably give you precise data regarding this beetle, but the above poison will destroy it without injury to even tender foliage.

DISEASED DRACÆNAS.

I am sending under separate cover a few diseased plants and some spotted leaves of Dracæna terminalis. These spots only appear on the oldest foliage. In cutting off the lowest leaves, no harm is done, but the removal of one of the next size always shows a little empty space, deforming a plant more or less. Probably the trouble is due to the syringing, as the edges of the side boards reach about an inch and a half or two inches above the soil, making it difficult to get underneath the lowest foliage. So I thought there might be some leaves that I never struck and the original trouble was red spider, which later caused these spots. The plants have been growing in benches since the beginning of June and are at present in strong, healthy condition.

In addition to the plants which are so affected, there is another lot of plants, consisting of young stock repotted from 3-inch into 4-inch pots about two or three weeks ago. This lot contains the diseased plants of which I have sent you the samples. The greenhouse was half shaded. I am spraying with nicotine extract occasionally. The night temperature is 64 to 66 degrees.

C. S.

The dracænas in question look as though they had been a little too wet at the root, and such a condition would be likely to cause the loss of the lower leaves. If I understand correctly, these dracænas are planted out in the benches, and if that be the case, it would be quite easy to get them too wet, especially while there is little or no heat under the benches, as in summer.

The spotted leaves of Dracæna terminalis are affected with a fungoid disease known to growers as spot. This trouble is also aggravated by too much water, either at the root or overhead, and is quite likely to appear if the plants are syringed late in the day, so that the foliage remains wet at night. Of course it is necessary to syringe to keep down red spider, but do it early in the day, particularly when the days get shorter.

W. H. T.

REMOVING VIOLET RUNNERS.

My violet plants are, many of them, ten inches across the top and they have many runners. Should they be cut back so as to throw more strength into the plants? Also tell me when to take them in from the field in this Maryland climate. Should the frost hit them before they are taken in?

R. L.

If you have not removed any runners yet from your violets, it is time to do so. The central or crown portions of the plants are what produce the finest flowers. Of course the runners would all flower, but the stems would be short and the flowers would not be equal in size to those produced on the crowns. Keep these runners cut off close to the crowns, in order to strengthen the latter. Double violets in your latitude could be housed after the middle of September, but probably you are growing singles and these should be left out much later, and until they have had one or two freezings. Do not, however, subject them to a lower temperature than 26 or 28 degrees. If you house the plants before frost has checked the rank leaf growth, you are likely to get a heavy crop of leaves at the expense of flowers.

C. W.

CLUB ROOT ON VIOLETS.

Under separate cover I am sending you some violet plants which I wish you would examine. I think they have root gall and bud nematodes. You will see that the crowns are blind and the nodules are on the roots. Is it best to burn these plants?

E. R. D.

Your violets certainly are affected with club root, and it would be well to destroy all such plants. It will not do to plant violets on the same ground next season, as the spores of this disease persist in the soil. Give the land a thorough liming, plow and leave rough over winter. Better buy from some reputable grower rather than plant any stock the least infected.

C. W.

WILL SOME READER REPLY?

I wonder if any of your readers would know of a machine for grinding horn for fertilizer. We have plenty of horn in this country and could use it if we were able to procure a grinding machine.

R. F. C.

ASTERS NOT OPENING WELL.

My Astermums do not open evenly. Some buds had a brown, decayed center. These I cut off, but nearly all of the healthy looking buds open only partly; they seem to fill out after several days, however. The plants have numerous side shoots. Should these be trimmed off? As it is pretty dry here, we have to irrigate.

H. U.

I think a lack of moisture at the roots is probably responsible for your Astermums not opening better. Keep them well irrigated while they are flowering and stir the surface soil frequently. The side shoots should not be cut off, as they will give you a good successional crop of flowers. Do not be discouraged because a few of the terminal flowers are not perfect. This is not at all an exceptional experience.

They are doing great damage to the tomatoes and chrysanthemums, and hand-picking is an endless job. T. H. W.

While hand-picking—which has to be done at night to be of any value, as these pests are night marauders—is a partial remedy, it is a slow and tedious one. The best way to destroy large numbers is to make a poisoned mash and scatter it each evening about their haunts. To a bushel of fresh shorts, add sufficient Paris green to color it. Half a pound will suffice. Pour molasses over this mixture and add water until it makes the whole a paste. Leaves of cabbage or lettuce poisoned with Paris green are eaten with avidity.

Scatter fresh soft coal soot freely among your plants. It is offensive to cutworms and is, at the same time, an excellent fertilizer. Fresh rhubarb leaves or pine shingles, laid here and there on the beds each evening and examined in the morning, will be used as hiding places by many. Pick up and destroy these daily. Keep this welfare up and you should soon heavily reduce the numbers of your foes. Hydrocyanic acid gas has been tried for cutworms in carnations, but did not prove effective. Sterilization of your soil another year would be the best plan to clean out these and all other soil pests. C. W.

HYDRANGEA OTAKSA.

Kindly advise us when dormant plants of Hydrangea Otaksa, imported from Holland, should be forced to bring them in for Christmas, and when for Easter. F. & I.

Hydrangea Otaksa cannot be successfully forced for Christmas. For Easter start the plants twelve weeks in advance of that date, giving 50 degrees at night at first, later 60 degrees and running cooler as the flower heads develop. C. W.

SPRAY FOR BEETLES.

We send you herewith a specimen of a beetle and a leaf showing its work. As it is doing considerable damage, we would thank you for information concerning a remedy for it. S. & Y. C.

This particular beetle I am unacquainted with. In common with other leaf-eating pests, it can be easily destroyed by spraying with arsenate of lead at the rate of four pounds to fifty s of water. Use a fine, misty nozzle, and direct the spray be ather than above the foliage. So the operation will be thoroughly tive, choose a sunny day, when the ge is dry. Your state experimen station could probably give you se data regarding this beetle, but bove poison will destroy it with nury to even tender foliage.

DISEASED DRACÆNAS.

These only appear on the oldest foliage. atting off the lowest leaves, no done, but the removal of one e next size always shows a little space, deforming a plant more a. Probably the trouble is due to syringing, as the edges of the spo s reach about an inch and a half s inches above the soil, making it ult to get underneath the lowest es. So I thought there might be leaves that I never struck, and the eal trouble was red spider, which caused these spots. The plants been growing in benches since the ning of June and are at present in g, healthy condition.

addition to the plants which are ffected, there is another lot of ts, consisting of young stock re ved from 3-inch into 4-inch pots two or three weeks ago. This lot ains the diseased plants of which e sent you the samples. The green- was half shaded. I am spraying nicotine extract occasionally. The temperature is 61 to 66 degrees.

e dracænas in question look as s they had been a little too wet e root, and such a condition would ely to cause the loss of the lower s. If I understand correctly, these nas are planted out in the benches. f that be the case, it would be easy to get them too wet, espe while there is little or no heat the benches, as in summer.

e spotted leaves of Dracæna ter ls are affected with a fungoid dis known to growers as spot. This trouble is also aggravated by too much water, either at the root or overhead, and is quite likely to appear if the plants are syringed late in the day, so that the foliage remains wet at night. Of course it is necessary to syringe to keep down red spider, but do it early in the day, particularly when the days get shorter.

REMOVING VIOLET RUNNERS.

My violet plants are, many of them, ten inches across the top and they have many runners. Should they be cut back so as to throw more strength into the plants? Also tell me when to take them in from the field in this Maryland climate. Should the frost hit them before they are taken in? R. L.

If you have not removed any runners yet from your violets, it is time to do so. The central or crown portions of the plants are what produce the finest flowers. Of course the runners would all flower, but the stems would be short and the flowers would not be equal in size to those produced on the crowns. Keep these runners cut off close to the crowns, in order to strengthen the latter. Double violets in your latitude could be housed after the middle of September, but probably you are growing singles and these should be left out much later, and until they have had one or two freezings. Do not, however, subject them to a lower temperature than 26 or 28 degrees. If you house the plants before frost has checked the rank leaf growth, you are likely to get a heavy crop of leaves at the expense of flowers.

C. W.

CLUB ROOT ON VIOLETS.

Under separate cover I am sending you some violet plants which I wish you would examine. I think they have root gall and bud nematodes. You will see that the crowns are blind and the nodules are on the roots. Is it best to burn these plants? E. R. D.

Your violets certainly are affected with club root, and it would be well to destroy all such plants. It will not do to plant violets on the same ground next season, as the spores of this disease persist in the soil. Give the land a thorough liming, plow and leave rough over winter. Better buy from some reputable grower rather than plant any stock the least infected. C. W.

WILL SOME READER REPLY?

I wonder if any of your readers would know of a machine for grinding horn for fertilizer. We have plenty of horn in this country and could use it if we were able to procure a grinding machine. R. F. C.

ASTERS NOT OPENING WELL.

My Asternums do not open evenly. Some buds had a brown, decayed center. These I cut off, but nearly all of the healthy looking buds open only partly; they seem to fill out after several days, however. The plants have numerous side shoots. Should these be trimmed off? As it is pretty dry here we have to irrigate. H. F.

I think a lack of moisture at the roots is probably responsible for your Asternums not opening better. Keep them well irrigated while they are flowering and stir the surface soil frequently. The side shoots should not be cut off, as they will give you a good successional crop of flowers. Do not be discouraged because a few of the terminal flowers are not perfect. This is not at all an exceptional experience.

C. W.

SEASONABLE NOTES.

Lælia Anceps.

Lælia anceps requires merely sufficient shade to prevent its foliage from becoming burned. The plants should be hung as close to the glass as possible and sprayed each afternoon. Where but a few are grown, dipping the pans or baskets in a tub of water goes ahead of pouring water on them from the hose. Plants which were repanned last spring will not flower freely, like more established stock.

Masdevallias.

The curious and withal interesting and pretty orchids, the masdevallias, need at this season the cooler end of the coolest house, whatever that may be. Protect them from the sun's rays. Keep them a little dry at the roots during the hot weather. Keep the ventilators wide open all night where they are growing.

Cypripediums.

Many of the cypripediums love a moist, hot greenhouse. Others, such as the old, reliable C. insigne and its varieties, do better in a cooler house. In fact, I have never seen finer plants anywhere than some that were grown outside under the shade of trees. They never heeded wind or weather and always flowered splendidly. All cypripediums love a spraying once a day, but it is better that they should be dry before nightfall. The flower spikes on some of the winter bloomers will be showing in a few weeks, especially on insigne and its many varieties. A striking cypripedium now flowering is C. caudatum, an old sort but interesting. The sepals and petals are yellowish brown; the scape is twelve to fifteen inches high, carrying two or three flowers. The tail-like petals are twenty-four to thirty inches long, and a plant of this species in a store window would draw crowds of visitors. This cypripedium, or selenipedium, as the botanists term it, is of easy culture, doing well in a pan or basket of fern fiber and chopped sphagnum moss.

FORCING AZALEAS.

When should Azalea Indica imported from Belgium be forced to have them in time for Christmas, and also for Easter? F. & L.

Some varieties of Azalea Indica can be flowered for Christmas. Among them are Mme. Petrick, Charles Encke, Deutsche Perle, Apollo, Simon Mardner and Vervæneana. Start as soon as received in a brisk, moist heat and keep the plants freely syringed. For Easter, start eight weeks in advance of that date. Give plenty of heat at first, later a lower temperature. Good late sorts are Vander Cruyssen, Niobe, Empress of India and Schryveriana. Owing to the European war it is doubtful if many azaleas will arrive this season from Belgium. C. W.

SHASTA DAISIES FOR MARKET.

I should like to know how to grow Shasta daisies profitably. I intend to grow a good patch next season outdoors. Can they be raised from seed and when should the seed be sown here, in eastern Missouri? When would be the best time to start them from cuttings? P. J. G.

The various forms of Chrysanthemum maximum, or Shasta daisy, are easily raised from seed. If sown at once, you will have nice plants before cold weather. Of course, had you sown a month ago, it would have been better, but it is not too late yet. The Shasta daisies are also easily propagated by division of the roots. Alaska and King Edward VII are extra fine varieties of the Shasta daisy. C. W.

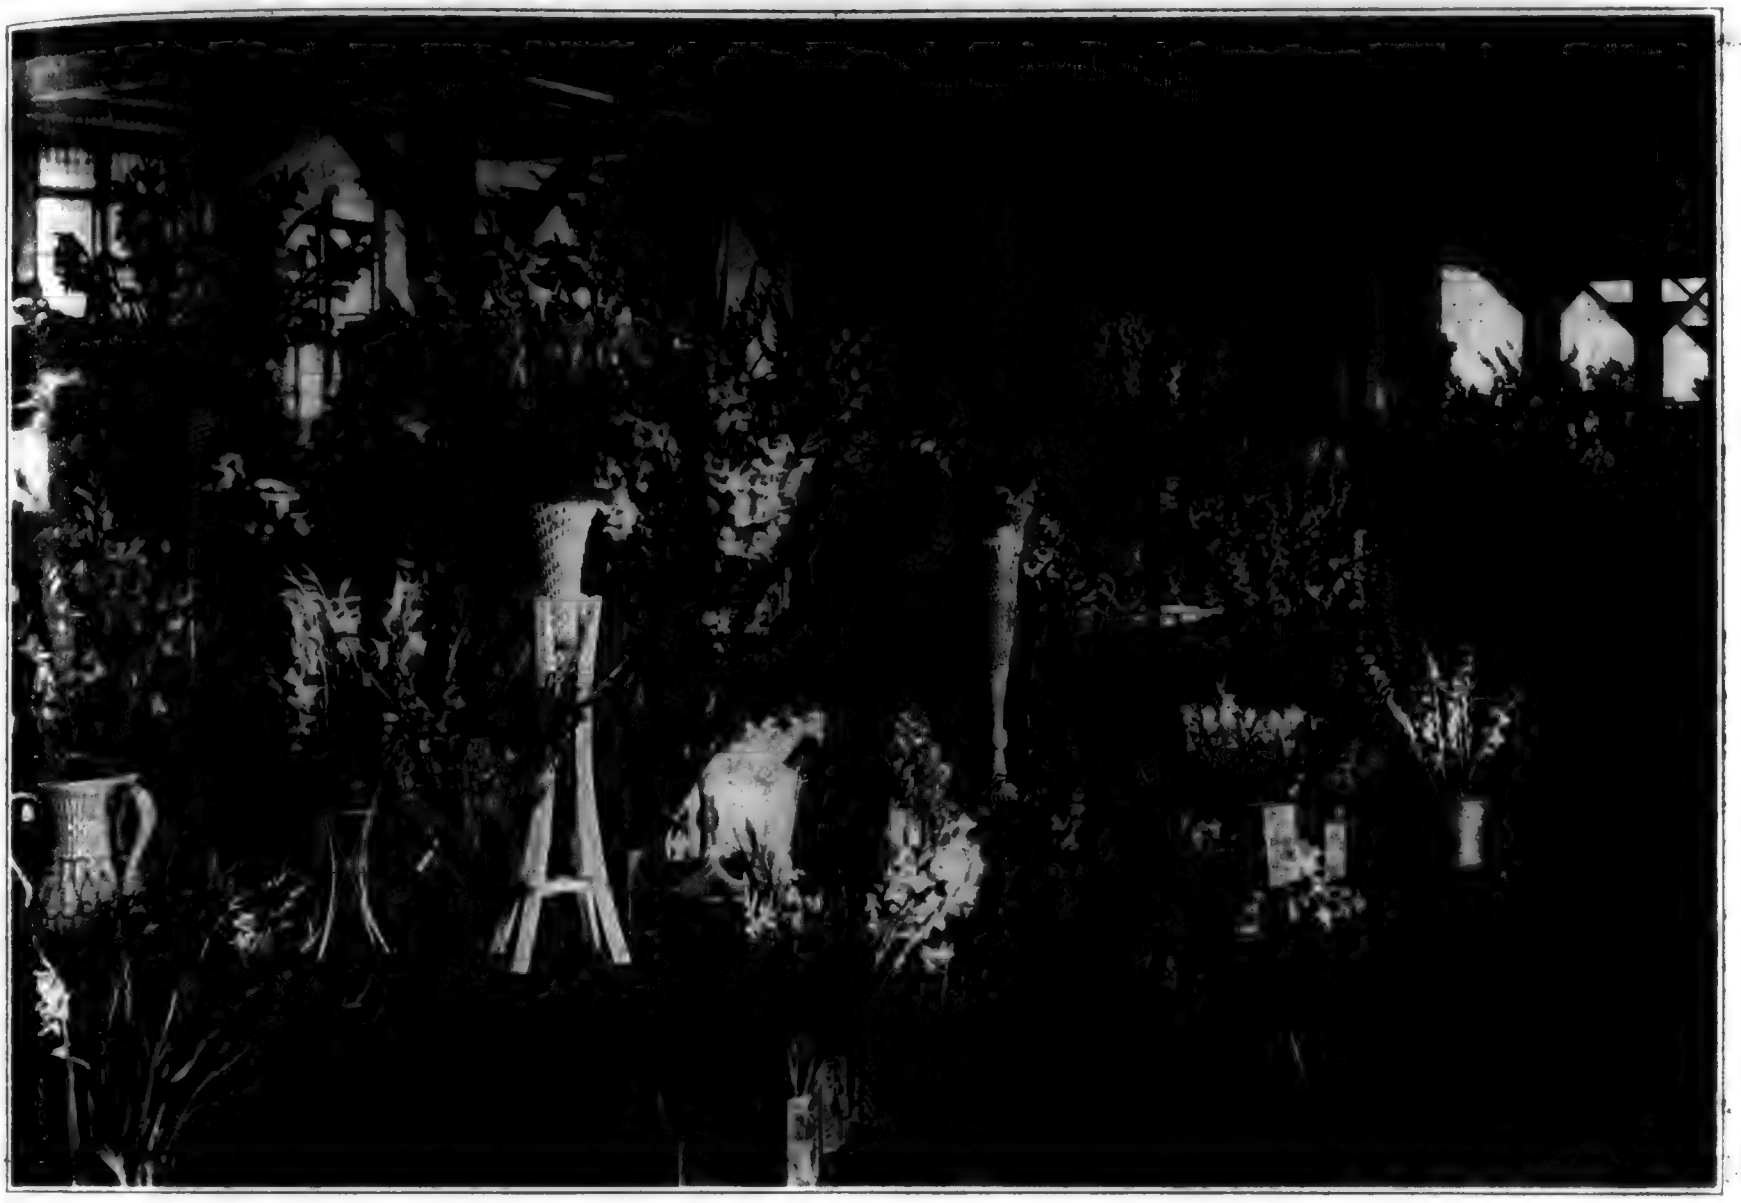
BUDDLEIAS.

At this season, when really good flowers are not overabundant, buddleias prove of great value as cut flowers. Comparatively few country florists realize how useful they are, or even know them, and for their benefit let me say that they are Chinese shrubs which propagate almost as easily as coleus, are of rapid growth and bloom most profusely in July, August and September. The handsome reddish-violet racemes are nine to eighteen inches long and are splendid for cutting, or in funeral work. A wreath of Buddleia variabilis rising from a loose bed of Lilium speciosum album would charm anyone. B. variabilis is the best variety for florists. The finest forms of this are Veitchiana and superba. The plants will grow six feet high the first season in good soil, and withstand a temperature of 20 degrees below zero. They usually die down to near the ground, but they do much better anyway when cut down hard each spring. There is a pure white variety, B. Asiatica, commonly called white winter lilac, flowering in December and January. This is suitable for culture in pots or tubs. All the buddleias are deliciously scented.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Poinsettias.

The latest batch of poinsettia cuttings should have been potted up before now. As soon as they become established in their pots they will be found useful for making up into small pans, 6-inch being a serviceable size. Plants which are to be grown singly in 5-inch or 6-inch pots should now be in their flowering pots. None of the poinsettias should be given much heat; a cool, airy greenhouse or even a coldframe is what they need until the nights become colder. The time when they really need a good heat is after the bracts show. Until that time arrives they do well in a comparatively cool house.



French Bulbs.

Just as soon as the Paper Whites and Roman hyacinths arrive, a good batch should be placed in flats. The Paper Whites will not need any covering with loam or coal ashes, as they start readily without it, but the hyacinths should be buried for some time. A place in the open air is just as good as any other at this season. Any rains which fall will not harm them in the least. A number of growers have tried the French Golden Spur and other narcissi on a small scale of late years, and manage to flower some for Christmas. All the bulbs may not bloom, but as the price at or before Christmas is inviting, they pay fairly well. The Guernsey bulbs are likely to cut more of a figure in future years. These flower much more freely than the French bulbs, which they immediately follow. A good many of these are now imported by way of Rotterdam.

The great European war will more or less delay bulb arrivals, but I do not look for any shortage of these; in fact, the prices now quoted are appreciably lower than in the spring. The countries at war will, no doubt, cancel many orders, and America, as one of the few neutral countries, will probably be flooded with surplus bulbs, to be sold on commission. The markets are likely to be well supplied with bulbous flowers in the coming winter and spring.

Cinerarias.

Now that the nights are growing cooler, cinerarias are making much more rapid growth. Answering recent inquiries regarding the time to sow these plants, I would say that while the seed will now germinate freely, the plants will be somewhat late. Cinerarias, to bloom in the early part of the new year, should now be in 3-inch pots. They make rapid headway from this time on and should never be allowed to become in the least potbound before being potted on. A coldframe is the ideal place for them for some time yet.

Freesias.

The earliest batch of freesias will now have made considerable growth. Keep them in a coldframe for some time yet and protect them from rains. A second batch was placed in pans August 15 and a third lot will be started September 1. The last planting will be made about September 20. After that date I do not find it advisable to start freesias, for, while they grow quickly, they never produce flower stems of more than half the height of the early batches.

Schizanthus Wisetonensis.

The most useful and free-flowering annual, Schizanthus Wisetonensis, if wanted in flower early in the new year, should be sown now. The seeds germinate quickly and care should be taken not to draw them up in a shady house. Give them full light, to keep them stocky. Transplant them into flats and later pot them off singly, using a light but rich soil. Always remember that to grow schizanthus well it must be grown near the glass all the time, and kept cool. A winter minimum of 40 to 45 degrees is ample. At 50 degrees the plants are sure to become drawn and leggy.

Genistas.

Genistas now are making rapid growth. If formal plants are wanted, the heads will require clipping into shape every three weeks. I note that a good many purchasers prefer plants which are allowed to grow more naturally and it would be well to cater to both tastes. Genistas should be left outdoors for some weeks yet, even in the more northerly states. A light frost will not harm them.

Transplanting Seedlings.

Recent rains have fallen at a time when they were much needed and they make it possible to take in hand any delayed transplanting of perennials and biennials, which year by year are becoming of greater importance to the average florist. Be sure the ground on which these are to go has been well loosened up and pulverized. Given these conditions, if the seedlings are set out carefully while the ground is moist, they will make rapid headway. To assist them, the hoe or cultivator should be frequently used among them. Delphiniums, aquilegias, digitalis, hollyhocks, Canterbury bells and many other plants should be transplanted now, and smaller subjects, such as pansies, daisies and forget-me-nots, should go either into coldframes or prepared beds as soon as of sufficient size. Be sure that any location selected is dry in winter, as few plants will successfully winter if they have wet feet.

Violets.

Double violets can be housed at any time now. The heavy night dews after the end of August, followed by hot days, will be found to induce the spot disease which has caused so many to discontinue their culture. Keep all runners carefully removed. They weaken the crowns if allowed to grow ad libitum.

Single violets must not be housed for some considerable time yet. They are now making grand growth and runners are being produced in great abundance. Keep these removed; it will mean a big saving in labor when the final housing time arrives. Lest anyone should be tempted to house his single violets this early, let me say that so doing is sure to result in failure. Singles are quite different from doubles, which latter can be and are grown under glass all the time in many cases. Unless the stronger singles have their exuberant leaf growth checked by one or two moderate freezings, it will be found that no matter how freely the house is ventilated they will continue to produce an immense crop of leaves at the expense of flowers. Therefore do not house any singles before the early part of October, unless frost comes to your assistance. South of New York city, November will be found on the whole a safer month to house the plants. Many growers now find they can be left out until after mums are pulled out, by giving the plants a light mulch to protect them from severe frost.

How much frost singles will stand without injury is an important question. All depends on how warm the season has been prior to the first freezing. Usually 26 to 28 degrees above zero is a sufficient freezing. I have found that at 22 degrees the plants were much injured; at least, their flowering qualities later in the season proved the temperature had been too low for them.

Chrysanthemums

ASTERS AND MUMS BLIGHTED.

We planted some early asters, Queen of the Market, and they seemed to grow satisfactorily until about the time they began to bud. Then some of them turned brown and died, and, as the buds come out, they are small and brown around the edges and look spoiled when they open. Some other plants in the same bed are all right. The bed is six inches deep and they have been fed with manure water. Also, among our chrysanthemums we have some Golden Glow that were planted quite early. Some of them have started to bloom and they act in about the same way as the asters. The buds turn brown before they are entirely open and any that do open are brown on the edges. The plants look fine and healthy. We should like to know what the trouble is, as we have later chrysanthemums in the same bed, strong, healthy looking plants now.

E. C. F.

I think the main cause of your trouble is probably overfeeding before the plants really need any additional food at all. Asters planted in six inches of good soil should need practically no feeding. If any is given at all, it should be after the buds have formed, and in small quantities. Cut out feeding your asters; also give the glass a light shading.

Chrysanthemum Golden Glow is an erratic bloomer. It produces flowers almost any month in the year. As these are of no value while good asters are in season, it is just as well to cut out any shoots which already throw flowers. Of course heavy feeding in hot weather would have the same effect on them as on the asters. Do not feed any of your chrysanthemums until the buds are formed, or the same trouble may appear on them. Also, watch the chrysanthemum cultural department of The Review, which will give you much valuable information from time to time.

C. W.

INFESTED WITH THRIPS.

I am sending you under separate cover a package containing some leaves of chrysanthemums and Golden Glow which are infested with an insect which has ruined our Golden Glow outdoors and has now got into the greenhouse and onto our chrysanthemums. We have tried the nicotine sprays, but they do not seem to have any effect on the bugs. Please tell us what the pest is and what we can do to get rid of it. Some of the glass is off our mum house, so we cannot fumigate at present.

T. B.

T. B. is evidently troubled with a species of the numerous family of thrips. The only way to get rid of this pest is to get a hose connection with a fine spray, and spray the plants thoroughly at every possible opportunity on the under side of the foliage, making it so unpleasant for the thrips that they will finally leave. This treatment must be applied persistently and consistently. Used in conjunction with applications of nicotine, it is the only method that will rid the plants of these insects, since, as T. B. says, the glass is off the house and he cannot fumigate at present. Vigorous spraying will keep chrysanthemums clean when fumigation is not possible.

MUMS FOR POT CULTURE.

Kindly tell us what are considered the best varieties of mums for pot culture.

W. T. M.

In the large-flowered section there is nothing better for pot culture than the type known as the Caprice family. These are perhaps better adapted for pot culture than any other varieties we have, and the sales this year, according to dealers' reports, have been tremendous. These "Cap" mums are sports from the original variety Caprice du Printemps, a French variety which was imported some years ago, but which never received the recognition it merited. Chrysanthemums of this type are grown as pot plants for the London markets, literally speaking, by the million. If properly grown they need no staking, as they have a dwarf, sturdy habit of growth, with short footstalks. These varieties can now be procured from many of the plant distributors, and W. T. M. would probably find them more satisfactory than any other pot variety he has ever grown, if he can procure stock at this late date.

Other good types for pot plants are certain of the pompons, such as Inez, Grace, Baby, Golden Climax, etc., and in the large flowered kinds there are Polly Rose, Pacific, Lady Hopetoun, Elberon, Wm. Turner and Wells' Late Pink.

Chas. H. Totty.

WISTARIA NOT FLOWERING.

Please advise me how to make a blue wistaria vine bloom. It has been planted four years over a porch facing south and gets plenty of sunshine. Each year it has made a quantity of foliage and new growth, but has shown no signs of a bloom.

L. H. D.

There is believed to be a non-blooming type of wistaria in commerce. I have seen healthy plants, set out for fifteen years, which have never flowered. Sometimes, on the other hand, plants bloom after several years of flowerlessness. Are you pruning back your plant at all? Do not allow it to ramble ad libitum. Prune back the lateral growths tolerably hard each fall. This will have a tendency to make the plant throw flower buds. If it is growing rank, a little root pruning to restrict the vigor would be of benefit.

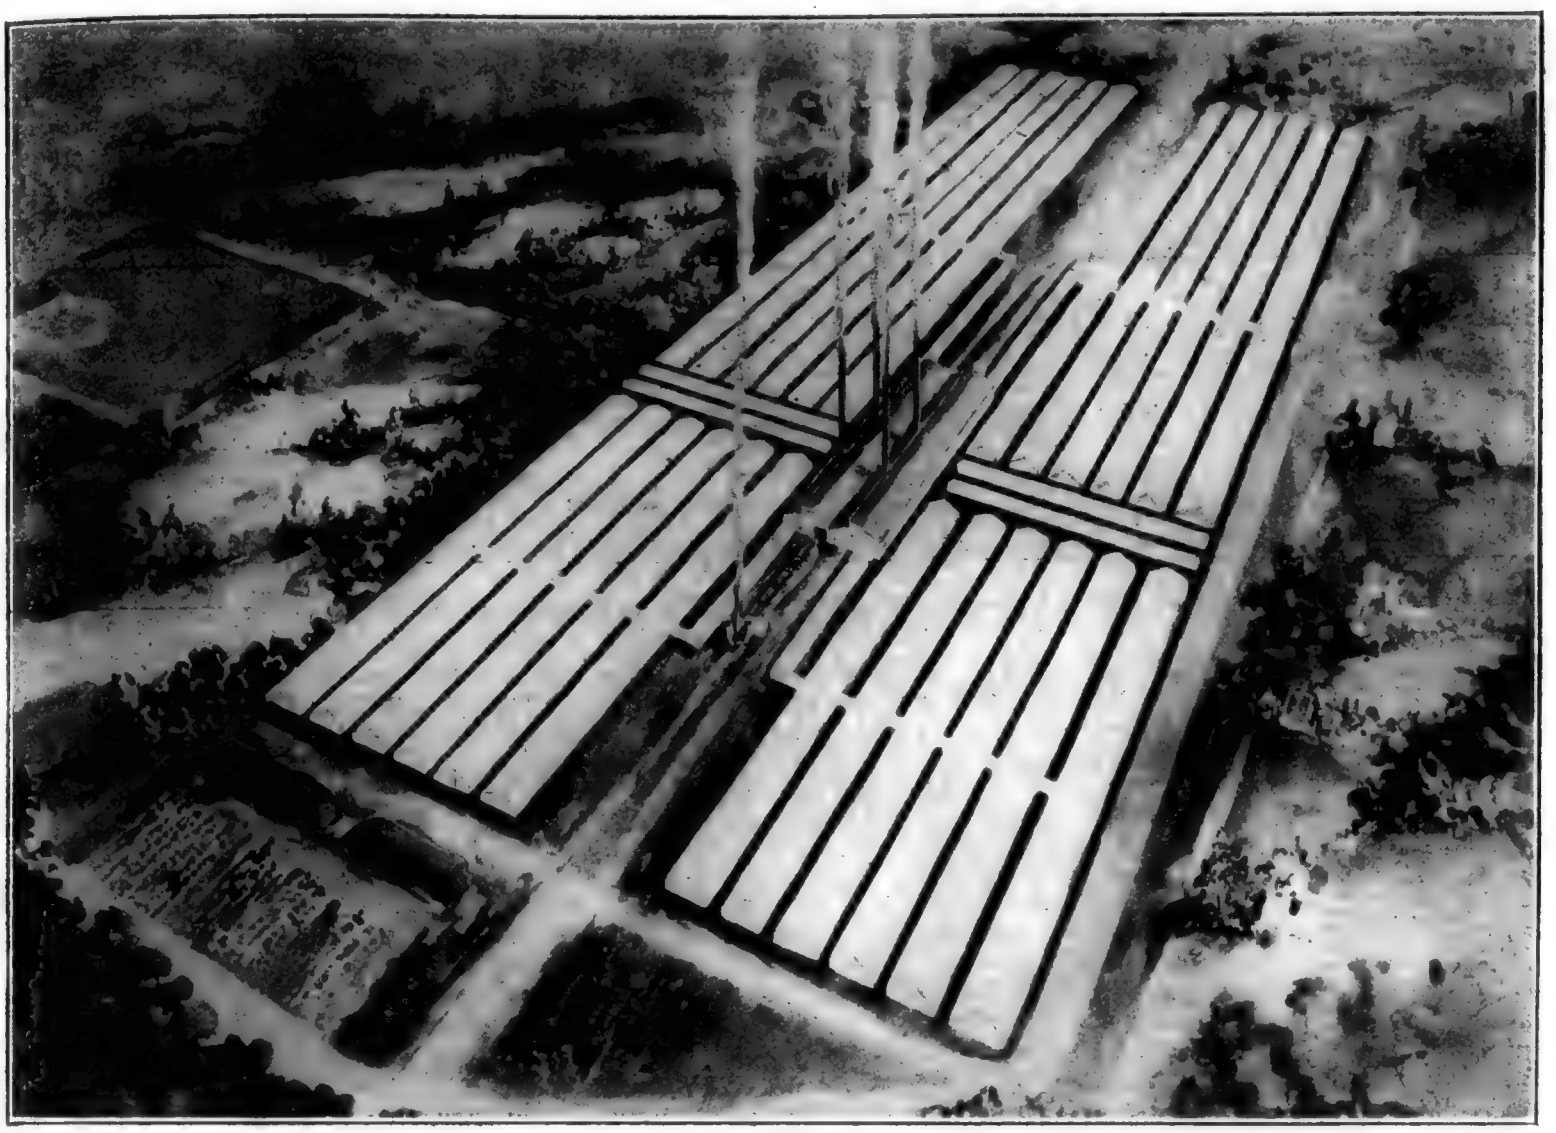
Geraniums

TAKING CUTTINGS.

Kindly give me some instructions in regard to taking cuttings of geraniums at this time of year. We are a little short of old stock, but what we have is fine and we should like to take cuttings now and in the early winter. Is it best to place the cuttings in sand? Would it be best to place them outdoors in a shaded position?

A. O. N.

The time to start propagating geraniums is just at hand. The bulk of them would damp off during such weather as is usually experienced in August. It is well to wait until the early part of September, especially if your cuttings are from plants growing outdoors, as these are always more succulent and liable to rot than such as have been grown under glass. Put the cuttings in clean, sharp sand. Trim off the leaves quite closely and cut below a leaf joint in making the cuttings. If the cuttings are soft, let them lie on the bench a few hours to dry somewhat before putting them in. The cuttings do not need any shade at all. Give them a soaking watering; then expose them to full sun. They root well outdoors, but need protection from heavy downpours of rain. Better propagate under glass if you have proper facilities.



C. W.

PROPAGATING GERANIUMS.

Is it a good plan to cut the tops off geraniums and use them for cuttings? As I have some geraniums left over, I wish to grow my own. A few hints to a beginner will be appreciated.

H. U.

Any time after the end of August you can start propagating your geraniums. There is no earthly reason why you should not be able to raise all your own stock. Cuttings are less liable to damp off after the extremely hot weather has passed. Trim off the leaves quite closely and cut below a leaf joint. When the cuttings are quite soft and full of sap, if you let them lie around on the bench a few hours before putting them in the sand they are less liable to damp off. Propagate in clear, sharp sand, with good drainage, and keep the cuttings in full sun; they do not need any shade. C. W.

GULLETT'S RECORD RANGE.

Work on what is undoubtedly the largest single order for greenhouse construction ever given in this country is under way at the establishment of W. H. Gullett & Sons, at Lincoln, Ill. The complete range will comprise twenty-four houses, each 60x500 feet; four propagating houses, 30x460 feet, and four propagating houses, 10½x175 feet. The contract for the entire plant, including the concrete work, is in the hands of the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago. The total cost is approximately $456,000, and 750 carloads of material will be required.

As may be seen from the accompanying illustration, the range will be laid out in four blocks of six houses each. These houses will be of Moninger all-steel construction, and no castings are to be used in them. These structures will be connected at the middle of the houses by means of iron-frame cross houses. Crossways, between the blocks, will be the propagating houses, 30x460 feet, of iron-frame construction. From the middle of the blocks of large houses run semi-iron passage houses, 10½x175, to be used for propagating, to the boiler house, which will be located in the center of the range.

There will be a separate boiler room for each block. The first block of houses will be erected with its own boiler room and service house complete. Its chimney and battery of boilers will be a unit, ready for use when the first block is finished. When the second block is built, the boiler house will be extended, and for the other two blocks similar rooms will be erected, alongside the first. When the twenty-four houses are completed the boiler plant will form practically a unit in the center of the range. In the service building will be provided sleeping quarters and office space, as well as packing and work rooms. A modern refrigerating outfit will provide cold storage for cut flowers.

A railway track will extend directly through the service building, between the large chimneys. This track will run overhead, so that dump cars can be used and the coal drop directly in front of the boilers, ready for stoking. These chimneys are five feet in diameter and 100 feet high, of brick, with the name Gullett in red brick. Although the service building is of frame construction, it is modern in every respect. It has a concrete floor throughout and is built of cypress and pine.

The heating system is the Moninger vacuum system, just brought out this summer. There are eight vacuum pumps and eight boiler feed pumps to be used in the completed range. All of these pumps are to be cross-connected for each battery, so that the plant can be operated under any weather conditions and with economy. The horse-power of the boilers amounts to 2,100, an equivalent of 210,000 feet of radiation.

In each of the houses are ten benches. Four are four feet wide and six are four and one-half feet wide. Along the walks across the middle of the houses will be tracks, on which are to run cars with soil, fertilizer, etc. All the pipes, too, are carried overhead, along this walk, so that heat, water, etc., may be distributed from the middle of the houses.

Although the contract was not signed until July 8, one house, 60x500, has already been completed and turned over to Gullett & Sons for planting, and the steel work of the second house is going up rapidly. The John C. Moninger Co. expects to have this one completed by the middle of September. The houses are to be devoted principally to roses, carnations and pot plants, although other stock may be included later.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The hottest week of the summer to date is past. Several days the mercury touched 100 degrees in the shade. This and the prolonged humidity did their share in causing the verdict of "the worst week ever known in the cut flower business in New York." Nothing to compare with these conditions has ever been known here, according to the veterans of twenty-five years' experience. There seems little hope of any uplift in the near future, and it requires considerable philosophy to see the sunshine beyond the clouds. The war in Europe is already felt most seriously in the trade. What the future will unfold can only be conjectured, and it needs an enormous amount of optimism to maintain both enterprise and hope.

There is a flood of roses arriving daily. Even American Beauties were almost unmovable. Specials were offered as low as $4 per hundred, with no demand. All varieties of roses accumulated, and any offer for them was gladly accepted. One department store offered, for its Saturday special, Beauties at 5 cents each, a box of flowers for How Travelers for Florists' Supplies Houses Set Up Their Samples in Hotels Along the Road.

10 cents and a corsage bouquet free to everyone whose purchases amounted to 50 cents. This gives a better idea of conditions, perhaps, than any general list of prices.

It would not need a mathematician to count the number of carnations arriving. The number continues to grow less. They can well be spared while the flood of asters and gladioli continues. There is no let-up to these, and prices are at the lowest ebb for each; $1 per hundred seems to be the extreme top, and more thousands than are lost in the European war are carted to the ocean every day. As to quality, they have never been excelled. Lilies move slowly in the New York local markets, making out-of-town shipments profitable. Here $2.50 per hundred buys the select stock. Valley, too, has reached lower figures, $2 per hundred being the maximum. Orchids continue abundant, with only the best gigas appreciated. Sweet peas, hydrangeas and dahlias are abundant. It is a summer long to be remembered, but the general belief continues in a good time coming this fall and winter if we wait a little longer.

Various Notes.

Notice of the death of Mrs. J. M. Keller, wife of the old-time florist of Brooklyn, appears in this week's obituary column.

The hospitality of the New York Florists' Club on the boat to Boston was greatly appreciated by the many visiting florists. Chairman Traendly and his committee left nothing undone that could add to the enjoyment of all. The banquet room was beautified by contributions from the Kervan Co., M. C. Ford, Walter Sheridan, P. J. Smith and the Growers' Cut Flower Co.

Tuesday, August 18, Walter R. Siebrecht, Sr., and family returned from a two months' vacation in the Adirondacks.

Julius Roehrs has returned from Europe with some thrilling and reliable stories of the war. There are still many New Yorkers of the florists' trade who are anxiously expected.

Miss Jennie McNanny, bookkeeper for Chas. Millang, is spending two weeks in the Catskills. David A. Dean is now with Chas. Millang, having rented his greenhouses at Baldwin, L. I., to J. Fasanella.

Large shipments from Europe were received last week by the Julius Roehrs Co., H. F. Darrow, Maltus & Ware, Henry & Lee, R. J. Irwin, Elliott & Sons, Weeber & Don, R. M. Ward & Co., H. H. Berger & Co., J. M. Thorburn & Co., F. R. Pierson Co., A. T. Boddington and the MacNiff Horticultural Co.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co. last week received 100 cases of Dutch bulbs from Holland on the steamer Nieuw Amsterdam, and another large shipment was due Monday of this week. Auctions begin early in September.

Joseph Levy, of the Brooklyn Wholesale Cut Flower Market, and S. Masur, the retail florist of Brooklyn, spent several days last week at Rowayton, Conn., the guests of F. H. Traendly. Mr. Levy has a branch store at the College Inn, Coney Island.

Woodrow & Marketos are busy with some large contracts for landscape work, making this branch now their specialty. Mr. Woodrow says the shortage in boxwood next season will create a demand for all the evergreens American nurserymen can possibly supply.

PAWTUCKET, R. I.

The Market.

Business during the last week has shown a slight increase, with funeral work still the main outlet for flowers. Asters are plentiful and of good quality. Sweet peas are not so good as usual, owing to the heavy rainfall during the last week. Some excellent gladioli are seen, as well as a few carnations. The florists have commenced to house their carnations for next year.

Various Notes.

Nearly all of the local florists were at the Boston convention and were greatly pleased with the show and with the whole program.

William Sword, of Valley Falls, has satisfied his friends that he is a fisherman of no little ability. Recently he took a trip to Wallum lake and brought back thirty bass, the smallest of which weighed two and one-half pounds.

Letters received from J. C. Potter, park commissioner of Pawtucket, who has been war-bound, stated that he was about to sail from England and would be due in this country August 22.

J. J. Kelley, of Valley Falls, while attending the flower show in Boston, bought a quantity of Kentia Belmoreana and Forsteriana.

A new beauty spot is to be laid out in Wrentham, Mass., around the new soldiers' monument.

The large numbers of army worms, moths and other insects, which caused serious damage in the outlying sections of this city, have almost disappeared. Their disappearance is attributed to the large flocks of bluebirds in the locality.
